Red Night Attack Throws Yanks Farther Back; Bill 'Freezing' GIs Passed; AF Calls Reserves; Truman Asks $5-Billion Boost in Income Taxes

Proposed Levies Would Eliminate Reductions Made In 1945 and 1948

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday asked Congress to increase income taxes on individuals and corporations by five billion dollars immediately as an interim "financial preparedness" measure.

He recommended return of individual taxes to nearly World War II levels by eliminating 1945 and 1948 cuts. He asked corporate rates be lifted from the present 38 percent maximum to a top rate of 45 percent.

Mr. Truman outlined his "stop gap" proposals in a letter to Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.).

He said the interim increases will help finance rearmament and restrain inflation but he said it still falls short of long range requirements. A "more comprehensive" tax program will be submitted later on, he wrote George.

George called a meeting of his Senate Finance Committee for next Wednesday, and said he hoped to complete committee action "in a few days."

Only Treasury and Congressional staff experts will be called as witnesses in closed hearings, the Georgian said.

The President's suggestion that the tax increases be tied to the revenue-raising provisions of the House-passed excise tax cut bill will help expedite action, George said.

Doughton Agrees

House Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), whose committee normally initiates new tax legislation, agreed.

Both George and Doughton reserved judgment on the President's detailed proposals, however, pending an "analysis" by Congressional staff experts.

Specifically, Mr. Truman recommended that a billion dollars in projected excise tax cuts be eliminated from the House-approved measure, and these additions be made to it:

1. An increase in individual income tax rates to levels prevailing before the 1945 and 1948 tax cuts but with two modifications that

Present and Proposed Taxes

The following tables prepared by the Treasury Department show how much taxes Americans would be required to pay under President Truman's new proposals, as compared with present rates and the highest wartime rates paid in 1944.

The tax figure for 1950 is smaller than that for 1951 because only a quarter of the worker's 1950 income would come under the new higher rates while his entire 1951 income would be affected.

House Members Bitterly Debate Responsibility For War Setbacks

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Legislation "freezing" all members of the armed forces in service for another year was passed by Congress yesterday and sped to the White House.

Another emergency bill removing the present 2,005,882 manpower ceiling on the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps also was quickly pushed through the House. Senate action, however, was delayed until today by a continuing debate over Senator Joseph McCarthy's Red-in-Government charges.

While the two measures received House approval without too much speech-making, what there was of it was bitter. Republicans, led by Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.), demanded an accounting of the billions spent for defense forces in recent years and called for a house-cleaning at the Pentagon and State Department.

No Time for "Scapegoats"

Democrats sought to shift the blame onto the GOP for Republican economy drives. Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee called for an end of such rowing, declaring "this is no time to take a detour to hunt for scapegoats."

The Georgian, however, criticized the Administration's 10.5-billion-dollar military expansion program as probably "too conservative" and "unrealistic." He called for a further enlargement of fighting forces.

Meanwhile, there were these moves at the Pentagon and elsewhere to speed up mobilization:

(1) An Air Force spokesman announced that the USAF has started calling up "a very limited number" of its reserve units. He would not indicate how many or what units, but said the organized reserve includes both flying and ground units. There is no intention at this time of calling out any Air National Guard units, the spokesman said.

Marines to West Coast

(2). The Marine Corps said "certain ground elements" of the Second Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, N. C., are being transferred to Camp Pendleton, Calif. This evidently was a move to divide up the available Leatherneck regular combat forces in the United States and by addition of reserve units and recruits, reconstitute two Marine divisions at home. Most of the under-strength First Marine Division is now en route to Korea from Pendleton.

(3) The Army "froze" the commissions of thousands of reserve officers whose five-year appointments soon are to expire, and called for volunteers from among reserve officers of company grade in 16 categories.

Yongdong Lost; Enemy in South Sweeps Toward Port of Pusan

By Russell Brines

Tokyo (Wednesday) July 26 (AP).—North Korean troops, overwhelming strategic Yongdong, drove the Americans deeper into the hills of South Korea today and rolled menacingly along the south coast.

Eight enemy divisions, possibly 50,000 to 75,000 men, kept up relentless pressure all along the shrinking front. They were pressing back the outnumbered United States and South Koreans ever closer to Pusan, the major southeast port.

The North Koreans sprang their first all-night attack of the war just as the First United States Cavalry division was completing its withdrawal Tuesday from Yongdong, which is 100 air miles northwest of Pusan.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said the surprise blow, led by tanks, caught the division off balance and forced it back farther east of Yongdong than originally planned.

General McArthur's afternoon headquarters release gave the length of the withdrawal as three miles from positions west of Yongdong.

Red Swing Along South Coast

Late reports reaching Tokyo said the Reds ran up against new American positions about two miles east of Yongdong.

MacArthur said the North Korean Fourth division, which has been racing virtually unopposing down the west coast, had occupied a number of points in a swing along the south coast.

The points were not specified, but this movement is loaded with menace for the American positions not only around Yongdong but in all South Korea.

Late reports to Tokyo said one spearhead of the Reds' fourth division had reached the edge of Hadong, near the south coast and only 70 miles west of Pusan.

The Reds already are operating east of Namwon, which is due south of Yongdong and 92 miles east of Pusan. Thirty-two miles south of Namwon is the rail and road center of Suchon on the south coast. The Reds either have gone through or around Sunchon.

Reds Fail to Entrap U. S. First Cavalry

Tokyo (Wednesday), July 26 (AP). Korean Communist troops have seized the key city of Yongdong but failed in an attempt to trap and annihilate the United States First Cavalry Division there, a reliable source said today.

The foot soldiers of the First Cavalry pulled out of Yongdong Tuesday under the crushing weight of wave on wave of North Korean troops and tanks.

The source told Leif Erickson, Associated Press correspondent at a base in Korea, that cut-off elements of the First Cavalry apparently had made a successful fighting withdrawal.

The withdrawal elements, the source said, were located on the highway which leads southwest out of Yongdong. The main line of retreat runs northeast out of Yongdong and then southeastward to the big port of Pusan. Pusan is 100 air miles southeast of Yongdong.

Apparently, the First Cavalry soldiers placed in peril by Yongdong's fall had been deployed west of the city.

The withdrawal under flanking

Jet Planes on First Night Attack Flights

Tokyo (Wednesday), July 26 (AP).—United States Air Force jet fighters flew night-attack missions for the first time Tuesday night.

The history-making flights were made by eight F-80 Lockheed Shooting Stars.

The jets' primary mission was to harass North Korean forces and prevent Red movements under cover of darkness.

The jets hit the Communists behind the front lines in their first night-time mission.

Controls Asked Are Minimum, Sawyer Says

Senators Told Powers Would Not Suffice If Defense Needs Grew

By Alfred Friendly

Administration testimony to Congress yesterday argued that President Truman's proposed economic control legislation, broad as its powers would be, is the bare minimum necessary.

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer told the Senate Banking and Currency Committee:

"Even though the powers proposed in this bill are strong, it is my opinion that they will not suffice if there is a great expansion of military expenditures beyond the programs contemplated at the present time."

And in a statement to the committee, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System said that even before the Korean attack, the Nation was in "a potentially inflationary situation" and that now it is "imperative" to restrict credit.

"Unless prompt action (on credit control) is taken," the statement said, "the country will face serious problems of gray markets and spiraling prices."

Sawyer's testimony was confined to the first two titles of the Administration's "defense production" bill. They gave the Government power to allocate materials, establish priorities, requisition materials and facilities, and control inventories.

2d D. C. Guard Unit Called For Service

All-Negro Command Gets Orders; Naval Reserves to Report

A second District of Columbia National Guard unit, plus 38 enlisted reserves of the Potomac River Naval Command from the Washington area, received orders yesterday to report for active Federal service.

The National Guard unit is the 715th Quartermaster Transportation Truck Company.

An all-Negro outfit, the 715th is commanded by Capt. Milton V. Seraile, 33, of 1100 21st st. ne. The group was ordered to report to the Armory August 14.

First District Guard outfit to be called was the 370th Signal Radar Maintenance Unit which got the word Sunday upon its return from the summer encampment at Fort Miles, Del.

Attached to the 171st Military Police Battalion, the 715th also completed its summer encampment Sunday at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

Along with the MPs, the 715th supported the training activities of 6000 Pennsylvania guardsmen.

Said Captain Seraile yesterday after receiving the alert: "The morale of the outfit is high. Our encampment was very successful and we are ready to go."

Guard officials said the District Guard commander, Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, inspected the 715th encampment on two separate occasions and was "very highly pleased" with the unit's performance.

Seraile, formerly of New Orleans, has been living in Washington for the past 10 years and is a postal service carrier.

In World War II, he served as a motor officer with the famed Red Ball Express in Europe.

Officials said the company is at the maximum authorized National Guard strength, which is 60 percent of the authorized strength of

Thomas Trails Monroney by 17,000 Votes

By The Associated Press

Senator Thomas conceded early today that he had lost to Representative Mike Monroney in his bid for renomination.

Oklahoma City, July 25 (AP).—Representative Mike Monroney grabbed a substantial lead of more than 17,500 votes over Senator Elmer Thomas tonight in Oklahoma's bitter runoff race for the Democratic United States Senate nomination.

In the first primary July 4 Monroney's margin was 14,653.

Returns from 2929 of the State's 3788 precincts gave Monroney 172,545 votes to 154,937 for Thomas, veteran of 28 years in Congress.

Also leading, but by less of a margin, was Johnston Murray, Democratic candidate for Governor. With 1958 precincts counted Murray had 119,428 votes to 110,825 for William O. Coe, Oklahoma City attorney.

Monroney, on the basis of more than three-fourths of the State's precincts, would have a larger lead than expected while Murray was being pressed much harder than anticipated.

Both Monroney and Murray held their leads nearly all evening but still remaining out was much of the count from Oklahoma and Tulsa Counties, largest in the State.

Monroney should lead heavily in

Conferees Add 10 Million to Social Security

Pensions of Those Now Retired Would Be Raised 77 Percent

A sharply expanded Social Security program stepping up benefits and bringing 10 million more workers under the old-age insurance system yesterday was approved by a House-Senate conference committee.

The conference version of bills previously approved by the House and Senate doubled benefits in some cases and increased pension checks of persons already retired by an average of 77 percent.

Insured persons retiring in the future would receive increases ranging from 40 percent to more than 90 percent.

To finance the program, the conferees approved graduated step-ups over the next 20 years in the present payroll tax of 1½ percent each on employers and workers.

Levied on the first $3600 of wages (instead of the first $3000 as at present), the tax would rise to 2 percent in January, 1954, 2½ percent in 1960, 3 percent in 1965 and 3¼ percent after 1969.

A "new start" provision initiated by the Senate enables an individual to qualify for a pension at age 65 by working as little as 18 months after 1950, if he holds

Doubling of Defense Stockpile Now Getting Consideration

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The Administration is considering a doubling of its present defense stockpiling of metals, drugs and other raw materials as insurance against a new world war.

President Truman served notice on Congress last week that he would ask more money for stockpiling in addition to the 10 billion 600 million he has already asked for the armed services.

How much he will ask has not yet been decided, but some informed officials predicted yesterday that he would seek an increase of stockpiling expenditure to at least 1 billion 200 million dollars in the current fiscal year.

The Munitions Board's present request, which went to Congress before the start of the Korean war, called for 640 million dollars in appropriations and 100 million in contract authority.

The limiting factor in an increased program will not be money, but (1) the growing demands of American and European rearmament for many of the same materials, (2) the incessant demands of private business here and abroad, and (3) the scarcity and inadequate production of the materials themselves.

W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, hinted to Congress earlier this week that the United States might buy up some materials even though it did not need them. He said the United States should buy more natural rubber, not only for its own uses but on "a preclusive basis"—that is, to keep Russia from buying it.

The Allies did the same sort of purchasing during the war, notably in Spain and Sweden, to keep vitally important raw materials out of German and Japanese hands.

Assuming that the United States doubles its present stockpiling, and that it greatly increases its direct and indirect military aid to Europe, the world-wide dollar shortage may soon be a thing of the past.

Already the sterling area, exclusive of the United Kingdom, has a dollar surplus, largely because of its sales at high prices of cocoa, wool and rubber. Latin America, too, is no longer starved for dollars, chiefly because of its sales of oil and coffee at phenomenally high prices.

Intensive American stockpiling will enrich Latin America to such an extent that the problem there will no longer be how to earn dollars; in many countries the problem will be whether the United States will let them buy the civilian goods they want.

A doubling of the American stockpile will not bring the same dollar bonanza to most of western Europe, largely because Germany, Italy, Scandinavia and

D. C. Sentences Found 'Lenient' By Criminal Justice Survey

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Washington Criminal Justice Association yesterday criticized United States District Court judges in the District for what it called "the tendency toward lenient sentencing and concurrent sentences" for convicted criminals.

In its annual report, the association, a member of the United Community Services, made these other major points:

1. In 1949, 12,137 serious crimes were reported to the police here, a decrease of 6.9 percent from the 1948 high. But reports in recent months "seem to indicate the existence of more highly organized criminal groups whose operations are more skillfully planned."

2. The volume of crime here, as in other major cities, is indicative of "serious community disorganization," and a "widespread disregard for law and the process of criminal justice." There appears to be in Washington a "general community lethargy and indifference."

3. A "substantial increase" is needed in the number of policemen, and more of those now on the force should be assigned to beats "in crime-infested areas."

4. Many of the city's serious crimes are committed by persons of 17 or younger, and the problem of the youthful offender "presents to the citizen one of the most significant challenges in the entire social welfare field." Yet little has been done to acquire basic data necessary for "effective community planning"; and much of what planning now goes on is "done in a vacuum, with little or no integration between the various programs."

5. The problem of sex offenders is "of serious proportions" in the District. Many alleged of-

FHA Quits Low-Cost Housing Financing in District Area

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

The Federal Housing Administration abruptly stepped out of the low-cost home financing field in Greater Washington yesterday.

By cutting the limits of certain types of mortgages it will insure, FHA made it virtually impossible to buy or build a $9000-or-less house with its loan insurance.

The action was taken by FHA Commissioner Franklin D. Richards "to be consistent with the expressed policy of the President of conserving building materials which may be needed for national defense purposes and curb inflation," it was announced.

FHA cracked down on the home building boom here by a simple measure: it rescinded its action of July 5 which declared Greater Washington a "high-cost area" and authorized a hike in mortgage limits. It did the same with New York City—the only other high-cost area in the country.

What the move does is to "deactivate" section 203 2(b) 2(d) of the administration's mortgage insurance provisions—the section which offers the most favorable terms for small home financing and a section which, up to July 5 had never been utilized here.

According to Thomas C. Barringer, director of FHA's District insuring office, this section had never been put to use in Greater Washington because the mortgage limits it set up had been too low.

NYHT News Service

With American Forces Before Yongdong, July 25.—American forces are suffering severe attrition. Since the fall of Taejon, escape routes have narrowed down to a few abominable roads that permit no quick and orderly withdrawal. When positions are overrun, there is consequently little chance of pulling out with guns and supplies.

Along this particular supply route conditions are almost as unhealthy as in the immediate front. Yesterday, while driving forward, this correspondent noticed a score of trucks that had gone off the narrow road. The truck on which I was riding crashed down a 30-foot embankment, completely overturning in a rice paddy.

The driver and I crawled out unscratched, but others were less fortunate. Should circumstances compel a sudden withdrawal, the road would become a hellish shambles.

Units Forced Back

After holding successfully for two days in strong hill positions around Yongdong, American units have been forced back.

It is the same old nightmarish situation in which mortar and artillery emplacements in the rear are suddenly engulfed by Red infantry pouring in through an open flank. Then the front-line units find themselves bereft of supporting fire and must fight their way rearward by smashing through enemy roadblocks under fire of machine guns and mortars.

American light tanks, which have proved ineffective on rare occasions when they can shoot at enemy infantry, are often unable to smash roadblocks.

Last night, for example, three American tanks were knocked out by enemy machinegun fire in a futile effort to eliminate a strong enemy nest that had cut off a front-line unit.

One tank, commanded by Sergt. Ethridge Harn of Sagamore, Ga., managed to crawl up far enough to rescue six wounded men pinned down in a ditch. The wounded dragged themselves painfully out into the middle of the road and allowed the tank to pass over them. Then Sergeant Harn lowered the escape hatch at the bottom of the tank and dragged the wounded aboard.

Fought Off Two Attacks

"We fought off two attacks during the day, but the third time they got us simultaneously from the left and frontally. We mowed them down until they were piled in heaps in front of our guns, but still they kept coming," Stoops said.

It was not a Banzai charge marked by screaming and yelling, he said. The Red tide closed in silently and relentlessly, the faces of the Communist infantrymen showing neither fear nor elation.

Stoops' men fought with exceptional gallantry until overrun in pitched fighting. He was particularly proud of Dod M. Rains of Aspen, Tex., a veteran of the South Pacific, who was wounded at Los Negros. "Pop" Rains, who admitted being 40, made three trips behind enemy lines to carry out 14,000 rounds of ammunition from an overrun machine gun.

Baptists Call For Freedom Of Religion

Cleveland, July 25 (AP). — The Baptist World Congress today called eighteen million Baptists into a crusade for religious liberty.

By unanimous standing vote, twenty thousand delegates to the eighth international Congress adopted a manifesto urging their church members to take the lead in proclaiming and practicing freedom of worship.

Totalitarian governments, church-state alliances, and materialistic secularism combine to make existence of the free church today a matter of deepest concern, the manifesto said.

The manifesto issued appeals to—

Protestant state churches to grant all other religious groups and those who acknowledge no religious faith, "the same rights and privileges they demand for themselves without discriminations or disabilities."

The Roman Catholic Church to abandon "discrimination against or persecution of Protestants and Evangelicals and all others in Spain, Italy, Portugal, the Belgian Congo, Mexico, Argentina, Colombia and elsewhere, and to unite on an equal basis with all freedom-loving people against totalitarianism and for complete religious liberty.

Communist rulers to crease discriminating against religion and "refrain from intimidating Christian churches and their leaders by arrests and threats of arrest, and also from hindering Christian organizations for the service of youth and the public manifestation of the Gospel."

Navy Expected To Call Up Few Reserve Officers

The Navy expects to call not more than 10 percent of its 300,000 reserve officers, Capt. Charles Brooks, an assignment officer in the Bureau of Personnel, said last night.

Brooks told 70 officers of the District chapter of the Reserve Officers of the Naval Service, that 5000 officers have volunteered for active duty. Many of them have not been processed.

The need, he said, is for technical billets such as electronics, communications and fighter director officers.

Police and Fire Departments Surrender Their First Members to Armed Forces

District fire and police departments yesterday lost their first men to the armed forces.

First to go was Metropolitan Police Pvt. Marshall H. Lytle of No. 2 Precinct, a Naval reservist who volunteered for active duty. He went on military leave July 17, but without the blessing of the Commissioners.

Because Lytle volunteered without notifying police officials, the Commissioners yesterday accepted Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett's recommendation that Lytle be put on leave without their approval.

A police official said Lytle would lose none of his job privileges. The policy of approving while disapproving was also followed during the last war, he said, simply to distinguish in the record between those who went through official channels in joining up and those who did not.

First fireman to leave for military duty was Pvt. William S. Ingram of No. 19 Engine Co., who was called to active duty as of yesterday with the Fifth Infantry Battalion of the Marine Reserves. The Commissioners approved the leave request of Ingram, who lives at 4722 68th pl., Defense Heights, Md.

Police officials said several other policemen are members of the Marine Reserve battalion, but that most have not yet received orders.

One who has is Pvt. Ray McClure of the police identification bureau, who took along with him Monday a plan for identifying unrecognizable dead. His plan is that every burial unit should contain a fingerprint specialist. He would take prints from bodies not otherwise identifiable, and these could be checked with prints taken at the time of induction. It would cut down the "unknown soldier" list by 90 percent, McClure thinks. He lives at 3109 Tennyson ave. nw.

Some 243 policemen and 109 fire-department employes are members of some reserve unit and presumably subject to call, according to Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young.

CHANGE UNIFORMS—Two Metropolitan policemen and a fireman will be wearing the uniform of the armed forces soon. Police Pvt. Ray McClure (left) of the identification bureau, and Pvt. William S. Ingram (center) of No. 19 Engine Company both have been called to active service with the Fifth Marines; and Pvt. Marshall H. Lytle (right) of No. 2 Precinct, a Naval reservist has volunteered for active duty

50 Virginia, Maryland 24 and 25-Year-Olds Are Processed at Arlington Farms Center

Fifty men, 24 and 25 years old, from nearby Virginia and Maryland—20 fewer than expected—were processed at the Arlington Farms examining and induction center yesterday.

Today examiners will concentrate on the second group of District selectees. About 50 Washington men, called by Local Boards 12 and 13, are expected to report for their mental and physical tests.

Army officials did not disclose how many of yesterday's group passed.

The 20 nonresponders to yesterday's call were chalked up to incorrect addresses on notifications, overage or the fact that some had married or received deferments since registering.

Selective Service spokesmen appeared undisturbed that only 15 of the District's first call of 61 men passed examinations Monday. Most of that group, they said, had been previously examined in 1948 and were rejected.

District men will be examined on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays until the city's September induction quota of 101 is met.

Yesterday's Maryland and Virginia group included 10 from Rockville and 12 from Silver Spring, Md., and contingents from Arlington and Falls Church.

At Baltimore, Maryland State Selective Service Headquarters announced it is starting to call up 23-year-old draft registrants for physical and mental tests.

Spokesmen warned, however, that the younger men do not face immediate active duty, that the move is merely a step toward assuring quick delivery in event of further draft calls from Washington.

French Relent On German Arms-Making

Paris, July 25 (NYHT.).—A Foreign Ministry spokesman said today Western Germany's heavy industries soon may be asked to produce arms for the European members of the Atlantic Pact.

Implicit in his statement was the fact that the French government also recognizes now that the steel production ceiling imposed on the Bonn government may have to be raised above the present limit of 11,500,000 tons a year.

This new approach to Germany was implied in the current National Assembly debate on the Schuman Plan for a coal and steel pool for France, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Western Germany.

The spokesman's announcement represented an important decision. It showed the government was ready to face the French people with an unpopular policy.

Until now, French insistence on forbidding German industry to manufacture armaments has been consistently firm since the end of the war. This has been in keeping with public opinion, whose attitude has been: No army, no arms and no arms factories.

Month's Atom 'Poison' Output Could Kill All in 2 Big Cities

In making plutonium, the explosive of the atomic bomb, America is also producing enough radioactive poisons each month to destroy all human life in two or three major cities.

This is the deduction of a renowned American scientist, Louis N. Ridenour, writing in the July issue of the authoritative Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists.

The poisons are by-products of the manufacture of the bomb fuel. They are the so-called fission products that result when uranium splits in an atomic pile. Highly radioactive, their radiations can destroy human life when absorbed through the skin or, infinitely faster, when inhaled.

Because the topic of radiological warfare with "atomic poison dust" of this sort has not been much discussed. Ridenour concludes, it must be that it is either unpromising or else highly significant as a weapon, and therefore secret. His conclusion is that is the latter.

The data on which he worked were those published in 1948 by Dr. Hans Thirring of the University of Vienna. It was Thirring whose public discussion of the possibilities of a hydrogen bomb gave apparently accurate information about it as early as 1946.

Ridenour notes that radioactive fission products could be separated from a plutonium-making pile, and delivered to its target, in the form of a "death sand," prepared by mixing dried salts of the fission products with fine sand or metal powder.

The result, Thirring believes, would be "the lightest and most transportable of all the weapons of mass destruction. A highly deadly layer on the surface of the ground would weigh only 12 milligrams per square meter and would be quite invisible."

Danes, Swedes Reject Reds' '12-Mile Limit'

Copenhagen, July 25 (U.P.).—Denmark and Sweden have jointly rejected Russian claims to jurisdiction over Baltic waters within 12 miles of the Soviet coast, it was announced here today.

The two governments insisted on the generally accepted 3 to 4 miles territorial limit in notes presented to the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow.

The issue was raised by Russian seizure of a number of Danish and Swedish fishing vessels operating within 12 miles of Soviet shores.

Anti-U. S. Leaflets Distributed in Cairo

Cairo, Egypt, July 25 (AP).—Arabic leaflets accusing the United States Army of murder, terrorism and aggression in Korea are being distributed in Cairo by a pro-Communist underground organization.

The United States Embassy said it had obtained copies, which are under study.

Britain May Offer Ground Force Today

By MacArthur

Erase Foe's Superiority, U. N. Urged

Lake Success, N. Y., July 25 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's unified command told the United Nations today that the Russian-equipped Red Korean invaders "cannot be overcome until the U. N. forces achieve the effect of superiority in weapons and manpower."

The first United States report to the Security Council in the MacArthur-led U. N. Korean campaign called on other U. N. members to increase their military contributions.

The somber but hopeful seven-page document, read to the council by chief American delegate Warren R. Austin, concluded by quoting MacArthur's recent battle report to President Truman:

"Our hold upon the southern part of Korea represents a secure base . . . We are now in Korea in force, and with God's help we are there to stay until the constitutional authority of the republic is fully restored."

Reference to the military needs was interpreted in official quarters as meaning qualitative and not necessarily numerical superiority.

Figures on Foe's Strength

Arne Sunde of Norway, Council president, thanked the United States for the report. The Council was adjourned until Friday morning.

The report gave official figures on the strength of the "invading hordes." It said:

"The North Korean invaders were reported to have committed initially six divisions of infantry, three border constabularly brigades, supported by approximately 100 Soviet-made T-34 and T-70 tanks and ample heavy artillery. Their air force held complete control of the air, and was at the time estimated to be composed of 100 to 150 Soviet-made combat planes.

"The total strength of the North Korean forces was placed at between 90,000 and 100,000, organized in approximately seven divisions and five brigades, well trained and equipped chiefly with excellent Soviet material.

The report emphasized that the invaders are getting vast Soviet help, saying:

"From the continuing appearance on the battlefield of large numbers of enemy personnel and equipment, it is now apparent that the North Korean aggressors have available to them resources far in excess of their internal capabilities. This, with the intial advantage of the aggressor, combines to give the enemy a strength that cannot be overcome until the U. N. forces achieve the effect of superiority in weapons and manpower.

London, July 25 (AP).—Britain was reported tonight ready to offer a small ground force to help American GIs in Korea. She has already thrown some naval and air forces into the fight.

Qualified sources said an important, possibly decisive factor was that Britain did not want Americans to feel they were fighting the United Nations' Korean battle single-handed.

The government's offer may be announced in Commons Wednesday in a debate on the state of the nation's defenses.

Prime Minister Attlee and Conservative leader Winston Churchill will join in the debate.

Attlee presumably will tell the Commons just how the British propose to meet U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie's plea for a ground force to help out the hard-pressed United States troops.

These are some of the questions he may have to answer:

How many British troops will be made available?

Where will they come from?

When will they go?

Qualified officials in the past two weeks have suggested that, if a British ground force is approved by the government, it might range from a battalion to a brigade in strength.

One battalion—averaging about 1000 men—would be a token force. A brigade formation would run to about 5000 men.

Turkey Offers U.N. 4500 Armed Troops

Ankara, Turkey, July 25 (AP). Turkey tonight offered the United Nations 4500 fully armed troops to fight the Communists in Korea.

The decision was made in an emergency Cabinet session. It was left to the U.N. to work out details of transportation and assignment.

Selim Sarper, Turkey's permanent U.N. delegate who attended the Cabinet meeting, was instructed to leave immediately for Lake Success to present Turkey's offer.

Cuba Willing to Discuss Sending Troops to Korea

Havana, July 25 (UP).—Cuba has notified the United Nations of its willingness to discuss sending Cuban troops and other aid to Korea, it was disclosed officially today.

Foreign Minister Ernesto Dihigo released the text of the Cuban government's reply to U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie saying that although the republic's armed forces are limited in size, Cuba is willing to discuss with the unified command furnishing effective as well as aid in the form of essential commodities, when the U. N. so desires.

Many South Africans Want to Join Yanks

Durban, Union of South Africa, July 25 (AP).—Scores of South Africans, critical of this country's failure to send troops to Korea, have volunteered for service in the United States Army.

American authorities have had to turn them down because they are not American citizens.

The volunteers, most of them World War II veterans, say a battalion of volunteers could be raised here easily despite official South African statements that the union's army is too small to answer U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie's appeal for ground troops.

20,000 Vets Of China War Helping Reds

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, July 25 (AP).—North Korean prisoners said today 20,000 Korean visers are working with North were recalled in March for the invasion of South Korea.

They added that Russian advisers are working with North Korean army units.

Russia in May—at least a full month before the invasion—supplied huge quantities of military equipment, they said. This included an unknown number of tanks.

A companion strike at Formosa by the Chinese Communists apparently was planned but did not come off, they indicated.

Kim Kwang Whan, 24, and Suk Yung Chan, 22, said the 20,000 Korean veterans in March crossed the Yalu River separating Manchuria from North Korea.

As the 141st Division of the Chinese Red Forty-seventh Army, the Koreans had fought several years in Manchuria, the two said. They added:

The Koreans brought along "all kinds of arms and ammunition." The veterans were spread through North Korean army divisions.

Kim and Suk were among 239 prisoners in a stockade here. Some talked freely.

Kim and Suk said they crossed into Korea by train at Sinuiju, near the mouth of the Yalu River, between March 7 and 15. They said they were born in Manchuria, and their families still live there.

Ko Duk Rin, a second lieutenant, said the Chinese Communists told the Korean veterans that South Korea, Formosa and Hainan all would fall at the same time.

Maj. Paik Won Kyo, South Korean commandant of the prison stockade, said there were 30 Korean veterans from the Chinese Red army among the prisoners.

Fight to Force Leopold Out Gains Violence

Brussels, July 25 (U.P.).—Strikes, bomb explosions and railroad sabotage rolled across Belgium today and government sources said martial law may be imposed to check the campaign of violence to force King Leopold from the throne he regained only four days ago.

The Ministry of Interior announced that 48 separate acts of sabotage and violence, including more than a dozen bombings, occurred last night and early today.

More than 30,000 French-speaking Walloons in industrial southern Belgium went on strike. The Socialist-controlled General Federation of Labor said Tubize was crippled by a general strike.

Paul-Henri Spaak, former Premier and Socialist leader, declared in Parliament that Leopold can create "an atmosphere conducive to reconciliation" if he "accounts for his wartime conduct in all frankness." Leopold's opponents charge him with Nazi sympathies during the war.

THE RECORD—This is the score after a month of fighting in South Korea. It was just a month ago—June 25—when the North Korean Reds began their invasion. After 30 days of fighting, the Communist forces control roughly two thirds of the area south of the Thirty-eighth Parallel

U. S. Advises Atlantic Pact Nations to Rearm Speedily

London, July 25 (AP).—The United States urged its fellow members of the North Atlantic Pact today to rearm speedily as a means of preventing another Communist attack on the Korean pattern.

The call was voiced by Charles M. Spofford, deputy to United States Secretary of State Acheson, at the opening session of the Atlantic Pact Council, a civilian high command.

Spofford was elected chairman. The meeting was secret, but here is the gist of his speech as it became known:

Events in Korea have shown communism does not hesitate to pass from subversion to armed aggression. The 12 Pact nations must be vigilant so as not to be caught napping by Communist aggression elsewhere in the world. The council's basic task is to safeguard peace and freedom in the Western World. The pact nations have overwhelming superiority in moral strength—and potentially in military strength—over the Communist world. Increasing the military strength of the pact nations is now necessary, though none had wanted to do it.

The Pact nations are the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Portugal, Iceland and Italy.

The Korean case has led to a program to cut a four-year rearmament schedule to two years. The original 1954 target date was built on the theory that Western Europe could rearm by then without cutting into its rising standard of living.

The council will begin canvassing the defense requirements and potentials of the member nations Wednesday.

Todd Employes Vote to Call Off Brooklyn Strike

New York, July 25 (U.P.).—Employes of the Todd shipyards in Brooklyn bowed today to a Government request to return to work because of the Korean situation and voted to call off a 4-day-old strike.

The workers voted unanimously to return to work Wednesday morning under a 30-day extension of their old contract, which ended Sunday. Any benefits gained in a new contract to be negotiated now will be retroactive to June 23.

Employes of the Todd yards in Hoboken will vote Wednesday morning on whether to return to work under the same agreement. The employes are represented by the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America.

Two cargo ships transferred from the "mothball fleet" to the Brooklyn yards were moved out Sunday to prevent their being tied up by a long strike.

Reds Decree Harsh Penalties To Put Down Revolt in China

Hongkong, July 25 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communist regime today provided harsh penalties, including death, to suppress armed revolt that some reports said is rampant from Manchuria south to Kwangtung province on the coast.

Peiping radio, making the official announcement, said the moves were necessary because of "incorrigible counterrevolutionary elements."

There have been increasing reports of armed rebellion, sabotage and espionage from the mainland, some of which is Nationalist inspired and some of which appears to be genuine peasant revolts.

(In London, there were unofficial reports that 400,000 Nationalist guerillas were operating in various parts of China and that special agents are active among the peasants, recruiting a growing army.)

The unrest is so grave and so widespread in China that the Peiping regime has been compelled to establish special courts to deal with it.

Quemoy Threat Fades, Nationalists Report

Taipei, Fosmosa, July 25 (AP).—The threatened Chinese Communist invasion of Quemoy Island off the China coast opposite Formosa ended today—at least temporarily.

The Defense Ministry said that Red junks seen approaching the 50-square-mile island did not strike.

Chiang Kai-shek's elder son, Gen. Chiang Ching-kuo, returned Sunday from Quemoy. He reported morale there high.

Ancient Andes Temple Found By Explorers

Mendoza, Argentina, July 25 (U.P.) An archeological find said to reveal the existence of a South American civilization 1000 years before the discovery of America was reported today.

Archeologist Raul Ledesma said he discovered the ruins of a Stone Age granite temple where men worshiped a red-diademed idol 10 centuries before Columbus came to America.

Near the Andean village of Chacras de Coria, Ledesma said, he found a hilltop gallery 10 feet long by 3 feet wide and nearby the foot and head of a granite idol, half-destroyed by the action of time.

The idol wore a red stone crown, and had no eyes. Carved into one of the huge stones of the gallery was the figure of an animal with one eye nearly two inches wide and on the right side of the face, believed to be the idol of the ancient Cult of Fertility.

Cut stones measuring nearly 12 feet long and 7 feet wide were scattered and half-buried on the lonely hillside, Ledesma said.

He said he believed the ruins antedate even Chan Chima, Tiahuanaco, and all other American civilizations which were old when the Inca Empire rose about 1000 AD to dazzle Pizarro when he arrived in Peru 400 years later.

Monroney Leads Thomas in Runoff Vote

Oklahoma County, center of the Fifth Congressional District which he has represented for 12 years.

The Sulsa County vote probably will be closer. Monroney carried both the large counties in the first primary July 4.

Representative Victor Wickersham, Seventh District, held a surprisingly narrow lead for renomination. Returns from 226 of the District's 364 precincts gave Wickersham 15,689 votes and Lloyd E. Church, Clinton dentist, 13,281.

In the Fifth District, which Monroney is leaving open, former State Senator John Jarman held a slim lead with less than half of the boxes reported. The count in 201 of 580 precincts gave Jarman 13,688, and former U. S. District Attorney William A. Berry, 13,274.

Sims and Hare Beaten In South Carolina Runoff

Columbia, S. C., July 25 (AP).—Two former United States Representatives—W. J. Bryan Dorn of Greenwood, 34-year-old veteran, and John J. Riley, Sumter businessmen, received Democratic nomination to the House in today's runoff.

They swept into the nomination, which is equivalent to election.

Dorn defeated Representative James B. Hare of Saluda, and Riley won over Representative Hugo S. Sims, jr., who at 29 is the youngest member of the Eighty-first Congress.

Unofficial returns from 246 of 254 Second District precincts gave Riley 26,942 and Sims 17,003, while reutrns from 318 of 322 Third District precincts gave Dorn 23,529, and Hare 18,728.

Riley, a building and loan executive, was defeated by Sims two years ago. He is 55.

Roosevelt Opponent Picked by N. Y. GOP

New York, July 25 (AP).—The Republican Party today picked Henry V. Poore, one of its younger progressives, to run for Congress in the fall against Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr. (D., Lib., N. Y.).

Poor at 36 is a past president of the New York Young Republican Club and is executive director of the newly formed Republican Advance.

The Advance is an organization within the GOP that has tried to map a positive program of action against the Democrats.

"I want to campaign on the basis of issues and ideas rather than personalities," Poor told a news conference after his selection was announced by the New York Republican County committee.

LaFargue Concedes Victory to Long

New Orleans, July 25 (AP).—Malcolm LaFargue of Shreveport tonight conceded the victory of Senator Russell Long, son of the late Huey P. Long, in the Louisiana Democratic Senatorial primary.

LaFargue was the candidate of an anti-Long coalition.

LaFargue conceded the election at 11:40 p. m. (E. S. T.). At that time returns from 1334 of the State's 2092 precincts gave Long 229,544 votes to 105,234 for LaFargue and 4761 for former United States Representative Newt V. Mills.

McMath Leads Laney

2 Motorcycles, 6 Police Cars Chase, Halt Ambulance

A fast-moving Bolling Base ambulance led six District police cars and two motorcycles a 5-mile chase last night before it was finally halted.

Later last night, the ambulance driver, identified as Aaron Lewis, jr., 28, of 68 I st. nw., was ordered to post $590 collateral for 22 traffic violations.

In the course of a routine transfer of a patient from Bolling to Walter Reed Hospital, police said, Lewis exceeded 75 miles per hour, ran 11 red lights and two stop signs, failed to yield the right-of-way three times, and drove on the wrong side of the street three times.

Gerow to Retire Monday; Van Fleet To Head 2d Army

Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, Second Army commander, will retire Monday after more than 38 years' service. He will be honored on the day of his retirement by a parade at Fort Meade, Md.

Gerow was born in Petersburg, Va., in 1888. He entered the Army as a second lieutenant in 1911, after graduating from Virginia Military Institute.

He commanded the Fifteenth Army in Europe in the last months of World War II. Earlier, he commanded the V Corps from the landings on Omaha Beach, Normandy, to January 15, 1945.

He will be succeeded as commander of the Second Army by Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, who was recently head of the United States military mission in Greece.

Gaming Raids Net Five in Arlington

Charged with operating a numbers lottery where Bennie Cooper, 59, of 1217 South Rolfe st., Arlington; Blanche Iola Wheeler, 34, and Raymond P. Wheeler, 46, both of 1626 South 14th st., Arlington.

Charged with conducting a game of chance were Nellie Bell McIver, 38, of 1100 block South Queen st., Arlington, and James Redfern, 46, of 1913 Ninth St. nw., Washington.

Zoning Board Defers Gas Station Plea

The District Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday deferred action until August on a request that a gasoline station be permitted on the site of the Boys' Club of Washington clubhouse at Pennsylvania ave. nw. and M st. nw.

Board Member Robert O. Clouser said the board decided to hold up action until it was learned whether the property fitted into plans of the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission.

A club spokesman said an oil company was a prospective buyer of the property, which the club will forsake for new quarters next year.

In another case, the B. Z. A. approved the request of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State for permission to establish an office at 1633 Massachusetts ave. nw. The request was turned down last year on the ground that one of the organization's primary functions was to influence legislation.

In all, the board approved 16 of the 34 cases it heard July 19, turned down 11 and deferred action on 7.

FDR Died Civilian, Surrogate Rules

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 25 (AP). Franklin D. Roosevelt died as a civilian, not as a soldier, a county surrogate ruled today.

The ruling was sought by trustees of the late President's trust estate. They wanted to be sure they would not be held responsible for failing to press for tax advantages granted by the Internal Revenue Code to the estates of men who die in active service.

London, July 25 (U.P.).—Eric Johnston, president of the American Motion Picture Producers Association, said today Premier Joe Stalin is too old to start a new war.

Board Votes Not to Appeal Carter Case

The Arlington School Board does not intend to appeal the Constance Carter discrimination case to the Supreme Court, School Superintendent William A. Early announced last night.

Early said the decision was made after a recommendation by the board's attorney, Lawrence Douglas, during recent conferences.

The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond ruled May 31 that racial discrimination is practiced against pupils in Arlington County's Negro high school.

The Appellate Court decision reversed Judge Albert V. Bryan, of the United States District Court in Alexandria, who dismissed the discrimination charges on December 8, 1949, after two years' litigation.

The suit was brought by Constance Carter, a 17-year-old student at Hoffman-Boston (Negro) High School, who asked that she be given equal educational opportunities with white students or be admitted to the county's white schools.

The Arlington School Board has already begun construction of a Hoffman-Boston Elementary School. Its completion will enable the transfer of 167 elementary school children from the present Hoffman-Boston building, thus providing more facilities for high school students.

Lack of White Paint Perils British Planes

Aboard a Seventh Fleet Carrier Off the Korean Coast, July 25 (U.P.). Vice Admiral Arthur D. Struble, commander of the Seventh Fleet, has a serious problem. He's run out of white paint.

Several times, in sweeps over Korea, American pilots have been on the verge of blasting aircraft, only to discover that the target was a British Seafarer. So it was decided to paint white stripes along the wings of the British planes.

But both the British and Americans are out of white paint.

Freezing Enlistees Is Voted by Congress

John W. Snyder said the Coast Guard probably will have to call up some of its 4850 reservists "at at early date." Current strength of the Coast Guard is 2500 officers and about 20,000 enlisted men. Snyder said there has been discussion to date of transferring the Coast Guard to the Navy, as was done during the war.

(5) Defense Secretary Louis Johnson told reporters the 3.4 billion aircraft procurement fund in the new 10½ billion dollar supplemental defense budget sent to Congress Monday will provide "more than 5000 planes." Under the $185,000,000 item for naval shipbuilding, he declared, the construction of submarines will be "a very urgent" program.

No Work on Super-Carrier

Asked if the navy program includes resumption of work on the "super" aircraft carrier he canceled a year ago, Johnson said it did not.

"There are too many immediate things to do," he added.

Military men, meanwhile, said President Truman's statement that "about 600,000" more men will be added to the armed forces by next June 30 under the present expansion plan may be nearer 700,000. Apparently Mr. Truman was talking about that many being added to the contemplated 1951 totals, and the actual strength today is some 50,000 below this. Also, the new men and reserve units will be brought in as they can be handled, permitting the total to be increased if camps and ships are readied faster than was at first thought possible.

Johnson talked to reporters as he was leaving the White House with Navy Secretary Francis Matthews. Asked about the outlook in Korea, he said:

"Our boys have done a marvelous job over there. We'll have a different story a month from now.

Counter Offensive Later

He made it plain he was not talking about an American offensive then. High military chiefs have said it will not be possible to launch a major offensive until mid-Fall at the earliest and perhaps not before spring.

Congressmen who attended a secret "briefing" on the war situation at the Pentagon came away with mixed feelings of optimism and pessimism.

Short, one of those present, declared in his House speech attacking the Administration:

"As much as I hope we can hold our foothold in Korea, in the next few days we perhaps may be driven into the sea."

But Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.) of Senate Armed Services Committee, who also was present, said:

"I came away very much impressed with the general improvement in the situation, but it is yet far from good."

Other Congressmen familiar with the situation indicated there was nothing said by the Pentagon chiefs greatly changing prior appraisals given some congressional leaders last week.

One member said Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told them it is believed the North Koreans have thrown all their reserves into the fighting. There is no indication that Chinese Communist or Russian troops or airmen have entered the fray, the Congressmen were informed.

The bill "freezing" men in service empowers the President to hold in service for 12 months all enlisted men whose enlistments expire between now and next July 9. Officers also will not be allowed to leave the service, Pentagon chiefs have assured Congress.

In New York, Air Force continental command headquarters said that reserves will be called to active duty beginning Friday.

The first to be called will be the non-flying ROTC graduates, non-flying physicians, men recently discharged, men with the greatest amount of technical training and men whose civilian work has maintained their technical skills.

Those called to active duty will be given 10 days plus travel time to report for duty.

Categories Wanted by Army

In its call for volunteers, the Army said captains, first lieutenants and second lieutenants in the following categories are wanted:

Particularly doctors, dentists, engineers and Infantry officers, but also Chaplains, Medical Service, Ordnance, Signal, Finance, Chemical, Armored, Field and Coast Artillery, nurse and women's medical specialists.

Congressman Short, in his speech, assailed what he called the "dust settling" policy of the State Department and the "impression of false security" created by Secretary Johnson.

"Who's responsible for all of this?" the Missourian demanded. "We've appropriated 50 billion dollars for defense in the last four years. What have we got to show for it?"

"This is one of the most dangerous—in my opinion, the most dangerous—situations ever to confront the American people."

Weighing America's power against that of Russia, Vinson concluded we are "seriously short" in "standing military strength" today.

The Georgian said he is "unsatisfied" with: (1) the proposed new size of the Army as well as the tank expansion plan; (2) the number of aircraft carriers, planes and groups proposed for the Navy and Air Force; The planned new size of the Marines and particularly their air arm; the Navy's anti-submarine program.

and roadblock fire was reported orderly. Most of the First Cavalry troops were reported to have gotten out of Yongdong safely.

General MacArthur's headquarters made it clear, however, that more withdrawals may be necessary before a tank-tight perimeter can be formed to salvage a beachhead for future operations.

MacArthur's operational report early Wednesday listed eight North Korean divisions—probably 50,000 men or more—in the all-out effort to push American troops off the Korean peninsula.

Against these massive forces are only the neewly blooded First Cavalry Division, the Twenty-fifth Division and some assorted South Korean troops. These are taking the brunt of assault that was delayed in the month-long fighting by South Koreans and the badly battered United States Twenty-fourth Division, which has not appeared in recent dispatches.

The bitter campaign to hold on now—and avoid the necessity of winning back a costly beachhead later by amphibious operations from Japan—is settling into a struggle to maintain standing room before the port of Pusan on the southeastern tip. There the American forces are planning to take the frontal assaults in depth, dug in behind a shortened perimeter.

Line Now Too Long

The present stretches on an irregular 200-mile line from north of Pohang, held by Americans on the east coast, to Red-held Haenam on the southwest shore. It is too long to prevent flanking and infiltration while fighting delaying actions against frontal charges.

To counter guerilla-type infiltrations, the United States Army banned all Korean civilians from the narrowing battle zone. They will be herded from villages overrun by fightng to positions behind American lines. Any caught roving in civilian clothing may be shot.

Other measures had failed to prevent saboteurs and turn-coats from striking behind American lines.

North Korean forces on the west drove south down the Yellow Sea coast while the heavy fighting was concentrated below fallen Taejon in the interior. Today they were on the loose with tanks and automatic weapons along the southern shore.

MacArthur's 12:50 a. m. (10:50 a.m., Tuesday, EDT) announcement reported elements of the Reds' fourth division continued to roam in the deep southern west coast area without serious ground opposition so far. They were harassed by United States and British naval planes. The Communist forces were about 100 air miles west of Pusan in that zone.

General MacArthur's early morning communique, covering operations to Tuesday morning—Korean time—did not mention the pullback from Yongdong, a town on the double-track railway and roads leading through Taegu southeast to Pusan. But it said:

"Stubborn United Nations forces in the western and central sectors continued to hold against superior forces as of Tuesday morning. Further withdrawals may be necessary, however."

The communique said the offensive continued Tuesday without letup despite severed communications lines and heavy losses suffered by the attacking Reds.

As the First Cavalry withdrew to the east of Yongdong, air observers reported Red forces were moving both south and north in a pincers drive around abandoned American positions on the highway. Flanked American elements had to fight their way out.

The North Koreans moved with effective camouflage—men disguised as bushes, tanks under cover of foliage.

The First Cavalry, buying time, stood up throughout Tuesday before the overpowering assault on the Taejon-Yongdong-Taegu-Pusan roads. Fields dispatches then reported the withdrawal from Yongdong on the line toward Taegu, which is some 50 miles to the southeast and the potential last standing place before Pusan itself.

The creeping enemy advance from the west, along the extreme southern coast, was harried by British and American carrier planes. Their operation was mounted on less than 24 hours' notice.

The carrier task force refueled and rearmed at sea and struck front-line targets north of captured Kwangju with 44 sorties.

The only success reported in MacArthur's early Wednesday announcement was a one-mile advance north of Kwangju on the east coast by "friendly forces"—South Koreans—in an operation that put them three miles south of Yongdok. This is the coastal town beaten to rubble by naval guns and later recaptured by the Reds.

On the central front north of Yongdong, Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert reported that the 25th—Tropic Lightning—Division beat off two Red attacks with artillery and infantry support. Then, he reported, part of the 25th abandoned some outposts Monday night and trapped the Reds with flanking fire as they tried to take over the positions early Tuesday.

American and Australian planes gearing their operations to the holding campaign of the First Cavalry, destroyed or damaged 21 Red tanks Monday, field dispatches said. They also struck at 15 bridges, armored cars and enemy supply lines in 64 missions flown with 191 sorties on the Taejon-Yongdong highway front.

Ten tanks were killed and 11 damaged, an Air Force spokesman said, in these raids. The planes also ranged over the Kwangju area in the mid-southwest where the Red forces were opposed on the ground only by South Korean police.

The Fifth Air Force announced it is stepping up night operations against Communists moving in long columns under cover of darkness. Two Mustangs strafed a truck column west of Yongdong by moonlight Monday night.

Maj. Gen. Earl E. Patridge at Fifth Air Force headquarters said the invaders have been moving convoys 25 miles long at night with motor lights on and added: "We've got to pin them down at night as we have them pinned in the day."

General MacArthur said Air Force fighters and bombers continued close support of ground troops with damaging effect and noted: "North Korean aircraft are estimated to be approximately 65 in number, with 43 Yak-7 and Yak-9 (Russian-made) fighters and 22 Il-10 ground attack aircraft."

The Far East Air Force meanwhile announced there were indications that the North Koreans were trying to restore Kimpo airfield, near Seoul.

Eighth Army headquarters said two enemy planes attacked allied forces Tuesday near Hamchang on the central sector.

B-29 bombers reported "good to excellent" results on rail and highway bridges at Konju, a base for the Red drive south and eastward pointing at Pusan. They ranged over Red targets as far as Inchon, the west coast port for Seoul on the Yellow Sea.

Army Food 'Bargains' Opposed

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan is opposed to selling Government-owned eggs, milk, butter or other perishables to the armed services, Veterans' Administration or other Government agencies at less than cost.

On the other hand, he told the House Agriculture Committee yesterday, he favors an Administration proposal that would permit the President to sell the commodities to the public at less than cost as a price control weapon to prevent inflation. Such a proposal is before both House and Senate Banking Committees as a part of the Administration's economic controls bill.

Brannan and several members of the committee agreed that the Army and VA should buy their supplies in the open market, just like anyone else.

But they disagreed violently on the proposal to sell the piled-up commodities to the public as an "influence to stem an inflationary market." Representative Stephen Pace (D., Ga.) said he assumed the latter proposition is a "temporary measure until price ceilings can be put into effect."

"It is the first time a suggestion has been made to use price supports to control prices," he said. "It is the first time the farmers have been told that the support price is the market price. There are dreadful consequences wrapped up in this law."

The White House draft said the measure is desired "for the purpose of stabilizing the market, including the discouragement and prevention of undue speculation, fluctuation, and enhancement in price, and for the purpose of meeting unusual demand."

Not only did House Agriculture Committee members attack it but Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) of the Senate Banking Committee said the proposal would permit the President to sell surplus farm commodities at 10 to 30 percent under present market prices. There were indications last night that the proposal would be entirely removed from the controls bill.

If the Armed Services took over the Commodity Credit Corporation's tremendous stocks of deteriorating perishables, Brannan said it would "displace consumption habits and upset the normal channels of trades," which, he pointed out "the law forbids us to do."

The farm law provides that CCC cannot sell any commodities for less than cost plus 5 percent handling charges. Because nobody is willing to pay thta, the Committee is considering giving CCC an additional fifty million dollars to put the goods in attractive containers and pay the freight to give them away to either domestic or foreign welfare groups.

Republicans on the House Committee questioned Brannan closely about selling supplies to the Armed Services. Representative Charles B. Hoeven (R., Iowa) insisted refusal to turn Government-owned stocks over to Government agencies would be hard to explain.

"The American taxpayer doesn't understand," said Hoeven, "why he should be called upon to pay taxes to buy food for the Armed Services and for VA and also to pay taxes to support the price support program.

"He can't understand why these supplies can't be disposed of to the armed forces even at a loss."

Another Republican, Representative August H. Andresen (Minn.) dipped into the argument to comment that it would "be better to turn the deteriorating supplies over to the Armed Services before they spoil."

The ranking Republican on the committee, however, disagreed with Andresen and Hoeven. Representative Clifford L. Hope (R., Kans.) agreed with Brannan that to turn the Government-owned stocks over to the Armed Services would be defeating the point of the price support law. He likened it to a recently defeated proposal to give the Economic Cooperative Administration the Government surpluses for European relief in place of cash.

During the questioning the committee roamed from discussion of recent heavy losses in the potato program to methods to induce foreign welfare groups to accept American foodstuffs delivered at their doors freight paid.

Job Rights On Military Leave Listed

Conditions to be met by persons entering the armed services in order to insure their reemployment rights were listed yesterday by Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin.

While the statutes do not require any particular form of notice to employers, it is desirable that anyone leaving for service give written notice and inquire as to the employer's policy on placing those on military leave, Tobin said. Existing laws require that a person must:

1. Leave a position other than temporary in the employ of a private employer or the United States Government for the purpose of entering upon active duty in the armed forces.

2. Satisfactorily complete his military service and receive a certificate to that effect.

3. Enlist only once since June 24, 1948, for a period of not longer than three years or, if a reservist, serve for a period of not longer than three years or as soon after such period as he is able to obtain orders relieving him from active duty.

4. Apply for reemployment within 90 days after he is relieved from duty or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year.

5. If in the employ of a private employer, the employer's circumstances must not have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to reinstate the ex-servicemen. However, the statute declares it to be the sense of Congress that the ex-serviceman shall be restored in a manner which will give him, upon his return, the status he would have had had he remained continuously in his employment.

6. If disabled during military service and not physically qualified to perform the duties of the position he left, the ex-serviceman is to be restored to such other position as he is able to fill.

No Sugar Flow Boost in View, Brannan Says

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan yesterday told Congress he had "no specific move in mind" to permit more sugar to be imported into the United States.

Brannan told his questioner, Representative Eugene D. O'Sullivan (D., Nebr.), that "it is very inappropriate for me to make public comment on a matter of this kind."

Brannan's remark came as sugar dealers in New York reported a letup in warscare buying. An official of the Grand Union Co., a chain grocery in New York, Pennsylvania and New England, said sales were tapering off this week. However, he admitted, they were selling three times as much as usual "even for the canning season."

Refineries were working 24 hours a day to meet wholesalers' demands for sugar. In Washington, Luis Machado, Cuban Ambassador, assured housewives there is no shortage of sugar supplies. After presenting his credentials to President Truman, the new envoy told newsmen: "Just tell us how much sugar you want and you can have it."

'Monopoly' Is Charged

The Federal Trade Commission charged five Standard Oil companies and their subsidiary, Atlas Supply Co., Newark, N. J., with "monopolistic practices" yesterday in the purchase and resale of tires, batteries and auto accessories.

A three-count complaint accused them of consipiring to restrain trade, of illegally receiving brokerage fees and of making price discriminations in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Antitrust Act.

Besides Atlas, the complaint named Standard Oil Company of Ohio, Standard Oil of Kentucky, Standard Oil of California, Standard Oil of Indiana, and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

The commission said that in 1929 Standard companies began buying from Atlas and reselling a line of accessories known as "TBA" products.

The complaint said the companies purchase "TBA" products through Atlas, "which they caused to be organized and incorporated."

It accused the companies of "combination and conspiracy to monopolize trade" in the purchase, sale and distribution of "TBA" products. It said the companies "agreed and conspired among themselves to purchase the said commodities at illegally discriminate prices and to receive illegal commissions, brokerage or other compensation."

FHA Quits Low-Cost Field

sets up mortgage insurance provisions for small homes in outlying areas, maximum limits also go back for owner-builder from $5600 to $4750, and for operator-builder from $5000 to $4250.

Section 203 2(b) 2(d), Berringer explained, was designed for persons wishing to buy a house for $9000 or less. Under its high cost provisions, he said, FHA required only a $450 down payment from the purchaser of a $9000, 3-bedroom house.

UP to $1400.

Now, he said, such a house requires a $1400 down payment.

As a result, Barringer declared, "We aren't looking for any business under this section. We didn't have any before its limits were raised under the high cost provisions, and we don't expect any now that they're back where they were."

When Greater Washington was declared a high cost area and Section 203 2(b) 2(d)'s limits raised, the action was expected to put FHA effectively in the business of underwriting the financing of homes costing $9000 and less.

The District Insuring Office and builders were confident a considerable amount of low-cost home building would be carried out under the higher mortgage limits. Designation of Greater Washington as a high-cost area had been sought by the Home Builders Association here.

The area was designated high-cost, Barringer said, for two main reasons:

1. The going rate for union labor averaged out to slightly more than $2.48 an hour, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics—the fifth highest hourly wage rate in the 85 most populous cities in the Nation.

2. Previous mortgage limits under the section (the same limits that were put back into effect yesterday) had proved too low.

And, as a result of yesterday's action, FHA's most popular type of financing will continue to be carried out under provisions which authorize loan insurance up to 90 percent of the first $7000 and 65 percent of the next $4000 of a home's cost.

Thus, Barringer explained, FHA will insure up to $8250 on a $10,000 house. The purchaser, he said, is required to make up the $1750 difference.

Maryland Girl Found at Home Of Grandmother

Virginia Lee Hoile, 7, who was reportedly carried off from her father's Hillside, Md., home Monday, was found yesterday at the home of her maternal grandmother, with whom she had been living until two months ago, police said last night.

Virginia's parents are divorced. Prince Georges County police said custody of the child had been awarded to Virginia's mother, now remarried. About two months ago, Virginia moved from her grandmother's home in Silver Spring to the home of her father, Henry Hoile, 6256 Marlboro pike.

FBI men were called to assist county police Monday when witnesses said Virginia was carried off in a car. The current Mrs. Henry Hoile, Virginia's stepmother, said yesterday she would sue to bring the child back to its father's home.

would slightly lighten their former impact. The income-tax splitting (community property tax) privilege and the $600 individual exemptions voted in 1948 would be retained.

2. For corporations, a 25 percent tax on the first $25,000 of earnings and a 45 percent tax on the balance. Corporate taxes now average 23 percent on corporations earning under $25,000 and the maximum present rate is 38 percent.

3. Retention of the tax loophole-closing, dividend withholding and life insurance company tax provisions of the House-passed bill.

Mr. Truman recommended that the individual income tax increase take effect in the last quarter of this year with a withholding tax step-up from 15 to 18 percent, starting October 1.

Would Be Retroactive

The corporate tax increase would be made fully retroactive to cover all 1950 earnings.

Senator George termed the latter recommendation "highly controversial" and said his committee was "likely" to take some exception to it. He said he thought the corporate increase, like the individual tax hike, should not take effect before the year's final quarter.

The Treasury estimated the largest share of the 5 billion dollar increase, or some 3 billion dollars, will fall on indrviduals. Departmental experts said corporations would pay about 1.5 billion dollars of the increase, and the remaining half-billion would result from plugging loopholes.

The President's letter to George followed Treasury conferences Monday with George and Doughton and their indicated willingness to go along. Mr. Truman thanked George for his "cooperation in working out arrangements" for prompt action.

Terming immediate tax action "imperative," he urged that "every effort" be made to finance as much of the new military budget as possible through taves, and cautioned:

To Prevent Profiteering

"We must design taxation methods which prevent profiteering and distribute the tax burden fairly among the different groups of our people."

He told George that "clearly this will not meet our long-run revenue requirements."

"As an interim step, however, it will have a timely effect on tax revenues and our financial preparedness," he said.

"I believe that prompt interim legislation along these lines will provide tangible evidence of our determination to conduct our national finances in a sound manner, consistent with the national effort we are required to make.

"It will also be a major step toward preventing inflation during the time necessary to develop a carefully balanced tax program suited to our longer range requirements."

Under the proposed individual increases a single person earning $3000 would pay $488 instead of $409 as at present. The tax on the same income was $485 in 1945 and the 1944 peak wartime tax was $585.

A married person without dependents) earning $8000 a year would pay $1416, compared with $1206 under present law. The same individual would have paid $1577 under the 1945 rate and $1885 under the 1944 tax.

A $10,000 married person with two dependents would be taxed $1592 compared with $1361 at present. He would have paid $1862 in 1945 and $2245 at the 1944 wartime crest.

The Treasury said the new corporate rates would be 4 percentage points higher than the corporate increase provided in the recently passed House tax bill.

Here's how the proposed changes would up present taxes of corporations in various earnings brackets:

A 4 percent increase over present law for companies having $5000 net income, 3 percent increase at $10,000, 2 percent at $25,000, practically no change at $30,000, a 3 percent decrease at $50,000, a 1.33 percent decrease at $60,000, and no change at $71,429.

McCarthy Accuses a 'Mr. X' As High State Department Red

Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.) said yesterday that a high State Department official is a Communist, and Senator Morse (R., Ore.) replied that the man McCarthy was talking about is Edward G. Posniak, a 39-year-old, Moscow-born economist.

Posniak

Posniak worked for Morse in 1936, when Morse was an assistant to the Attorney General.

Morse later signed an affidavit saying Posniak was a loyal citizen then.

The naming of Posniak gave a dramatic and unexpected climax to a speech by McCarthy.

He had not mentioned Posniak by name, but had referred to a "Mr. X." Evidence produced by an FBI undercover agent, McCarthy said, had proved "Mr. X" was a Communist, and that he married a Communist.

"A complete and air-tight case," McCarthy said. "A case so air-tight that it would be accepted in any court in the land."

While McCarthy was speaking, Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), left the Senate floor.

But he returned. And he said that the man McCarthy was talking about had an affidavit signed by Senator Morse in his loyalty file.

Like McCarthy, McMahon named no names. He called "Mr. X" Edward.

Posniak called the charges "vicious and libelous."

"The charge that I am, or ever was, a Communist is completely and utterly false," he said in a statement.

He said he left Russia at the age of 8 "because of the Communist revolution, from which my parents were refugees."

The State Department Register says Posniak was naturalized in 1939, and began work as a State Department economist on October 10, 1945. He previously had served in the Justice Department, the Public Housing Authority, the Office of Strategic Services and the Army as a second lieutenant.

He now is in the Eastern European Branch of the department, and makes between $7600 and $8600 a year.

Morse said he had had no contact with Posniak since 1938. But he said that when he knew him, Posniak had been an emphatic opponent of all forms of totalitarianism, including communism.

Morse said it would come as a great surprise to him if Posniak had developed any such sympathies since then.

This was McCarthy's first formal Senate speech since a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee report, signed by three Democratic Senators, had branded McCarthy's previous charges "a fraud and a hoax."

An FBI undercover agent, McCarthy said, reported that "Mrs. X" was a member of the Communist Party, "both before and after her marriage and that she was active in the Young Communist League."

McCarthy said the case is one of the 81 State Department loyalty files examined by the subcommittee.

But, he told the Senate, he doesn't think this material was in the files when the subcommittee got a look at it.

Included in the purported loyalty files were the statements of 13 persons—associates or acquaintances of "Mr. X"—who said they either considered the man loyal or knew of no reason to think he is disloyal.

McCarthy did not mention these statements in his prepared address. But he did say the State Department Loyalty Board, on a 2-to-1 vote, had cleared "Mr. X" because "some of his coworkers did not know he was a member of the party."

At the Loyalty Board hearing, McCarthy continued, "Mr. X" was represented by "Attorney Westwood of Dean Acheson's law firm."

McCarthy said Westwood got the Loyalty Board to reduce the original charge that "Mr. X" had acted in the interest of a foreign government. The reduced charge, he said, was that "Mr. X" belonged to two subversive organizations, one of which was the Communist Party.

2 Area Casualties Reported in Korea

lear, Mrs. Taynton said, when they wandered into an Army recruiting office to "se what they could get."

When they found they were eligible for commissions, Mrs. Taynton said, "they grabbed at them."

Born in Washington, Lieutenant Taynton was graduated from Western High School. He attended the Coast Guard Academy for a time, later joined the Navy flight training program, but resigned after his marriage three years ago. He left for Japan in September, 1949.

The younger Mrs. Taynton, 23, who lives with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Munson, said her husband "always loved the service life."

He and Thomas had a collection of uniforms from every branch of the service and loved to strut around in them, she said.

Taynton was always a "happy-go-lucky guy," according to his wife. "He always could crack a joke, regardless of the situation. I'll bet he had something funny to say about the bullets whizzing by."

The Tayntons met each other at 16, while both were students at Western High. They eloped on Thanksgiving Day, 1946, and were married secretly in Columbia, S. C. Both were in college—she at the University of North Carolina, he in the Navy's flight training program at the University of South Carolina.

In a Mother's Day letter to Mrs. Banta, Private Banta said he was due to come home this month but "wasn't sure he could make it because of the situation there."

Born in Annapolis, Private Banta was a graduate of Bell Vocational High School. When he couldn't get a job as an electrician, Mrs. Banta said, he joined the Army in December, 1947.

In June, 1948, Private Banta left for Japan to join the Thirty-fourth Infantry Regiment of the Twenty-fourth Division. He took electrician training in the Army, his mother said.

The 41 casualty lists released by the Defense Department show a total of 43 killed, 8 dead of wounds or injuries, 246 wounded, 79 injured and 332 missing in action.

Court Hears Bankruptcy Case of Pastor

The tangled business affairs of the Rev. and Mrs. Floyd N. Bradley and their church were the subject of a Federal District Court bankruptcy hearing in Alexandria yesterday.

The one man who might have helped unsnarl the tangle—the Rev. Mr. Bradley himself—was under a doctor's care in Philadelphia, unable to attend.

The 46-year-old minister of the First Nazarene Church in Arlington was judged bankrupt June 24 after he turned part-time contractor and built 27 homes on church land to try to pay off the church mortgage.

In yesterday's hearing before Referee Melvin Wallinger, the minister's wife, Mrs. Linda M. Bradley, claimed debts of $116,679 and assets of $86,050 as a result of the building venture.

During the 90-minute session, the Rev. Mr. Bradley was described by his parishoners as "a one-man organization" who had title to the houses he built in his own name and kept all of his own records.

Oren R. Lewis, attorney for Bankruptcy Trustee Roy H. Halquist, said he understood the Rev. Mr. Bradley had paid $7050 against the church mortgage, which Mrs. Bradley estimated at about $85,000.

One church trustee, Harry Vinson, of 2013 N. 21st., Arlington, said the trustees had "signed numerous notes" at the Rev. Mr. Bradley's request, "but for just what purpose we do not know."

Roland Matmueller, the church's Sunday school superintendent, testified it was "common knowledge" that the Rev. Mr. Bradley was in the contracting business "to benefit the church," but that the congregation was not "kept aware of the situation."

Referee Wallinger said he would ask attorneys for both sides to help him determine whether the Bradleys acted "as agents of the church" in the contracting venture, or entirely on their own. If they acted as agents, he said, he could absolve the Bradleys of their debts and the church might have to assume them.

News Criticisms Of Korea Actions 'Not Tolerated'

Tokyo, July 25 (AP).—The Eighth Army public information office in Korea issued a memorandum to correspondents today that they no longer need to submit their copy for a security check but that "criticism of command decisions or of the conduct of allied soldiers on the battlefield will not be tolerated."

The memorandum warned that newsmen failing to comply with these or previous instructions would be subject to "disciplinary action."

Reporters were told they could voluntarily submit stories for security checks if they wished to protect themselves against unintentional violations of security.

Cruises Canceled

Meanwhile, the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit at Anacostia canceled all two-week training cruises away from the station.

The four Naval air squadrons now operating in Pensacola, Fla., will be permitted to complete their training, but all other squadrons will take their summer cruises at Anacostia.

Before the cancelation, Anacostia Reserve squarons were scheduled to spend two weeks at Quonset Point, R. I., or Jacksonville, Fla. The Marine Reserve fighter squadron's scheduled cruise at El Toro, Calif., August 6-19, has also been called off.

The Army and Air Force reported yesterday that 35 of 42 applicants had passed preliminary tests for enlistments. Twenty-one Army recruits and 12 Air Force recruits, previously processed, were sworn in.

Robey Sworn In

Among the Army recruits was 19-year-old Norman E. Robey, of 1732 L st. ne., who asked to be sent to Korea "to even the score" for his brother, Robert, 21, who is reported missing in action.

Navy recruiters yesterday found 14 of 32 applicants fit for enlistment. In addition, three enlisted reserves asked to be returned to active duty. Thirteen recruits were sworn in.

The Marine Recruiting office reported that it had enlisted more men in the past month than in the past three years. Three of 31 applicants yesterday came up to Leatherneck specifications.

Four enlisted men and two officers who had been notified previously in the Navy's "selective" callup reported yesterday.

Officers reporting yesterday were Lieut. William J. Donnelly, jr., 27, of 1644 Irving st. nw., and Lieut. (j.g.) William H. Moore, 24, of 1712 Fort Davis st. se. Names of the enlisted men were not released.

Donnelly, who served as an engineering officer on a supply ship in World War II, is a lawyer. Moore is a new car salesman for Frank Small, jr., and served with the amphibious forces during the war.

Senate Committee Approves Niagara Pact With Canada

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday approved a treaty with Canada dividing the water resources of the Niagara River between the two nations.

The treaty, according to Federal Power Commission estimates, will allow the United States to triple its power production from the Niagara. Canada also will be able to increase its Niagara power production.

In addition to dividing up the use of Niagara's waters, the treaty provides for maintenance of a reserve for navigation and to maintain the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls.

The Senate committee wrote in a reservation which will give Congress the final say as to how this country uses its share of Niagara waters.

Tell It To The FBI

President Truman has given the country a timely reminder that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is the proper agency to deal with any attempts at espionage, sabotage or subversion. The FBI was first given this responsibility by President Roosevelt in 1939 and has discharged it ever since, especially during World War II, with remarkable effectiveness and precision. There is peculiar need for centralized authority in counterintelligence work. Therefore the President has directed that all local law enforcement officers, patriotic organizations and individuals report suspicious acts to the nearest field representative of the FBI, leaving investigation and protection of the national security to that exceedingly competent and experienced organization.

The President's warning was needed more, perhaps, to quell vigilante efforts than to alert the country to enemy-directed activities. Some very overheated measures have been taken lately in the name of patriotism in various parts of the country. Birmingham, Ala., for example, has adopted an ordinance banning Communists from the community however lawful their conduct—and extending the ban to anyone found in "voluntary association" in any non-public place with a known Communist. The chief of police, who is credited with having dreamed up this interesting bit of authoritarianism, seems never to have heard that the United States has a written Constitution guaranteeing certain rights even to the most despised individuals. In Los Angeles, to cite another case in point, men were beaten brutally by a gang the other day because they refused to state whether or not they were Communists.

Hysteria of this sort can do a great deal of damage to national unity as well as a great deal of injustice to individuals. We do not need to deal with the Communist problem by lynch law. Coolness and common sense and a respect for our own institutions will serve us a great deal more effectively. Anyone in possession of information indicating activities dangerous to the security of the United States should tell it to the FBI. Beyond that, the best way to serve the country is to keep our shirts on and respect the rights of our neighbors.

150 Million Americans

The census figures released by Secretary Sawyer are an eloquent reflection of what has been happening to the United States since the turn of the century. In 50 years our population has approximately doubled. And while the numbers have been growing, the people have been swarming into industrial cities. Urban America is on the march. To be sure, the farming population, with its high birth rate, has supplied a large part of the increase. But men and women from the farms have flocked to the cities. The United States now has 106 cities with more than 100,000 inhabitants. And these are no longer confined largely to the Eastern seaboard and the Great Lakes States. Many of them are in the West and South. America as a whole is engaged in an intense race for industrialization.

What has happened in the West is especially striking. California alone accounts for about one-fifth of the country's entire growth between 1940 and 1950. The three Pacific Coast States added 4.6 million to their population. Even the vast open spaces of Arizona and Nevada have shown remarkable gains. California now occupies second place among the States, having (according to the preliminary figures) passed Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio. The country is gaining new balance. Its continental scope is becoming meaningful in terms of population growth and industrialization as well as in terms of area and distance.

The push of population toward the periphery is especially noteworthy. The Census Bureau tells us that four fifths of the country's population lives in the 28 States bordering the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coastlines and the Great Lakes. The rapid growth of these areas is no new trend. It was in evidence several decades ago, and tends to emphasize the great advantages of water transportation in our industrial economy.

The millions who have swarmed into the Great Lakes and coastal States have come, or at least a large part of them, from the great plains of the Middle West. The five States that appear to have lost population from 1940 to 1950 are Arkansas, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Dakota and Oklahoma. Other Middle Western States, such as Kansas, Missouri and South Dakota experienced relatively small gains. Agricultural machinery which enables farms to produce more food with less manpower is one of the explanations. But it is not the whole answer. Men have left the farms because they have found good economic opportunities elsewhere. Of course, this movement was greatly stimulated by World War II, and after such an upheaval a country never fully reverts to its former distribution of population.

The over-all impression one gets from the preliminary census figures is that of a dynamic nation still growing at a rapid rate. Our resources are still enormous and the people have developed greater skill than ever before in exploiting them for the general welfare. The capacity of the American people for growth and for improvement of their standard of living has been repeatedly demonstrated. That, at least, is a hopeful sign in this era when vast responsibilities have fallen upon us as a people and when our way of life is challenged as it has seldom been challenged before.

10½ Billions For Arms

A fundamental revision of American defense strategy may be seen in the President's request for 10½ billion dollars for new arms. In the recent past defense efforts have centered on building a small striking force against all-out war, to be used in company with forces supplied by our allies. Now, in light of the Korean experience, it is also necessary to cope with a new phenomenon, the limited war or police action. Both types of defense preparation are essential, and to some extent they necessitate two different kinds of forces. The theory behind additional preparation for police actions is not that American forces actually will be committed all over the globe, but that if we are strong enough to handle new troubles they may not arise in the first place.

Not much of the additional money, if it is voted, will be of direct help in Korea because of the time factor. It will, however, allow the armed forces to use what men and materials they need in the knowledge that they can be replenished. Specifically, it will permit the Army to fill up the divisions that have been depleted to rush men to the front; it will also permit much more concentration on weapons production. The money will enable the Air Force to replace its losses and get a good start on tactical aviation expansion; it will permit the Navy to increase the size of the Marine Corps, to reactivate some ships and to acquire new planes. The 10½ billions probably represent a down payment rather than the full cost of what is to come. There is much talk of more money for the military assistance program; moreover, the present request will not enable the Army to acquire the permanent additional divisions it needs.

One reason why so much money is requested may be seen in the cost of individual items involved. A single fully equipped B-36 bomber, for example, costs $4,732,000; new jet fighters cost in the neighborhood of one million dollars each; a medium tank costs approximately $120,000, and some new guns nearly $400,000. It is not surprising, then, that nearly half the additional funds—4½ billions—is earmarked for the Air Force. The Army will come second with slightly over three billions, and the Navy and Marines are slated to receive something over 2½ billions. Put another way, one third of the money will go for aircraft procurement; one fourth for tanks, guns and electronic equipment; another fourth for maintenance of existing equipment; and some $1,342,000,000 for pay, clothing and allowances of the 600,000 additional men required by the armed forces.

Whether this is the right division of funds no one can say, though the fact that there is not a simple cutting of the pie into thirds is itself an encouraging indication that unification is really working. Certainly the Korean experience does not lessen the need for a strategic air force, antisubmarine protection and similar measures for use in all-out war. It does, however, point up the importance of ground troops and ground weapons as well as tactical aviation, and it should speed the development of the new weapons.

The Administration's defense program prior to the outbreak in Korea was based upon the assumption that if war came it would be a major war directly with Russia. A revision of that estimate has become necessary, but the country will still have to take calculated risks for the reason that it simply does not have the substance to provide for every possible contingency. There is no more excuse now than before for nonessentials or extravagance. And if the Nation is to bear this tremendous new burden, it is more than ever important to keep unification working.

Civil Rule For Guam

August 1 is the date which has been officially fixed for the transfer of Guam from naval to civilian rule. This transfer was supposed to take place by presidential order on July 1 but was postponed for 30 days by the President, presumably because of the eruption in Korea. We trust that there will not be another postponement. Administration of the island is already actually in civilian hands, and a shift of authority from the Navy Department to the Interior Department would in no way impair the efficiency of naval operations in the area. Indeed, it would relieve the Navy of the burden of administering the island's internal affairs.

Guam was acquired from Spain half a century ago under an agreement which committed the United States to promote its growth toward self-government. It is high time for that agreement to be fulfilled. The House has already passed a bill, due to come up on the consent calendar of the Senate today, to establish an organic law giving Guamanians American citizenship, the access they now lack to the courts of the United States and the guarantee of a bill of rights. These minimum attributes of freedom belong as a matter of natural right to any people; the people of Guam have earned them in particular by their suffering and their devotion to the United States during the war against Japan.

Passage of the organic act and realization of the transfer of administrative authority from the Navy to the Interior Department will strengthen the bonds between Guam and this country and thus enhance our security in the Pacific. These measures will serve, too, as a fresh demonstration of American adherence to democratic principles. Both should be given effect without any further delay.

Why They Fight

Even though the loss of Yongdong and the success of the Korean Communists along the west coast were anticipated, they are discouraging. Military authorities are still confident that they can stabilize the American line in the Korean mountains and hold the supply port of Pusan. But the bloody actions in which Americans and South Koreans have been yielding ground are sobering commentaries on the fanaticism of the enemy.

What makes the North Koreans fight so fiercely? The usual experience with satellites has been that their armies have shown more braggadocio than mettle. Not so here. Not only do the North Koreans show the results of extensive training (some of it, no doubt, acquired in the Chinese Communist armies); not only have they had, up until now, superior ground weapons and the momentum that comes from victories; not only have they shown the Russian (and Oriental) disregard for human life in using costly mass assaults; they also must believe deeply in something. Men do not fight like this if they think they are mere cat's-paws.

Is it unification of all Korea? Land reform? So simple a thing as rice? In any event it is apparent that the Communists have managed to capture the higher allegiance of the North Koreans, to indoctrinate them with a faith and to channelize that faith to their purposes. Even allowing for prodding and for the fear of death at the hands of the Americans instilled by political commissars, the morale of the Communists is formidable.

It is no disrespect to the bravery and resourcefulness of American soldiers to point out that belief can only be conquered by belief. Americans have been dilatory about propagandizing the meaning of freedom. Even though the morale of American troops in Korea may be good, it is important for them to understand why they are fighting. It is even more important that the Koreans and the people of Asia generally know why American soldiers have gone 5000 miles to fight and die in the mud of Korea. That is why it is so crucially important for the United States and the United Nations to declare their aims in Korea—and to get those aims to the people, not in the form of abstract principles, but in terms that the small farmer in the rice paddy can grasp.

Security Council

The presidency of the United Nations Security Council is supposed to pass on August 1 into the hands of the Soviet delegate, Yakov A. Malik, whose country is currently boycotting all U. N. bodies and is lending a good deal of aid and comfort to defiance of the U. N.'s authority in Korea. This interesting anomaly results from a Council rule that the presidency shall rotate on an alphabetical basis from month to month. But of course the Soviet Union has absented itself from Council meetings ever since the first of the year. And there is no reason to expect that Mr. Malik will be on hand to receive the honor that is his due. This is just as well in the circumstances, for the Security Council is now committed to a course of action in Korea which he cannot undo and which is most distasteful to his government.

The dilemma which his absence will present to the other members of the Council does not seem a very serious one. They can pass the presidency on to the delegate next in line who happens to be Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Great Britain; or they can extend the term of Arne Sunde of Norway, now in office. The Council's rule is that meetings must be summoned by the president; but this is a rule of its own making and can no doubt be changed at its own pleasure. The Soviet boycott cannot be permitted to disrupt the Council's work.

NLRB Chairman

In nominating Paul M. Herzog for a second five-year term as chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, President Truman made it plain that he had applied to the situation a form of selective service. "I know you had desired particularly to relinquish your duties on August 1," the President wrote to Mr. Herzog. "But the times are grave. All circumstances considered, I feel that I have no recourse except to ask you to continue to give your Government the benefit of your wisdom and your long experience." So, perforce, Mr. Herzog stays in harness. From the point of view of the national interest in this crucial period, the presidential draft and Mr. Herzog's ungrudging acceptance of it deserve warm applause.

Mr. Herzog has served as chairman of the NLRB since 1945. His tenure embraced, therefore, the difficulties of post-war reconversion and of adaptation to the Taft-Hartley Act, which drastically changed the board's composition, functions and procedures. The job has certainly not been an easy one, although he has done it with very little fanfare. He has dealt with labor and management in so fair and even-handed a fashion that his reappointment will be warmly indorsed on both sides. The country can feel relief that he is sticking at his post in the period of stress that lies ahead.

Civil Rule For Guam

Your editorials, "Puerto Rico Left Out" (July 18) and "Statehood Now" (July 19), stress the point that there is a need, particularly at this time, for the United States to set an example consistent with democratic traditions in the treatment of dependent areas.

We desire to add one more example of the treatment of dependent areas where the United States is in imminent danger of acting unwisely. On June 30, the long-planned transfer of the administration of Guam from military rule to civilian government was postponed from July 1 to August 1.

As H. R. 7273, a bill to provide a civil government for Guam, nears Senate action (scheduled for Wednesday), Guamanians stir uneasily at the thought that further postponement of the transfer may cause the death of H. R. 7273. This bill was passed by the House on voice vote on May 23. President Truman has consistently stated his approval of both the transfer of Guam government from the Navy, a military agency, to one better equipped and trained in civil administration, the Department of the Interior, and passage of organic legislation. Both measures have been a basic part of the President's civil rights program.

Patriotic Americans and democratic peoples watch with the grave apprehension that further postponement will provide ammunition for Communist accusations of American imperialism, broken promises, military domination, etc.—accusations which the United States can ill afford to brook at this critical time.

Assistant Editor, Guam Echo.

"Abstinence"

I believe The Washington Post would do a service both to its Catholic and non-Catholic readers by adding this postscript to the rather confusing story carried July 19 under the headline: "'Abstinence' Order Hinted By Church."

The Catholic Church believes in God's providence, that He will always place at man's disposal the means to sustain himself. It knows, too, that God allows situations like population congestion to arise which demand heroic sacrifice on the part of some groups and great charity on the part of others. The Church is not blind to the hard personal problems in areas where there are too many people. But instead of asking: Why don't couples who want more children think of the good of society? it asks: Why doesn't society think of the good of couples who want more children? It also asks: May a nation with vast unpopulated tracts close its doors to people crowded out of other lands?

Secondly, the Post story said that "the article indicated the Church means to maintain its opposition to contraception on the ground it is 'marital fraud.'" The Church has and must always maintain such opposition, for the plain reason that contraception violates nature's law. The story goes on to say that Catholic theologians feel that it might be wise at times to curb fecundity. Catholic theologians have always taught that connected with the right of a couple to have children, there is an obligation to consider their ability to take care of them.

Thirdly, the idea that the Church will urge virginity because of threatening overpopulation needs some explanation. The fact is that the Church encourages virginity on a personal basis, for a supernatural motive, for those who are fitted for it. It would never suggest, and still less "order," mass-scale virginity, and never for the reason that it might solve population problems. As to suggesting that married couples practice periodic or complete sexual abstinence, if it ever came to that, the Church would be in the position of asking that they make this sacrifice because God seeks it of them, instead of taking the other way of violating God's law through artificial birth control. But it would never invade the boudoir and "order" abstinence.

CLARENCE M. ZENS,
Bureau of Information, National Catholic Welfare Conference.

"Bad Appointment"

Referring to a recent editorial in the Post entitled "Bad Appointment" why contrast the services of Mr. Pike of the Atomic Energy Commission and General Fleming, newly nominated Undersecretary of Commerce for Transportation.

Mr. Pike is a private citizen free to choose his own career and carry out his own ideas. General Fleming is a retired Army career man whose policies have been shaped by carrying out assignments of which he has had small choice. Some of those assignments (and they were not all easy ones) have been to administer the polices of superior officials.

If more professional soldiers in times past had done as well in constructive assignment as has General Fleming the world would be much better off today.

MILDRED HOLMES.
Washington.

Editor's Note: Our opposition to the appointment of General Fleming was based on his record as chairman of the Maritime Commission, after he had retired from the Army and while he himself was the head of the agency.

Freedom In Asia

There are many confused issues involved in the fighting in Korea, but there are some things which, even at this early date, begin to form a clear picture. Two facts we must face: (1) a so-called backward people have been trained to handle efficiently the arms of modern warfare; (2) the Soviet Union has been able to win many of the dispossessed peoples of Asia to its side by offering them the illusion of comradeship and at the same time teaching them that their plight in life is in a large measure due to the handiwork of man and can therefore be changed by man. Unless we understand the second point, our military and economic aid and our proposed truth campaign will lose much of their effectiveness.

The success of the Communists in Asia can be attributed less to their dynamic appeal than to the belated interest of the Western World in the freedom of the Asiatics. The West has on its side individual freedom, more wealth and a higher standard of living.

On the debit side, the United States is allied with many freedom-loving nations whose love for freedom is confined to their national borders and who grudgingly and slowly bequeath it to those whom they rule in distant lands. This includes France who is demonstrating her peculiar love for freedom in Indo-China, England who "graciously" retired from India to fasten her tentacle more firmly on Africa and Italy whose rape of Ethiopia is still too fresh in the minds of many colonial people to desire her brand of freedom.

Meanwhile, let us not make the same mistake in Africa that we made in Asia. The time to become fighting mad about the lack of freedom for the indigenous people of Africa is now and not after the Communists have won from them an undying loyalty that will sound both their and our death knell.

ROSCOE R. NIX.
Washington.

Asiatic Defense Force

Through want of preparation, the United States found itself obliged to deploy Regular Army divisions against Korean satellite troops. The measures taken by President Truman in this crisis were both prompt and necessary.

However, if the Soviets should decide to precipitate similar military aggressions, short of general war, in other Asian areas, we face a difficult situation. First, American ground forces now in being are needed as training cadres in the event of world war and should not be expanded, if this is avoidable, in preliminary engagements. Second, the supply line of approximately 8000 miles is unfavorable. Third, reverses inflicted by satellite troops on Americans, regardless of comparative numerical strength, are detrimental to United States prestige.

Should the United States build the ground forces to sufficient strength to meet fresh acts of aggression, wherever they may occur, or, simultaneously, create a general Asian defense of Asiatics? The United States has preponderant advantage in new weapons, industrial potential and aircraft. It can acquire preponderant advantage in firepower and armored force. It is, however, outclassed, both actually and potentially, in infantry numbers.

Moreover, committing American infantry en masse in jungle wars and in battles in backward areas may lead to one of two results: a strong American "peace movement," capitalizing on casualties, or a demand that the United States attack Russia forthwith and get the war over with. Neither is desirable.

It would seem logical to organize, under U.N. direction and American leadership, an effective Asiatic Defense Force composed of Asiatics to repel further outward thrusts by the Communist government of China and its satellites. The two major manpower pools available are Japan and China.

China has the advantage of already possessing a well-trained infantry. In most other respects, Japan would seem to constitute a preferred source for such a continental defense force. (1) The Japanese technological, industrial and educational level is far higher. (2) The Japanese have proved their effectiveness in infantry combat. (3) Chinese troops are subject to strong Communist pressure since mainland China is now in Communist hands and Formosa is menaced. (4) By contrast, the fact that the Japanese isles are securely under general United States control would seem to provide a guarantee against mass defection.

Direct organization of a Japanese army would contravene the surrender agreement and various high-level diplomatic undertakings. This would not necessarily apply, however, to a volunteer force, composed of Japanese nationals, but under U.N. and United States leadership and control. If diplomatically necessary, transfers of citizenship might be arranged for the volunteer members of such a force. One of the useful functions of diplomacy is to make the necessary legitimate.

If Freedom Is Shopworn

By Malvina Lindsay

Tyrants' Best Weapon

THE QUESTION on many tongues, "What's the matter with our tanks?" is giving way in some discussions to "What's the matter with our morale?"

Those who see the Korean war beyond armchair strategy are more disturbed over the reported fanatical fighting zeal of Communist-trained Koreans than over the invulnerability of their tanks. True, some of the greener North Korean troops lack spirit. But the Communist-hardened ones fight with an abandon not explained by the mere expectation of loot.

And why, it is asked, has the morale of South Koreans been so low? Also the morale of some American GIs? And what about those Americans at home who childishly or churlishly retreat from the chief implication of the Korean struggle—the maintenance of a free world? Hence we hear again the haunting question of the last war: How can democracy build a fighting faith?

The armed forces are not doing enough at this, say some. The Army, it is charged, not only threw into the Korean front lines unseasoned youths, inadequately trained and equipped for physical battle, but also unprepared in mind, lacking understanding of what it was all about.

Here again is an echo from the last war when American youth, prosaically taking its freedom for granted, went up against Hitler's fanatical heralds of a "super-race." Eventually the Americans were better fortified within to meet the supermen. But that took time and blood.

BUT MANY now ask: What about those big information and education programs the armed forces worked out after the war? What about the Fort Knox experiment that was to make responsible, understanding, democratic soldiers? What about the plans to develop officers who would be psychologically trained leaders rather than martinets?

Here again bobs up the old villain. Time, bane of the democrats. A fighting faith can be built in a free man only through his own comprehension, not imposed from above, nor worked up by camp meeting technique. And while the armed forces may have fine educational plans worked out at the top, the trouble lies in getting them executed at the bottom.

This lack of execution was particularly criticized by the President's Commission on Religion and Welfare in the armed forces in its report on the success of the Defense Department's information and education program. Commanding officers in the field were failing to carry out the program, the report said.

Lack of time accounts partly for this. But many officers are skeptical of such programs, regard them as boondoggling. Also, at this point, the armed forces shift some of the blame to those old scapegoats, the school and the home. These officials point out that they get boys who are nearly grown, whose habits and patterns of thinking are set; also that it is almost impossible in an hour a week, more or less, to give free-thinking—and often unthinking—young men a stable political philosophy.

MANY of those concerned with this situation think the armed forces could do more, also the schools. But they admit that one of the main handicaps to making Americans enthusiastic about their freedom is that it has become shopworn. People today, unlike their Revolutionary ancestors, do not find personal liberty rare, new and precious enough to sing and talk about. With this attitude they naturally can't sell their faith effectively to people on whom they must count as allies.

However, this building of a fighting zeal for the free way of life is a matter for all the democratic forces of the world, not merely the United States, to wrestle with. This was recently pointed out by Senator Pecson of the Philippine Republic, who is also the first woman to be elected to the 18-member executive board of UNESCO. The democratic forces, Senator Pecson said, needed above all a "weapon within." She pointed to her heart.

But how was this to be obtained? The Senator, a long time educator, felt that old slogans and formulas were not enough. Democratic peoples, she felt, needed now to reevaluate their faith, find new words, expressions, concepts that would bring its value home with greater force to the man and woman of today. She felt this was a most urgent step facing the democratic world. Once it had retaken stock of what it believed, and was imbued in mind and heart with what it stood for, then it could better convince others.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The State Of Mr. Truman

IT IS TIME to give credit where credit is due. In the month that has passed since June 25, when southern Korea was attacked, President Harry S. Truman has consistently acted with courage and decision.

The fact is that Truman's mood has now undergone a complete change, according to those who have worked closely with him during this long, anxious month. The grin in which his face was formerly permanently wreathed has disappeared. So, at last, has the euphoric presidential conviction that "everything's going to be all right."

The Korean aggression, and the military weakness of the United States revealed in Korea, are both said to have come as a profound shock to Truman. Thus the cockiness which has characterized the President since his victory in 1948 has suddenly been replaced by a certain, unaccustomed grimness. And at any rate for the time being, all Truman's energies are concentrated on dealing with the great danger which now confronts this country.

Out of this change of mood have come Truman's two great decisions, to meet the challenge in Korea head-on, and to start a really serious program for the rearmament of the United States and the Western world. Another outcome of the change of presidential mood has been an increasingly visible shift in the anatomy of power within the Truman Administration.

IT IS significant that the elaborate plans, which were being laid before the Korea attack, for another Truman political junket to "sell" the Fair Deal program and Fair Deal candidates, have now been shelved. The politicians and political advisers who were gleefully preparing these plans and other domestic political stratagems no longer have easy access to the White House. Equally, such advocates of business-as-usual as Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder and Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer have seen their White House influence reduced close to the zero mark.

While such men have been moving into the wings, others have moved front and center—most notably, perhaps, Gen. Omar Bradley and special presidential assistant Averell Harriman. Bradley now doubles in brass as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and as the unofficial presidential chief of staff. He sees the President alone every morning at 9:30 and briefs him at length both on the specific tactical situation in Korea and on the general strategic situation.

Bradley also attends all the once-weekly meetings of the National Security Council, and the twice-weekly meetings of the Cabinet. The Cabinet meetings are now largely given over to military briefings, conducted by Bradley, and to discussion of the economic impact of rearmament. Such formerly live issues as the Brannan farm plan and the Ewing health plan are now exceedingly moribund if not entirely dead.

Harriman also attends both the Security Council and Cabinet meetings. Moreover, he spends much of his time in the west wing of the White House, seeing the President often several times a day. Secretary of State Dean Acheson usually sees the President only twice a week, on Tuesday and Thursday. Ordinarily, this situation could be expected to give rise to conflict between Acheson and Harriman. Actually, the two men have entire confidence in each other, and work very closely together. Indeed, Harriman's new role has in fact strengthened Acheson's position.

NATIONAL Security Resources Board Chairman Stuart Symington has also been especially close to Truman since Korea, and he has been given the central responsibility for guiding the Truman rearmament program through Congress. Among the lesser-known figures in the post-Korea inner circle at the White House have been Special Consultant Sidney Souers; Executive Secretary James Lay of the NSC, and Naval Aide Robert L. Dennison, who briefs the President throughout the day on important dispatches from Korea or elsewhere. Health permitting, Gen. Bedell Smith is expected soon to become chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, and he will undoubtedly join the inner circle.

Truman also frequently confers individually with the three service Secretaries, Army Secretary Frank Pace, Air Force Secretary Thomas Finletter and Navy Secretary Francis Matthews, now welded into an effective team as the joint Secretaries. As for Truman's Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson, he goes to the White House about once a week, usually for an hour, in the late afternoon. But the exact status of the Truman-Johnson relationship remains something of a mystery.

The two men have never been personally close. And it is surely clear to Truman by now that the advice he has accepted from Johnson has been little short of catastrophic. It must be said that Truman himself was only too ready to accept Johnson's assurances that the country was getting "greater combat capabilities at less expense." Yet it must also be said in all fairness that since June 25 Truman has shown real leadership in repudiating so totally and rapidly the disastrous policies of his Secretary of Defense. As to whether Truman can sustain the leadership he has shown, and whether the man who has now been so publicly repudiated will retain his post, these questions remain to be settled. There is an obvious, direct connection between the two questions.

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

11 a. m.—Representative Davenport (D., Pa.).

11:15—Senator Graham (D., N. C.).

12:00—Cuban Ambassador Machado.

12:15 p. m.—Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Bemis of Los Angeles.

12:30—Secretary of Defense Johnson.

3:15—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

3:30—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

4:00—Cabinet.

Threat to Formosa

By Marquis Childs

Time For Realistic Appraisal

ANOTHER Korea can happen on the Island of Formosa. An awareness of this is growing in Washington. Yet the coordinated steps have not been taken to prepare for it.

Childs

In his initial statement on Korea, President Truman also announced that he had ordered the American Navy "to prevent any attack on Formosa." The Seventh Fleet is patrolling the waters between the Chinese mainland and the island which is the last holdout of Chiang Kai-shek and the remnants of his Nationalist armies.

But if the Chinese Communists decide to send a full-scale invasion force against Formosa, the Seventh Fleet may not be able to stop all the invaders. This likelihood is suggested both by American newspaper correspondents in Asia and by private intelligence reports to the Government here.

Chicago Daily News Correspondent Albert Ravenholt reported from Hongkong that 6000 invasion craft would be used in the assault. Some reports put the number of planes in readiness for the invasion at 200, others at 400.

These same reports, both public and private, raise serious doubts as to the ability of the Chinese Nationalists to repulse invaders who might get through the U. S. Navy patrol. There appears more than a possibility of still another repetition of the story so often repeated on the Chinese mainland, when Nationalist armies simply melted away before Communist attackers.

WHAT IS perhaps most disturbing is that responsible American officials seem to have no realistic appraisal of the situation on Formosa. As in Korea, our diplomatic and our military moves have not been sufficiently coordinated.

The differences between the State and Defense Departments over what to do about Formosa extend back many months. They are complicated and it would probably be futile to review them at this point. The fact remains, however, that on a vote of the National Security Council a decision was taken against sending a team of American military experts to Formosa to appraise the military picture there.

With this in mind, suppose that in an attempted assault some of the Communist invaders get through. The battle on the island begins to go against the Nationalists.

No crystal ball gazing is required to envision what would happen at that point. From such passionate advocates of Chiang Kai-shek as Senator Knowland of California and Representative Judd of Minnesota would come an immediate cry for more American help.

You can almost write these clarion calls in advance: America has made a commitment. It is vital to American prestige in Asia, and to America's strategic position to defend this last bastion.

WOULD the political pressure be such as to mean in fact another Korea? Would the demand to come to the defense of the Nationalists on Formosa be irresistible? Would this country commit some of its small remaining reserve of naval and air power? Would American ground troops be sent in to fight alongside the Nationalists?

The sane answer, in view of the very great need to keep back reserves of strength, would seem to be: No. To commit another American force at this peripheral point in Asia would appear to leave Europe wide open to whatever intention the Reds may have on their current timetable. That may well be one of the calculated goals in both Korea and Formosa.

Furthermore, American involvment alongside the Chinese Nationalists would sow doubt and division among those in Asia, to whom we must look for both moral and physical support. An engagement on Formosa would have no sanction from the United Nations. The government of India has recognized Communist China and an Indian Ambassador is in Peiping. Great Britain has offered recognition with no formal acknowledgment from the Chinese Communists.

It would also sow doubt and division here at home. This is especially true since neither the public nor Congress would have had any preparation for what may happen. As in the aftermath of the attack by the North Koreans, there would be a smoldering underground of resentment between the State and Defense Departments over the blame.

At the minimum, we are entitled to a realistic appraisal of the situation on Formosa. This can come only through effective, working coordination between the diplomatic and the military branches of the Government. That kind of coordination at the working level has been one of the elements lacking in recent months.

statement dealt with power to control consumer and real estate credit, and to guarantee loans to defense industries.

Would Set Margins

Other sections of the bill, on which the Administration has not yet given testimony, would permit the setting of margins for futures trading of all commodities, and the granting of Government loans and financing directly to producers of military items.

Sawyer assured the Senate committee the power to requisition property and to seize over accumulations of inventory was wanted only for stand-by use—as a threat to chiselers.

But the power to set allocations, he explained, would be used at once. It had to be on a compulsory basis, he insisted, for "a voluntary program at this time would not do the job."

This statement reflects a changed viewpoint on Sawyer's part. Until a few days ago before the formation of the President's control program, the Commerce Secretary and some of his officials had argued vigorously that a voluntary program of allocations, conducted by industry, would be adequate.

Sawyer made clear that he expected full cooperation from industry in operating the allocation program, but he argued that demands for scarce materials are liable to grow, rather than to lessen. "Without Government responsibility for the curtailment of demand and re-channeling of the available supply, we cannot get effective action," he said.

He indicated that besides steel, there would presumably be allocation programs for copper, tin, aluminum, many chemicals and lumber.

The Federal Reserve Board statement explained that the power of the Government to guarantee loans to defense industries—as in the V-Loan program of the last war—was principally to serve the needs of small and medium-sized businesses. Their acceptance of large defense contracts requires financing beyond what they could obtain under ordinary circumstances.

The Board justified the need to impose restrictions on installment and housing credit with an extensive analysis of the inflationary pressures that already exist in the economy. It pointed out how sales have zoomed in recent weeks and how prices have risen to the highest levels ever recorded except for a short period toward the end of 1948.

"Because of developments of the past few weeks, it is imperative that steps be taken to reduce or defer civilian demands and to lessen inflationary pressures," the statement said.

This morning, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee is scheduled to hear testimony on economic controls from Bernard M. Baruch, the "elder statesman" who handled industrial mobilization in World War I.

Man Held as Bet Ring 'Brains'

New York, July 25 (U.P.).—Murray Kalik, 45, was held today in $10,000 bail as the brains behind a one-million-dollar betting syndicate and possibly the heir to the gambling empire of Frank Erickson, imprisoned bookie czar.

Raiding Brooklyn racket investigators who seized him as the alleged ringleader believe he may have taken over some of the Wall Street customers who placed big bets with Erickson.

The raiders found Kalik burning papers in his driveway. Julius Helfand, assistant district attorney, seized some of them and said they contained names of wealthy horse bettors and records of "Ice," or police protection payoffs.

Also seized were gambling equipment, including a roulette wheel and chips and 20 filing cases in Kalik's home.

Two of his employes were arrested in separate raids and held in $5000 bail each, with Kalik as material witnesses. They were Joseph Katz, 42, and Raphael Goldstein, 47.

The raid was one phase of a Brooklyn grand jury investigation of big-time gambling deals with police officials. The grand jury is considering calling Mayor O'Dwyer to explain why he denounced the investigation as a "witch-hunt" and a Hitler-type "war of nerves."

O'Dwyer, a former policeman, publicly defended his former colleagues and condemned the investigation, charging it unjustly put the entire New York police force under suspicion.

Stockpile Boost Considered

other Marshall Plan countries do not have overseas possessions which produce strategic materials.

The "dollar gap" in western Europe is expected to remain, in spite of added American stockpiling and military expenditures. But there is little doubt in official minds that the world-wide economic picture will look radically different in a few months as a result of the current high prices of raw materials, plus the Korean war and the inevitable increase of American spending abroad.

The Munitions Board reported to Congress yesterday that the national stockpile, as planned shortly after the war, was only 38.4 percent complete, with materials valued at $1,556,154,352, after almost four years of purchasing. Additional materials now on order amount to 12.2 percent, valued at 495 million.

When these materials are delivered, the board reported, the stockpile will be slightly over half the size projected in 1946.

But the board acknowledged that procurement for the stockpile had lagged during the fiscal year that ended June 30, partly due to "the difficulty in obtaining materials because of heightened industrial activity." It said schedules had not been met in rubber, copper and zinc, and negotiations for buying tin could not be completed until late in the fiscal year.

It did not disclose the Government's holdings, which are military secrets. But The Economist of London, always well informed on commodity subjects, estimated in its current issue that from 1946 through 1949 the United States acquired nearly 450,000 tons of natural rubber for its stockpile, and more than 85,000 tons of tin.

It also estimated that 200,000 tons of copper, 130,000 tons of lead and 80,000 tons of zinc were acquired during the past year, and that the Munitions Board will show especial interest in buying zinc, maganese and copper during the coming year.

The board's report yesterday included many details, undisclosed until now, of the progress of the pre-Korea stockpiling program.

It revealed that the buying of thirteen metals and drugs had been "either fully completed or nearly so"—again on the basis of assumptions made before the Korean war.

The thirteen included these minerals and metals: Antimony in its liquated, metal and ore forms, used for hardening alloys; metal grade bauxite, the source of aluminum; celestite, used in refining beet sugar; graphite in amorphous lumps; lead; mica, in splittings, used for insulation and a variety of other purposes; and sperm oil.

The drugs of which the stockpile now has plenty, according to the Munitions Board, are hyoscine, a sedative and hypnotic; emetine, used in producing vomiting or spitting; iodine and quinine.

Four other materials which have been removed entirely from the buying list are rutile, important in making white paint pigments; zircons, baddeleyite and pepper.

In addition, the board reported, the buying of five other materials had been stoped "and will not be resumed unless a review now being made proves the need for it." These are agar, used for making bacteriological cultures; chromite, the source of chrome ore used in steel plating; mercury, with a thousand uses in war and peace; tantalite, for surgical wiring, and vanadium, essential in making high-grade alloys.

The board also reported unremitting efforts to find substitutes for scarce or inefficient materials. It said, for example, that "asbestos and natural mica for electrical purposes may be replaced with fibrous glass and synthetic mica" as a result of Navy Department researches. This will be a blow to India, where the United States bought huge quantities of mica in wartime.

Conferees Extend Old Age Benefits

This provision requires one quarter of coverage for each two calendar quarters elapsing after 1950, and before death or attainment of age 65. In no event would less than six quarters coverage suffice.

Trending toward more uniform payments down the line, the bill gives much less weight to the number of years an individual has contributed taxes. A worker retiring after five years' covered employment for example would receive as much as if he had contributed 30 years.

Action Set Tuesday

Although conferees reached agreement yesterday, final conference action was deferred until Tuesday when the House-Senate group meets again to look over the completed draft.

Final passage was taken for granted. If the bill is cleared and signed by the President by August 1 increased benefits for some 3,000,000 already on the Social Security retirement rolls will become effective October 1.

One of the last acts of the conferees was to approve the so-called Knowland amendment added by the Senate restricting the power of the Secretary of Labor to withhold funds from State unemployment insurance programs.

At present, the Secretary can hold back a State's unemployment funds if he finds the State law fails to meet Federal requirements. The amendment prohibits him from withholding funds until a State's highest court has reviewed his decision and then only after giving a State 90 days to conform.

Tax Formula Approved

Earlier conferees approved the new payroll tax formula, gradually stepping up collections over a 20-year period. Staff experts estimated the broadened coverage, the increased wage base and gradually increased taxes will increase Social Security collections from two and a half billion dollars this year to about three billion next year, four billion in 1954, five billion in 1960 and perhaps six and a half billion in 1970.

New groups covered by the bill include about five million self-employed, excluding farmers and many of the professions, one million domestic servants working more than two days a week for the same employer, 700,000 full time farm workers and several smaller groups (including Government workers not already covered by other retirement programs.)

The increase in the taxable wage base from $3000 to $3600 means a $9 payroll tax increase for persons earning that amount and more.

As under present law, an individual's average wage for benefit purposes could be computed by dividing the total taxable wage paid to the worker by the total number of months elapsing after 1936.

The amount of the benefit would be 50 percent of the first $100 of this average monthly wage, plus 15 percent of the next $200.

Instead of using this present basis of average earnings since 1936, all covered workers and those coming into the program for the first time, can use the "New Start" formula if it is to their advantage. On the new basis they would use their average earnings in 1951 and thereafter to compute their benefits.

Under the bill's liberalized formulas the present minimum "primary" benefit would increase from $10 to $20 monthly. The maximum "primary" benefit would rise from $46 to $80 monthly. Maximum "family" benefits would jump from $85 to $150.

The new program for the first time would provide strictly relief payments to some 200,000 needy persons who are totally and permanently disabled. These come under the "assistance" rather than the insurance sections of the bill. The Federal grant for totally disabled persons was estimated at about 65 million dollars a year. Federal grants would be provided for guardians of dependent children and contributions for care of crippled and needy children would be increased.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

NAPOLEON'S restaurant has a reputation all its own. There are other French restaurants in town, some of them with unquestionably good French food, but still Napoleon's seems to be set apart.

The answer is not to be found in the place itself. The four dining rooms, with the exception of the upstairs Flemish Room, are ordinary in decor, but each is small, has only a few tables and one waitress. There's none of the assembly line method here.

On entering, you find yourself in a tiny shop of confections and caterers' wares. Napoleon's, which has a reputation for excellent catering for parties and weddings, displays its pastries as the Parisian shops do, in the front room of the restaurant. The entire establishment follows the line of a typical French place.

The Flemish Room is distinctive and at the same comfortable. A light cocoa color is the background for murals of life in the low countries. Wishing wells, ships, Dutch taprooms, a market place all are depicted. There's a big open wood fireplace at one end. Leather seats go around the room. Mirrors reflect the warm tones of the murals.

Of the food at Napoleon's, the hors d'oeuvres and pastries are the best to be had. The dinners are good and inexpensive for their type. The Chicken Diviene Parisienne is a typical specialty. Sliced chicken is put on shredded asparagus or broccoli, and baked in a special wine sauce. Other specialities are Soupe a l'Oignon au Crouton, Coq au Vin and Snails a la Bourguignonne.

There is another thing in which Napoleon's is superior—the wine cellar, which is its pride. Many a wine difficult to get in Washington can be had at Napoleon's. Vouvray, Clos le Mont and Aeuvre Beaujolais are favorite recommendations, as is the St. Raphael aperitif.

Napoleon's is open from noon till 2 a. m. weekdays and till midnight Saturdays and Sundays. In the fall a Continental cocktail hour will be started. It's to be in the Flemish Room, around the big fire. Hot hors d' oeuvres, with the compliments of the house, will be served with drinks from 4:30 to 6:30.

AFL and CIO Make First Unity Move

The AFL and CIO announced yesterday after a "unity" meeting that they have taken a preliminary step toward possible merger by agreeing to work together on legislative and political action.

The joint committee said further meetings will be held to set up machinery for handling problems growing out of jurisdictional disputes and raiding among AFL and CIO unions.

Later meetings, the first of which was scheduled for today, also will consider "specific proposals for organic unity in the American labor movement."

CIO President Philip Murray proposed last April in letters to most top union officials that their organizations unite in one big organization. The AFL suggested that agreement first be reached on joint political action and that possible merger then be discussed.

The unity committee's report indicated the AFL pattern was being followed.

It said the two groups will work together at top level in politics and legislation. It was the first statement of its kind since the CIO broke away from the AFL in the late 1930's.

The statement said a chairman and secretary of the permanent AFL-CIO unity committee will be elected at a future meeting.

CIO Vice President Allan Haywood said the committee will "consider" bringing other unions into the discussions when basic AFL-CIO problems are solved. These would include John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, the independent International Association of Machinists and the Railroad Brotherhoods.

Americans Periled

Plane Fires On Lebanese Craft; 2 Die

Beirut, Lebanon, July 25 (AP).—The government protested to the United Nations today that an Israeli fighter plane had attacked a Lebanese airliner, killing 2 of 28 persons aboard and endangering 9 Americans. Seven Arab passengers were wounded.

The nine American citizens escaped injury in the incident, which the government said occurred last night 3 miles north of Israel's frontier. The Americans were returning from a pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

(An Israeli army communique said a Lebanese aircraft violated Israel's frontier by flying over northern Galilee and warning shots were fired after it refused to obey signals to land. A spokesman said Israel also will file a protest with the U. N. over the incident.)

Moshe Duek of Jordan, a Jew, was killed. The radio operator, Antoine Wazir, was hit in the back and died a few hours later.

Officials said the plane was marked with identifying letters four feet high and had the Lebanese flag on the tail. The plane is owned by a Lebanese subsidiary of Air France, the French air line.

The American passengers arrived Sunday aboard the American Export liner Exachorda and flew to Jerusalem on a pilgrimage. They sailed on the Exachorda a few hours after the attack.

The airline gave the names of the Americans as Dr. V. O'Neil, C. R. Hopkins, G. H. Keaves, Miss L. Wood. Miss B. Gabard, Miss Evalyne Khoury, Moses Khoury, Jamil Garzouzi and a Miss Kouri. No addresses were available here.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 25 (AP).—Broad general buying, induced by unfavorable Korean news and President Truman's request for an additional $10,400,000,000 to meet the situation, ran prices up today at the Board of Trade.

Soybeans led the advance, shooting up the 10-cent daily limit, and lard, the twin "war baby," was up a dollar to $1.48 a hundred pounds in active trading.

Observers said that routine news had relatively little effect on the day's trading and at the finish wheat was 1½ to 2⅝ higher, corn was 2⅞ to 3½ higher, oats were 1⅝ to 2⅛ higher, rye was 4¼ to 5⅝ higher, soybeans were 10 cents higher and lard was $1 to $1.48 higher.

All deliveries of soybeans and all deliveries of lard except September sold at new seasonal highs, as did deferred delivery of rye.

New York, July 25 (AP).—Cotton futures closed strong today, with final prices up $1.10 to $3.05 a bale above Monday's final quotations. Dealers said that a large part of today's buying was for textile mill accounts and for shippers who had sold cotton for export. There were 1,700,000 policies outstanding in this city, totaling $1,940,000,000, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. This was a new record for the District of Columbia.

The average ownership per family in the Nation was reported as $5000, with the District averaging 60 percent more than this. New York State was second with $7300 and Connecticut and Delaware were tied for third with $7100.

Of the total life insurance owned in District of Columbia on January 1, $1,180,000,000 was in 430,000 ordinary policies, an additional $250 million was owned here in 880,000 industrial policies and $510 million in 390,000 individual group policies.

Illustrating the expansion in this city, the Institute reported that at the start of 1945 there was $1,394,684,000 in life insurance here.

One on the Aisle—

Remarkable Woman Dominates 'Medium'

By Richard L. Coe

NEW YORK'S current Arena Theater bill, "The Medium" and "The Telephone," is notable on two counts:

The Menotti music plays—well, operas—come out brilliantly in central staging. Frankly, I enjoyed both more than I did in proscenium style. As in Olney's productions last summer, two pianos replace the orchestra.

And "The Medium" introduces a remarkable woman to the professional theater, Zelma George singing the part made famous by Marie Powers.

I have a feeling that you'll soon be hearing a lot about Mrs. George. While I'm not convinced that she has what you'd call a future on Broadway, she is sensational in her singing and acting of the grisly fake.

For Mrs. George has spent most of her life in the field of education. She's an enormous woman—I'd hazard about 300 pounds—and sitting in Mme. Flora's wheelchair, she gives you the impression she'll be playing the role in it throughout, that she couldn't move out of it. Your memory tricks you because Miss Powers' whipping scene, in the second act, is so clear in your mind out of the chair, but Miss Powers, of course, was in the wheelchair, which constitutes one more fakery on the part of the fraudulent spiritualist.

And when Mrs. George struggles out of the chair in that Grand Guignol second act to attack the mute gypsy boy, she gives it the works. In the intimacy of central staging, this has the effect of blowing up a bomb right under you.

Her voice is rich and solid, encompassing the demanding range of the composer, and her singing technique appears thoroughly sound.

She is not new to the part, having played it for some 67 times with Cleveland's Karamu Lyric Theater. (Imagine an all-Washington production of the Menotti twins; cheers for Cleveland!). Mrs. George lives in Cleveland because her husband is president of the Cleveland Civil Service Commission.

Daughter of a Texas minister, she graduated from the University of Chicago, got her M. A. at New York University, where she is now striving for her Ph. D. She had a two-year grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. She's been a college dean of women in Tennessee, a director of Los Angeles' Avalon Community Center and is on the policy-making boards of Ohio Girl Scouts, the League of Women Voters and such like.

What probably surprised the New York reviewers as much as anything else about Mrs. George is the fact that she is also a Negro.

Their praise has been unanimous, which I don't imagine is exactly cheerful news to Miss Powers, whose success in the part is theater history. Miss Powers will soon be following Producer Chandler Cowles to Italy where, because it's cheaper than doing it here, the film version will be made. Rather than open with Miss Powers, the Arena management decided to risk the nonprofessional rather than disappoint audiences when Miss Powers sailed.

Of the original cast, Leo Coleman continues to astonish one with his poignant miming of the mute boy, and Evelyn Kellera, an exceptional lyric, is still splendid as the madam's daughter. These two play beautifully and are to be in the film.

"The Telephone," that very slight joke for two voices, has always seemed to me overdrawn, though the central staging certainly makes of it a more intimate joke than the picture-card stage originally was.

It is indeed encouraging to find that Menotti's twins—the most durable since "Cav" and "Pag"—are beautifully adapted to the economical pleasures of central staging. For your next New York venture, I heartily urge you to drop into the Arena, in the Hotel Edison, across from which, by the way, his newer hit, "The Consul" makes of 47th st. Menotti's Marketplace.

THAT NEW Canvas Theater in Silver Spring decided not to open last night, after all . . . As of this writing it and the new musical "How on Earth!" will presumably be ready for unveiling tomorrow night.

GRANDPA JONES and his "grandchildren" will start a week of personal appearances at five of the Sidney Lust Maryland Theaters . . . The hillbilly troupe will play tomorrow and Friday at the Beltsville Drive-In the Cheverly on Saturday, and next week, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at the Cameo, Milo and Marlboro, respectively.

WITH THE opening of the Arena Theater getting closer, Assistant Managing Director Zelda Fichandler will talk of the local central staging venture on Al Sherman's "Coffee at the Plaza" radio show this afternoon at 5:15 on WCFM.

LEESA THACKSTON, formerly of Newark st., is one of the acting group which open a season tonight at the new Virginia Beare and "Ye Cubb," once known to Virginia Beachers as "The Roland movie theater." . . . The plan is to run Wednesday through Sunday nights; "See How They Run" is the opening attraction.

THE PALACE promises a sneak preview tonight between final showings of "My Friend Irma Goes West." . . . Of this one, I'm only able to say that I Hope It's Fancy and on the Ball . . Oh, Lucy, that must give it away!

THE LADY'S THINKIN': Shelley Winters is expecting trouble in "Winchester 73," which begins its second week at Keith's today. She can play the piano and though the rod's not hers, she can use it if pressed

Nats Again Pour it on Their Chisox 'Cousins', 7-4

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

AT A TIME WHEN the Cleveland Indians found themselves nicely placed, only 3½ games out of the lead, they have encountered what could be a cruel setback. Their Larry Doby is still under observation in a Brooklyn hospital and the full effects of his beaning by Joe Hatton of the Dodgers are as yet unknown.

The Indians have no adequate replacement for Outfielder Doby, and Manager Lou Boudreau's prayerful hope right now is that the accident doesn't leave Doby plate-shy. A blow on the head has ruined more than one playing career.

Povich

Doby got his, worse luck, in an exhibition game the Indians were playing for charity. That is wasn't an intentional dust-off ball is obvious. Contributing to the accident no doubt was Doby's unfamiliarity with Hattcn's breaking stuff.

American League pitchers have taken shots at Doby, but he has never complained about that. The day he hit Griffith Stadium's longest home run in years, off Sid Hudson, he was promptly knocked down in his next time at bat. After the game, he said he wasn't mad about it.

"I didn't blame Hudson for taking a shot at me," he said. "He had to loosen me up, after what I did to him. As long as you suspect it's coming, it's you're own fault if you're hit."

THE MOST NOTABLE big league career that was ruined by a bean ball was that of Mel Almada, the outfielder who was with the Red Sox and later the Nats. He had everything—could hit, run and throw superbly, and he used to dote on inside pitches that he could knock for a distance.

And then one day in Florida, in an exhibition game, a Cardinal lefthander conked Almada on the head with a pitch high and inside. When he returned to the lineup, he wasnt the same hitter. He abandoned his plate-crowding stance, and moved back in the box. Pitchers found him a set-up for curve balls that broke over the plate. The Nats traded him to the Browns and in a few months he drifted back to the minors, later retired.

Bucky Harris had a chance to trade for a highly-regarded infielder last spring but declared, "I want no part of him." Questioned, Harris said "He isn't the same hitter he used to be, since he was beaned a couple of seasons ago. He's squeamish about standing up to the plate and take his good cut. Scared ball players are no good. They demoralize the rest of the club."

YOU'D HAVE TO like Doby's chances of recovering nicely from his beaning, though. He wouldn't be in the majors this long if he wasn't long on both courage and philosophy. As the first Negro to make good in the American League, he was a target for certain pitchers of narrow intelligence who thought it fun to take shots at him.

They didn't succeed in scaring Doby away from the plate. He has still always been eager to hit that inside pitch into which he can get his good power. The pitchers discovered that it was poor strategy to roil him; that he was tougher when they got tough.

One of the most memorable beaning cases was that of Cecil Travis a dozen years back when he was struck on the head by a pitch by Thornton Lee, Cleveland lefthander, and was a stretcher case until he arrived at Georgetown U. Hospital. He spent three weeks there, recovering, was an ambulatory patient for three more.

When he did return to the Nats' lineup, the coincidence was that Lee again was pitching. Travis immediately ended any speculation about whether he was plate-shy. He banged Lee's first pitch for a triple off the right field wall.

ONE OF THE most-hit players with the Washington team used to be little Ellis Clary, the fiery war-time third baseman, whose peculiar crouching stance invited a pitch on the head. Birdie Tebbetts, of the Tigers, was amazed the first time he noted Clary's batting stance.

"Does he bat that way all the time, with his head stuck out over the plate?" Tebbetts inquired. Assured that Clary did, Tebbetts predicted, "He's gonna get hit on that head."

It happened the next day. Lefthander Hal White of the Tigers beaned Clary, who dropped as if pole-axed. He lay inert as the players gathered about, then pulled himself together, said he wasn't hurt, and insisted on taking his base and staying in the game.

That night, they were telling Clary he was lucky. "Aw, it didn't hurt," he said. "Then why did you go down," they asked him. He had an answer for that one, too. "I always go down," he said, "to impress the umpires. I got hit in Chattanooga one day, and stayed on my feet, and they said the ball hit my bat. Wouldn't give me my base."

Kid Hurlers Blank Cubs Twice, Phils Regain Lead

Philadelphia, July 25 (AP).—Richie Ashburn's single with two out in the ninth scored Ralph Caballero from second and gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 1-0 decision over the Chicago Cubs in the second game of tonight's doubleheader after they had won the opener 7-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Bubba Church.

The double victory put the Phils back in the lead in the National League.

The twin victory was scored before a crowd of 32,726.

Roberts, who walked with one out in the ninth and then was lifted for Pinch-runner Caballero, allowed six hits, all singles, in chalking up his twelfth victory. He has lost five.

The Phils touched Rush for 10, including a triple by Gran Hamner, and doubles by Ashburn and Eddie Waitkus, but the Cubs' ace right-hander left 11 Phillies stranded on the bases.

The twin shutouts ran the Cubs' losing streak to five straight and their scoreless streak to 27 innings.

The victory in the opener was Church's fourth without a defeat.

The Phillies rapped John Klippstein for 11 straight safeties, including Del Ennis' 18th homer in the fourth and two doubles by Dick Sisler.

The Phils clinched the game with four runs in the first inning. Sisler doubled two of them home. Gran Hamner's single sent Sisler across and the Philadelphia shortstop counted on Hank Sauer's wild throw.

Sain Wins 13th For Braves, 7-2

Boston, July 25 (AP).—The Boston Braves clubbed three pitchers for 13 hits while topping the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2 tonight.

Johnny Sain, who failed on three previous tries, notched his thirteenth pitching triumph and his fifth in a row over the last-place Pirates.

Sain gave up eight hits, including Clyde McCullough's second homer of the season in the fifth inning.

The Braves battered starter Bill Pierro for three runs in the fourth inning and two more in the fifth, before he was replaced by Vern Law.

Giants Win On Reds' Error

New York, July 25 (AP).—Bob Usher's muff of Don Mueller's liner with two out in the bottom half of the ninth inning enabled Eddie Stanky to score from second with the run that gave the New York Giants a 7-6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds tonight.

The Giants drove Herm Wehmeier from the mound with a five-run eighth inning to take a 6-5 lead, but the Reds tied the score in their half of the ninth.

Pep Whips Bell With No Strain

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Fighting only whe nhe wished, which wasn't often, Featherweight Champ Willie Pep waltzed to a unanimous 10-round decision over Bobby Bell at Griffith Stadium last night. Pep's title was not at stake.

What little action the disappointing crowd of 3371 saw came in the last two rounds when Bell stung the champ into a brief flurry.

Bell, 21-year-old Youngstown, Ohio, boy who served as Pep's sparring partner last March, caught the champ with a 1-2 to the head in Pep's corner midway in the ninth round.

That not only stopped the crowd from booing, but brought from Pep a counter offensive which had Bell in a bad way twice in the last two rounds.

With lightning rights and lefts of his own, Pep battered Bell against the ropes in the ninth and caught him again in the tenth, almost flooring him. Bell was saved from further trouble only when Wily Willie himself called off the dogs, content to pop Bell with occasional hooks to the head and body.

Until the little flare-up in the ninth round, Bell hadn't hit Pep a dozen times, although he was trying. Pep danced around him, moving from side to side, and caught practically every one of Bell's efforts with his gloves, elbows and shoulders.

There were no knockdowns, and both fighters appeared fairly fresh at the end of the not-too-hectic skirmish. Pep weighed 130, 2½ pounds more than Bell.

The net gate was only $6054, not even half of the $15,000 take Promoter Goldie Ahearn of the sponsoring Liberty Athletic Club envisioned and predicted.

In the semifinal, Gene Smith, 124½, won a TKO, in 2:17, of the sixth over Red Gaddis, 130.

Paul Minor, 184, Washington, decisioned battling Moore, 184, also of Washington, in a four; Harry Koontz, 173, Washington, defeated Rufus Berry, 174, Washington, in another four, and Sam Kelsey, 136, Washington, defeated Gurney Van Hook, 132, Philadelphia in a five-rounder.

8 Pitchers See Action; Stephens, Kell Clout Homers

Detroit, July 25 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox nipped the pace-setting Detroit Tigers, 7 to 6, tonight to tighten the American League race as second-place New York lost, too.

Eight pitchers saw action in the nip-and-tuck battle with Chuck Stobbs the winner and Hal White the loser.

Detroit thus stayed a game and a half ahead of the Yankees, but saw the onrushing Boston and Cleveland clubs pick up a game in the pennant scramble.

Browns Stave Off Rally in Ninth; Mize Hits Homer

St. Louis, July 25 (AP).—A ninth-inning rally spoiled Stubby Overmire's shutout, but he tightened up to give the St. Louis Browns a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees tonight. Overmire batted in two of the Brown tallies.

Stuby, who now has two of the club's three victories this season over the Yanks, had a three-hitter going into the last frame.

Then Hank Bauer beat out a hit to Tommy Upton and Johnny Mize homered to break into the scoring column. A double by Joe DiMaggio, a scratch single by Yogi Berra and a long fly by Bill Johnson accounted for the third New York run.

St. Louis was hitless against Vic Raschi until the fifth when Ray Coleman opened with a single. Les Moss also hit safely. With one out Upton singled, scoring Coleman. Moss and Upton advanced a base on Raschi's wild pitch and scored on Overmire's single.

The Browns added the final run in the sixth on a double by Ray Coleman and single by George Stirnweiss.

It was the first time this year Overmire lasted nine innings.

Trigg Named To Ring Board

The District Commissioners yesterday filled a vacancy of 10 months standing on the District Boxing Commission by naming Dr. Joseph E. Trigg as the first Negro ever to serve on the three-man body.

TRIGG

Trigg, a 55-year-old physician who has judged fights for the commission since 1935, will serve out the term of Thomas P. Morgan, jr., who died last September. The three-year term expires April 24, 1952.

Trigg was recommended for appointment by Commissioner Guy Mason and approved unanimously, according to Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young. The job pays $2400 a year.

A Washingtonian since the age of 4, Trigg won letters in football and crew at the University of Syracuse and refereed Negro college football games here in the 1920's and 1930's.

He served in the first world war as an Army infantry captain, then came back to Washington to study medicine at Howard University. He has practiced here since his graduation in 1924. Trigg and his wife live at 1248 Fairmont st. nw.

But Ball Isn't Worried

Redskins Scrimmage, Look Bad

Los Angeles, July 25.—Under a sweltering 85-degree sun, the Washington Redskins staged their first "game condition" scrimmage here today and the results were discouraging.

The timing was poor, the blocking slipshod, the pass defense porous and the punting putrid. Time and again the players missed assignments, knocked down teammates and generally fouled up the situation.

"There's always a feeling of uncertainty among the new fellows." Ball commented, "and the only way they're going to learn their assignments is by scrimmaging. It's a stage they have to go through. It's learning the hard way."

He can say that again.

Shepherded by five regular National League officials, the 'Skins went at it hot and heavy for a solid hour without any time-outs.

With Sammy Baugh watching from the sidelines, Understudy Harry Gilmer passed for the only touchdown of the afternoon, a 31-yard aerial to End "Bones" Taylor and a 41-yard sailer to Halfback Buddy Shoaf, one-time University of Virginia player.

Hustlin' Harry hit the first six passes he attempted.

There were no long gains through the line.

Bullet Bill Dudley, former Detroit Lion flash, was used sparingly and appeared the best of the bunch.

Tackle George Hekker, who came to terms yesterday, was suited up but did not partake in the roughstuff. Also idle were Hardy Brown, Dick Stoval, Pete Stout and Baugh. All except Stoval are due to perform Friday in the next scrimmage.

Cards Win On Rice's Home Run

Brooklyn, July 25 (AP).—Del Rice's home run with two on in the eighth inning helped the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-5 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers before 31,013 fans tonight.

Stan Musial hit safely in his 29th straight game as the Cards finally won after eight straight reverses at Ebberts Field. Preacher Roe, who had beaten the Birds four times this season, was the loser. Despite the victory, the Cards fell out of first place, a half game behind the Philadelphia Phils.

Rice was the St. Louis hero with a three-run homer, his third of the season, after singles by Red Schoendienst, Marty Marion and Ed Kazak had set the stage for the big blow in the left field stands.

Roe, who led, 5-3, in his quest for his fifth win over the Cards until the fatal inning, was the victim. It was his sixth loss against 12 wins. He was socked for 14 hits.

Musial, enjoying his best game of the year in his favorite park, stretched his hitting streak to 29 straight games with a homer, his 14th, a double and single.

Gerry Staley, coming on in the seventh after the Dodgers knocked out Max Lanier, was the winner.

Cleveland, July 25 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians won their eighth straight victory over the Philadelphia Athletics tonight, 7 to 6. Bob Feller collected his tenth win of the season, although he had to have help from Bob Lemon in the ninth to halt a two-run rally. Luke Easter clouted two home runs and Joe Gordon one for the Tribe. Sam Chapman and Joe Tipton smacked four-baggers off Feller.

Joe Haynes Retires Last 17 Men, Coan Belts Homer

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Chicago, July 25.—Joe Haynes turned in one of the finest relief-pitching jobs of his career, and with the help of Gil Coan and Sam Mele, presented the Nats with a 7-4 victory over the White Sox here

It was the Nats 11th victory in 15 games this year against their Chisox "cousins."

With 11,973 Comiskey fans looking on, Haynes came to the rescue of rookie Jim Pearce in the third inning and allowed only three hits, one run—Gus Zernial's fifteenth homer, and no walks the rest of the way. He finished up with a flourish by mowing down the last 17 White Sox in a row.

During that span, from the fourth through the ninth, the Sox hit only four balls out of the infield, and Haynes was not behind a single hitter. Joe earned his fourth victory against three losses.

Coan, who came on the scene as a pinch-hitter in the sixth, delivered a single which broke a 4-4 tie, and in the eighth he applied the crusher, his sixth home run with one aboard.

Coan also made the fielding gem in the ninth with a running, backhand stab of Phil Masi's drooping liner near the leftfield line to rob the Chicago catcher of a double.

Mele's contributions were a pair of triples and a single. Sam drove in two runs and scored three.

Kotz, Sherfy, Taylor Win in D. C. Tennis Play

Mark Haller Fails to Hold Early Lead

By Gordon Beard

Trailing 2-5 in games and 0-40 in points, Arnold Kotz staged a spirited rally to defeat Mark Haller, 7—5, 6—1, in a District of Columbia Recreation Department quarterfinal tennis match at 16th and Kennedy sts. nw. yesterday.

Kotz, a more seasoned player than his foe, slammed home five straight placements to win the eighth game, then swept through seven more games before Haller snapped the streak. By that time, Kotz had captured the first set and taken a 3—0 lead in the second.

Larry Sherfy advanced to the semifinals by winning over John Woolford in a marathon, 10—12, 7—5, 6—1. Until he broke Woolford's service in the elventh game of the second set, the favored Sherfy had considerable difficulty with his underdog opponent.

Mack Taylor also moved into the round of four by whipping Russ Cooley, 6—4, 6—3. The match between Hy Ritzenberg and Frank Cantwell was postponed until Thursday after Cantwell pulled a back muscle in a pre-game accident.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

They Bite—50 Yards Away

Our Mr. Murdock Sits in Boat And Watches Others Catch Fish

By Ralph Murdock

FOR A CHANGE, ideal fishing weather greeted local anglers over the weekend. Both Saturday and Sunday proved perfect fishing days—the type you can't use as alibis for not catching fish. The atmosphere was exactly what the doctor had ordered. It was just great to be out on the water—fishing.

Murdock

We spent practically both days fishing. On Saturday morning about 10:30 o'clock we started chumming for rockfish off the old duck blind just east of North Beach Park. Imagine our chagrin to be anchored within 50 yards of two anglers who continually pulled in stripers while we failed to get even a nibble.

After an hour and a half, our fortitude (fishing patience, that is) was at a low ebb (it was an ebb tide) so our young skipper, Rudy Bennett, pulled anchor and proceeded to move inside.

A "cowboy stop" plus a motor reverse in 4 feet of water didn't help the situation and we drew another blank. Our batting average in the piscatorial league showed a big fat "O" at this period.

* * * *

THE NEXT MOVE was a run out to Holland Point can buoy. A blue-plate dinner of fried chicken and potato salad with the usual trimmings was served on the way out. (What, no soup?) Incidentally, eating is one of the necessary evils on a fishing trip. Still, no fish.

On our return we spotted an angler reeling in a double catch of spot. We took the tip-off and started a chum line that produced 27 nice white perch, 5 good trout and one flounder. It's the first trout we have seen taken in the upper bay.

The rest of the anglers aboard were Sergt. William Roberts and his wife Margie (from Mississippi), Sergt. Pete Murray, his wife Mary Ann, Mr. and Mrs. John Forte of Forrestville, Md., Mrs. Bennie Sansbury and John Decker of Alexandria, Va. Mrs. Sansbury was the top angler with the biggest trout (a 2½-pounder) and a doubleheader of white perch.

Nats Whip Chisox, 7-4

Haynes gave Chicago a 4-3 lead in the fourth inning.

The Nats, knocked Cain out of the box in the sixth with a two-run rally, and regained the lead, 5-4.

Vernon started it off with a double down the rightfield line and came in with the tying run on Mele's single to right. Mele took second on the throw to the plate, and continued on to third when Vernon accidentally kicked the ball as he crossed the plate.

Mele and Coan widened the Nat's lead to 7-4 in the top of the eighth, Mele getting his second triple of the night on a long fly that fell in right-center, and Coan clouting his sixth homer of the season on a liner which fell in the lower right field stands.

IN SHORT . . . Sandalio Consuegra, two-time conqueror of the White Sox, and owner of a 4-2 record, will pitch against them again tomorrow afternoon in the second game of the three-game series . . . Red Corriden will counter with another right-hander, Ken Holcombe, who has a 2-6 record . . . When Evans delivered a pinch single in the third, he was the sixth Nats pinch-hitter in the last nine either to hit or walk . . . The Nats' 10-4 mark against Chicago this season is quite in contrast to last year, when the Sox won 15 out of 22.

Slo-Mo-Shun May Run Here

Chances are good that the fabulous Slo-Mo-Shun, winner of last week's Gold Cup at Detroit, and holder of the world's mile speed record, will enter the President's Cup Regatta here in September.

S. S. "Stan" Sayres, west coast owner, interviewed by Happy Walker, The Washington Post boating columnist at Detroit, revealed that he expects to participate in the Harmsworth International Races at Detroit on September 1 and 2, and if Slo-Mo-Shun performs satisfactorily, he will send the boat to Washington to participate in the President's Cup classic.

Other Gold Cup drivers questioned by Walker, indicating their intention of participating in Washington's famed speed races, were: Guy Lombardo, Freeport, Long Island (Tempo VI); Albion Fallon, Detroit, Mich. (Miss Great Lakes), Jack Schafer, Detroit, Mich. (Such Crust I and Such Crust II), George Sarant, Freeport, Long Island (Etta), Charles Cline, Long Beach, N. Y. (Chez), Horace Dodge, Detroit, Mich. (My Sweetie), and Daniel J. Murphy, Merion, Pa. (Dee Jay).

Walker will report the results of his interviews with these famed boat owners and drivers at a meeting today of the Presidential Cup Regatta Association at the Willard Hotel.

Tigers Lose To Bosox, 8 Hurlers Used

Sox surge into a four-run lead in the first two innings as they kayoed their old nemesis, Teddy Gray, who had beaten them in four previous tries this season.

Vern Stephens' 24th homer, a two-run wallop in the first inning, got Boston away to a flying start.

Righthander Willard Nixon held the Tigers scoreless until they made it a 4-3 game in the fifth on a three-run homer by George Kell, his seventh of the year.

Detroit moved into a short-lived 6-4 lead with another three-run flurry in the seventh as Nixon retired under fire.

But the Red Sox caught up in the eighth inning with Hal White who had pitched scoreless relief ball for five innings. Two hits and three walks figured in the three runs which put Boston out in front, 7-6.

Mickey McDermott protected that lead in the last two innings.

Postlude

Mozart Trio Gives Usual Fine Recital

By Paul Hume

What a pleasure, and what a wonderful ensemble, the Mozart Trio is!

The familiar Washington singers gave a summer concert last night in the series now being presented at Catholic University. Their new accompanist was William Reese, who has been heard here in years past, playing for various soloists.

Katharine Hansel has been soprano for the trio for some months. With John Yard and Joseph Collins, she completes one of the most polished and yet happily informal groups on the concert stage.

That their programs present music of Mozart and only Mozart indicates the brilliance of their musical content. We had not previously heard the trio from Idomeneo or the dramatic pages of La Clemenza di Tito. These, and the known and loved selections that have been on their programs in the past, the Mozart trio sang in their finest form.

Their presentation is happy in Collins' explanations, and the adaptability of the personalities involved in the pleasant job of singing some of the world's most singable music.

Sesquicentennial Chorus

We lacked space Sunday night to speak in detail of the Sesquicentennial Chorus at the Watergate.

Their work under Paul Callaway was good, as far as we could tell. They sang great music, but the amplification made it impossible to gain an accurate impression of the true substance of their offerings. Leo Sowerby's Canticle of the Sun, the 1947 Pulitzer Prizewinner in music, deserves an early repetition indoors.

Its texture and dramatic setting of the great poem by St. Francis mark it as a rare achievement. We must hear it under circumstances permitting real assessment.

We trust that the amplification system will be rehearsed along with singers and instruments before the Berlioz Requiem is given next Wednesday and Thursday. It needs it.

Judge Refuses Venue Shift in Air Crash Suits

The Government failed yesterday to shift to Virginia jurisdiction eight damages suits resulting from the November crash between an Eastern Airliner and a Bolivian P-38 in which 55 were killed.

The Government asked District Court Judge James R. Kirkland to dismiss the pending suits, amounting to approximately two million dollars, on the ground that District Court lacked jurisdiction.

The disaster occurred in Virginia, the Government claimed.

Judge Kirkland said he was confronted with many affidavits from both sides, differing on the exact location of the crash, and overruled Assistant U. S. Attorney Ross O'Donoghue.

The issue of venue is important to those seeking to recover damages from the United States on the grounds that the operator of the tower at National Airport was negligent.

In Virginia recovery by a plaintiff in cases of death is limited to $15,000.

12-Year-Old Boy, Missing 24 Hours, Returns Home

Fred Morina, 12, who had been missing since Sunday afternoon, returned to his home at 4215 30th st., Mount Rainier Monday night, his mother said yesterday.

The boy told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morina, he spent the time "playing" near a small creek in the neighborhood. He stayed Sunday night "at a lady's house," he told them.

Two other boys, also missing since Sunday, still were not heard from yesterday. They are Walter Sinclair, 14, and Earl Gardiner, 15, Prince Georges County Welfare Department wards who were living with Mrs. S. D. Richards at Westwood. She said they were last seen when they left to go fishing Sunday morning.

Falls Church to File Annexation Suit Writ

The City of Falls Church probably will file a petition for a writ of error with the Virginia State Court of Appeals next week in connection with its annexation suit, City Attorney LaRue Van Meter announced yesterday.

A three-judge annexation panel in Fairfax Circuit Court found against the city last week in its attempt to annex 10.75 square miles of Fairfax County territory. Van Meter said he anticipated no action by the court before the September term.

Red Cross to Collect Blood for Troops

The Red Cross agreed yesterday to become the official agency for the procurement of blood and blood plasma for the armed forces.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Red Cross president, informed Defense Secretary Louis Johnson that the organization is ready "to increase the output of its national blood program to provide the armed services with the blood that may be required."

D. C. Sentences Found 'Lenient'

fenders are at large today because of lack of reliable testimony when their cases came to court. The recent policy of holding hearings behind closed doors in sex cases where the victim is a child needs more study, and probably should be extended if legally feasible.

6. More staff is needed in the office of the United States District Attorney here.

7. Increased penalties for assault on a police officer should be considered.

8. The proposed crime conference or coordinating council to represent all public agencies concerned with the criminal process is excellent, and such a group should meet regularly. "Increasingly evident" is the "significant" gap in Washington crime control because of the lack of integration and coordination among various agencies.

On the question of court sentences, the association commended District Court for keeping its criminal docket relatively current. Then the report added:

"The association recognizes the prerogative of the judge to decide the disposition of each case on its individual merits, but wishes to point out the tendency toward lenient sentencing and concurrent sentences.

"It is believed that these practices should receive careful evaluation in order that the protection of the community will be assured. Each case must be decided separately on the basis of the best interests of the individual and the public."

Symphony Plays All-Gershwin Program Tonight

Conductor Howard Mitchell and the National Symphony Orchestra will feature music by George Gershwin in "Gershwin Memorial Night," at 8:30 p. m. today at the Watergate.

Muriel Rahn and Edward Matthews, soloists, will sing "Summertime," "Bess, You Is My Woman," "It Ain't Necessarily So," and "I Got Plenty of Nuttin'."

Sherman Frank, pianist, will be heard in "Rhapsody in Blue." Orchestral selections will include, "The Cuban Overture," and selections from "Of Thee I Sing," "Strike Up The Band," and "An American in Paris."

D. C. Nurses to Attend Polio Institute Today

Fifty nurses from District hospitals will attend a one-day institute on nursing care of poliomyelitis in the out-patient department of Children's Hospital today.

The institute is sponsored by the District Graduate Nurses Association, the District Red Cross, the District chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and the Bureau of Public Health Nursing of the District Health Department.

Phone Subscriber Sues For $40,000 on Listing

A Falls Church dry cleaner yesterday sued the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for $40,000, alleging refusal to list him the way he wants to be.

Thomas A. Woods, 112 Shreve st., Falls Church, said in his suit that he is known in the community as "Dry Cleaner Woods," and wants to be so listed in the classified directory. The company will not list him that way, he declared.

Fairfax Blocked Recreation Plans, Citizens Charge

The newly-formed Virginia National Capital Park Citizens Committee charged yesterday that the Fairfax Board of Supervisors blocked a proposed park authority for nearby Virginia.

The committee was recently set up by representatives of "more than a hundred" civic groups in Alexandria, Arlington, Falls Church, and Fairfax County. It is working for a Virginia National Capital Park Authority to secure "adequate park and recreation areas in Northern Virginia."

In July, the committee noted, the Fairfax Board failed to adopt an ordinance setting up such an authority, after Alexandria, Arlington, and Falls Church already had done so. The committee said, a national bill to provide funds for such an authority had little chance of being enacted in this session of Congress.

Juvenile Court Proceedings Shielded From Public

(Fourth of a Series)

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

JUVENILE COURT is a tribunal which is now encased in a vacuum so far as the community is concerned.

Its proceedings are secret, its methods informal, its data uncompiled.

For two years or more, it has issued no statistics. Its Judge, Miss Edith H. Cockrill has been on the bench since August, and has yet to publicly describe what the court is doing.

With but few exceptions, only rumors have come from the court. Only when it became public that the judge and two of her staff had been squabbling were statistics issued, and these were incomplete.

The court which has been called a "social worker's dream" is headed by a judge who has had limited practical experience in social work.

A 1939 law graduate from the University of Tennessee, Judge Cockrill had experience with the Office of Price Administration and later had a private general law practice prior to going on the bench.

SHE had never tried a case in Juvenile Court, but had other local court experience, including criminal cases. At least one judge has spoken highly of her work as a lawyer.

Her appointment surprised the general bench and bar. She was completely unknown to most persons around Judiciary Square.

On the average, she is called upon to try six juvenile cases a day, and a much larger number of other cases such as bastardy, nonsupport, and parental responsibility. On some days, there are more than 60 cases on her calendar.

As in other courts here, witnesses and defendants complain that they must wait in the hall for long periods.

Juvenile court has a courtroom where the public can see in through a glass window in the doors. Unless you have a "direct interest" in the case you cannot listen.

There have been few exceptions to this rule. Graduate social workers have been allowed in some instances to hear cases, but they cannot take notes. Visiting judges have been allowed in occasionally, as have members of the Advisory Committee of Juvenile Court.

The court has as its keynote a law which states:

"THE purpose of this chapter is to secure for each child under its jurisdiction such care and guidance, preferably in his own home as will serve the child's welfare and the best interests of the state; to conserve and strengthen the child's family ties whenever possible, removing him from the custody of his parents only when his welfare or the safety of the public cannot be adequately safeguarded without such removal; and, when such child is removed from his own family to secure for him custody, care and discipline as nearly as possible equivalent to that which should have been given by his parents.

So far as secrecy provisions go, there are two legal sections which state:

1. The court may conduct the hearing in an informal manner. . . . In the hearing of any case, the general public shall be excluded and only such persons who have a direct interest in the case and their representatives admitted . . ."

2. The court shall maintain records of all cases brought before it. Such records shall be open to inspection by respondents, their parents or guardians, or their duly-authorized attorneys, but otherwise only by order of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

The handsome woman judge appears in her black robe and sits, not high on the judge's bench, but below at the clerk's desk, or perhaps at a lawyer's table.

The case is called and Johnnie, the defendant, comes forward to sit in a chair just in front of the audience benches.

"Johnnie," asks the clerk, "who's with you today?"

Johnnie may point out his mother or father behind him.

"Listen carefully, Johnnie," says the clerk. "The officer charges that you and Jack broke into a house last January 4. It that right or wrong?"

If Johnnie denies it, all witnesses are sworn. The officer and prosecution witnesses give their side, and then Johnnie is called on to state what happened. The judge asks questions as does Johnnie or his lawyer, if he has one. Sometimes the parents do the questioning.

Sometimes the parents testify or call other witnesses.

AFTER this, the judge makes her finding. If the judge finds the youth is "involved," the social workers report on the background of the boy. His conduct in preliminary appointments with the court is read in court. Johnnie and his parents will be given an opportunity to add to it or refute it.

The judge pronounces "disposition" instead of "punishment."

She may put Johnnie on probation in his own home, commit him to the Board of Public Welfare for care, or as the last resort to the National Training School for boys. Sometimes, the child has to pay a fine out of his own savings.

The court hearing is conducted so that Johnnie will be at ease, but not to consider it either a field day or a horrifying experience.

There were complaints, before Judge Cockrill came on the bench that juveniles considered the court to be a lark, its punishments trivial, its social workers easily handled tools. These complaints have ceased.

Still, lawyers shy away from the court because its processes are very time-consuming and perhaps the youngsters brought to actual trial usually plead guilty.

Two lawyers interviewed had these comments:

ONE lawyer said that the court remains a "social worker's dream" and a "lawyer's nightmare." He said that children and their parents are treated as "patients" and not as offenders.

But of Judge Cockrill and of Prosecutor Una Rita Morris he had only praise. He said that both were patient and courteous, but observed that perhaps the judge "lectured" too much.

However he condemned the secrecy, saying that even lawyers have difficulty getting the facts. The public cannot ascertain what is going on, he said. Court officials say the lawyers get what they are entitled to.

The second lawyer charged that the judge apparently was not grounded in the law of evidence, and that punishments were predicated on legally-inadmissible statements including opinions of social workers.

He said he realized that juvenile proceedings are not based on the strictest rules of evidence but on a theory of rehabilitation rather than punishment.

He said that despite the judge's orders, witnesses have talked to jurors in the corridor, and that cases sometimes appeared to be poorly prepared.

"Informality is all right," he said, "but not when it is combined with star chamber proceedings in such a way that error can be perpetuated."

COURT officials quickly point out that litigants who believe they have been wronged in Juvenile Court have an automatic right to review in the Municipal Court of Appeals, but that this is seldom taken.

"This would indicate," said one appeals judge, "that a good job is being done in Juvenile Court."

The court was established here in 1906 to give children more sympathetic treatment than they received in other local courts.

Beginning in 1938 the court's power was broadened so that children up to 18 could be tried in the court for any offense. The court has power to waive jurisdiction to District Court for trial of serious offenders, but this is unusual.

Through the years, controversy has centered around the court.

Ten years ago, there was hue and cry that the court was too lenient under Judge Fay L. Bentley, and that the public didn't know what was going on.

In 1948 it was learned that Judge Bentley, was suffering from a disorder growing out of a traffic accident and voluntarily entered St. Elizabeths Hospital for treatment.

Judge Cockrill took her place last year. Soon there was friction between the judge and her chief social worker, Miss Virginia Clary.

IT FINALLY broke into public view when Miss Clary and Chief of Probation Clare Fagrie announced they had "resigned" with the charge that the judge was making the court a "punitive" weapon. The judge countered by charging that she had asked Miss Clary to resign for inefficiency. The jurist showed figures that indicated she may have sent more boys to the National Training School, but not out of proportion to the increased number of cases before the court.

She did not give details, pointing out she had no research department and an insufficient staff to do an adequate statistical job.

There remained the Juvenile Court Advisory Committee established by Judge Bentley to keep contact between the court and the public.

But for two years, the committee has made no report on the court's work. Both judge and committee have expressed a willingness to cooperate, but the committee made no recommendations to Judge Cockrill from her appointment until after the Clary-Fagrie incident.

Acknowledging that the court is "temporarily isolated" from the community, Committee Chairman G. Howland Shaw said:

"WE ARE powerless as to that since the court has no statistical department, which we have advocated, and because of the transition phase in the court. We hope to have some action in the autumn. The situation demands a good deal of tact and patience. We are hopeful, of course, that it can be done."

Throughout the controversy, Judge Cockrill has been doing her job and says she is "proud of my record." She says she must continue sending children to institutions for detention when the security of the community necessitates it.

These institutions are not called "reform schools" in Washington. It is a taboo word combination for most social welfare workers.

Resources Board Role Is Weighed

By Jerry Kluttz

The role the National Security Resources Board is to play in mobilizing the home front for defense is being debated in the highest Administration circles.

This is the issue—whether the NSRB is to be a planning or operating agency.

A week ago it was assumed that NSRB was to be a strictly planning and coordinating agency. This line-up had been tentatively agreed to: the Labor Department was to plan for and to handle any manpower control; the Commerce Department was to administer priorities and allocations of materials; the Interior Department was to supervise natural resources, such as the conservation and control over oil, gas, coal, power, etc., and the Agriculture Department was to be responsible for food.

But now, it seems, the NSRB has its own plans for moving into the operating field. It wants to make many of the basic decisions such as how much steel and oil should be earmarked for military use, and the Commerce and Interior Departments, respectively, would carry out its decisions.

The problem of who is to do what and when is being discussed by Cabinet members and the White House staff. The Budget Bureau is making a set of recommendations to the President who will make the final decisions on home front mobilization.

LEAVE: I've received scores of letters on the drive by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) to reduce annual and sick leave for most Federal workers. This is from the most provocative and interesting one:

"There are quotations from 'Real Wages in the United States' by Prof. (now Senator) Paul H. Douglas:

" 'Page 13: The worker's real income consists not only in commodities and services but also in leisure. An increase in the latter is as worthy of being chronicled as is an increase in the former.

" 'Page 191: Because of the fact that there has been virtually no change since 1883 in the amount of time allowed by the governmental departments for annual vacations and sick leave, it is appropriate to divide these averages throughout by 52, in order to obtain the average full-time weekly earnings.'

"Comment: The real threat inherent in this legislation is not merely against the welfare of public workers, but more basically against the objectives of the entire industrial labor movement. Ever since Van Buren in 1840 instituted the 10-hour-day for Federal employes, the Government has become a sort of barometer for the labor movement and a model of good employment conditions.

"In fact, when the movement for the 8-hour-day developed, the labor unions decided to concentrate on the Federal service first. This situation is also reflected in the public policy of the Bacon-Davis Act and the Walsh-Healy Act.

"In view of this factor and in view of the fact that our leave privileges have stood practically without change since 1883, it is somewhat shocking to find Senator Douglas, a liberal, elected from the industrial State of Illinois with heavy labor support, sponsoring a movement which would turn the clock back. At a time when labor is struggling for further advances, particularly in the so-called 'fringe' areas, he would have the Government take drastic action in the opposite direction constituting, in his own words, a cut-back in real money income."

ICC: The Civil Service Commission has approved grade raises for 25 examiners in grades 12 and 13 at the Interstate Commerce Commission. The employes won their appeals over the objections of certain ICC officials. Now they are trying to persuade the commission to make the Civil Service grade-raising order effective.

JOBS: Civil Service is accepting applications for these exams: Farm Credit examiner, $3825 to $5400; photographer, $2640 to $3825; transportation quarterman, $4472 to $4784; weighmaster, $1.07 an hour; sawyer, $1.18 an hour, and hospital attendant, $2200 to $2450 annually.

NOTES: In addition to changes in Federal building programs in this area—discussed in yesterday's column—present plans are that the Soldier's Home tract, which succeeded the Nevius tract as a possible site for the area Veterans Hospital, is also out of the picture. Sites now being considered are outside this area entirely.

Girl, Youth Flee Police After Falls

In separate accidents two young persons fell from second-floor windows early yesterday—and each ran from police who tried to help, police reported.

First to fall was Georgia Grassmyer, 21, Williamsburg, Pa., a senior in foreign affairs at George Washington University.

Miss Grassmyer, according to police, fell at 12:50 a. m. from her room at Strong Hall, girls dormitory at 620 21st st. nw. She was in good condition at George Washington University Hospital yesterday with a possible elbow fracture.

According to police, Miss Grassmyer had returned from a party, felt dizzy, went to the window to get some air and fell.

Police, called to the scene, found Miss Grassmyer walking down the street. They said she started to run when she saw them. Pvt. Wallace Valentine said he had to chase two blocks to catch her, whereupon she fainted in his arms and was taken to the hospital.

The other victim, James Wright, 22, 482 H st. sw., according to police, fell from the second floor of his home at about 1:25 a. m. En route to Gallinger Hospital, he jumped out of a Health Department ambulance and fled. Fifth Precinct police picked him up after a short chase and escorted him in a scout car to the hospital.

Oregon Youth, After First Train Ride, Heads Boys Nation; Acheson Warns of Those Who 'Respect Only Armed Strength'

An 18-year-old youth from Portland, Oreg., who had never been on a train until he came to Washington last week, was elected president of Boys' Nation last night.

The youth, George L. Jefferson, jr., along with his vice presidential running mate, Thomas M. Rutter, 17, of Munhall, Pa., swept in on the Federalist ticket, 54-32.

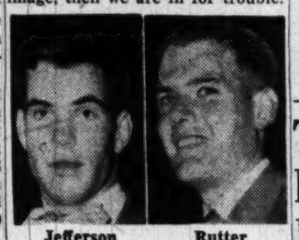
They defeated the Nationalist Party candidates, Donald J. Swanz, 16, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Rodney Block, 17, of Orlando, Fla., for the highest offices in the American Legion-sponsored government which has "legislatures" in each State.

The new president, Boys' State Governor from Oregon, was co-captain of his high school football team last year and president of the student council and his senior class. He plans to enter the ministry.

Earlier in the day, 86 "senators" heard a warning from Secretary of State Dean Acheson that "the fundamental safety of all of us will depend on what we can do to build up our strength to gain the respect of those who respect only armed strength.

The Secretary of State reviewed the Korean situation when the boys visited him. He said the United States had tried repeatedly, without success, to get Russia to agree to unification of Korea.

But, he continued, "when, a strong, fanatical, vigorous nation tries to shape the world in its own image, then we are in for trouble.



Jefferson Rutter

That happened in the two World Wars, and it is happening now."

The boys resolved themselves into Senators from their respective States to consider two measures—the Mundt Bill and the Brannan farm plan.

The farm plan was disapproved after James Wise, 17, Hughes, Ark., argued that it "might help a few down-and-outers but that's no reason to change the whole farm economy."

Some of the "Senators" wanted to make the proposed controls over communism more drastic than they are in the Mundt Bill.

Luther House, 16, Adolphus, Ky., offered an amendment to establish a penalty of life imprisonment for persons who admit they are Communists and death for those who deny it but later are proved to be Communists. This was beaten, 85 to 1.

Some of the youths objected that the measure would control the thoughts of Communists instead of their acts.

But their objections were shouted down after Don Gilbert of Thomaston, Ga., asked:

"If the Communists plan to drop an atomic bomb on New York City or Washington and kill thousands of people, don't you believe we ought to grab them while they're thinking about it rather than when they do it?"

Alexandria to Stage Recreation Porgram

Alexandria's Recreation Department will hold a pet show, bicycle rodeo, and music celebration at 6:45 p. m. Thursday at the Municipal Stadium on Monroe ave.

The pet show, jointly sponsored by the department and the Kiwanis Club, will be followed by the rodeo and a tug-of-war. At 8 p. m. a concert by the U. S. Army Band and glee club will begin. Admission will be free.

Taxi Interests Push Bill to Limit Cabs

Taxicab Association spokesmen, with an assist from District officials, made another strong bid at the Capitol yesterday for limitation of the number of taxicabs here to give drivers a "decent living wage."

Two independent driver-owners opposed the almost perennial legislation before a House District Subcommittee on the ground that limitation would lead to "monopoly" by the large cab associations and possible rate increases.

James H. Flanagan, chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission, would not commit himself flatly on the measure.

The bill, introduced by Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), would empower the PUC to fix the number of cabs operating in the District. It would not, however, authorize revocation of any licenses already held by cab drivers, Beall stressed.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West informed the subcommittee that the commissioners approve the legislation with certain amendments.

The chief revision proposed by the city heads, and focal point of yesterday's hearing, was to strike out a proviso to prevent transfer of an issued cab license to another person.

West explained the commissioners favor this change on the theory survivors of a deceased cab driver should be allowed to take over the cab license if they wished.

The independent hackers split over the so-called transfer clause. Some said it would permit the large cab associations to buy up licenses and thus encourage monopoly.

Harry Davis, president of the Independent Taxicab Owners Association, urged Kennedy to support the limitation bill as a benefit to over 9000 workers who are now "barely eking out a living." Davis doubted whether the average cabbie today is netting more than $50 a week. Other drivers placed their weekly earnings between $36 and $50.

Jack Royer, president of Premier Cab Association and speaking for several other companies, recalled how similar legislation has been before Congress since 1937. He gave a veiled hint the cab industry might seek a rate increase sometime in the future when he told the subcommittee there had been no taxi rate boost since 1942.

Representative Kennedy, the only subcommittee member present yesterday, told reporters the hearing record would be sent to other committee members.

Baby Bruised

Dad Faints At Trial For Beating

Fred Hensley, jr., Arlington painter, charged with beating his five-months-old daughter, collapsed in Arlington Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court yesterday morning shortly after his trial got under way.

The defendant, who lives at 1226 N. Nelson st., Arlington, was taken to Arlington Hospital in an unconscious condition. Witnesses said he struggled violently in the courtroom before he lost consciousness.

Hensley was released from the hospital and sent to the county jail a few hours later where he was held without bond.

Arrested Monday afternoon, Hensley told police he assaulted his daughter, Connie Louise, "to stop the baby from crying." He added: "I don't care if I get 15 years for it."

The baby was released from Arlington Hospital after being treated for bruises on both legs and about the eyes.

Meanwhile, more troubles mounted for the 22-year-old father. Yesterday two bad check charges were lodged against him, one by J. B. Wood of 1727 Wilson Blvd., the other by Homer Thomas, an attorney, of Court House Square, Arlington.

Plea to Drop Cafe Conduct Charge Denied

Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn yesterday refused to dismiss disorderly conduct charges against four Negroes and 11 white persons arrested in Sholl's Cafeteria, 511 14th st. nw., on July 17.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King said "the Government believes these people had a right to be in that restaurant and be served, and is fighting for that right."

"But that right does not give them the right to take the law into their own hands," he added.

Earlier, Assistant United States Attorney Richard Roberts nol prossed other charges against the 15 defendants, accusing them of refusing to leave a private place on request of the owner.

Roberts asked for a continuance in the case. When Judge Quinn denied this, Roberts said the Government was not prepared to prosecute and entered the nol prosse.

The 15, members of the Interracial Workshop, 1834 Kalorama rd. nw., were arrested after standing in the cafeteria line for approximately an hour, and refusing to leave unless all were served.

As their first witness in four motions to dismiss the case, the defendants put on Alfred A. McGarraghy, owner of Sholl's. He testified he had refused to serve the group because it was against the policy of the cafeteria to serve Negroes.

In arguing for dismissal, defense attorneys made these points:

Curtis Mitchell argued that the obstruction, if any, had occurred because McGarraghy illegally refused to serve the group.

Henry Lincoln Johnson argued that the Civil Rights Statute of 1875, declared unconstitutional as to the States, was still applicable in the District, and required restaurant owners to serve customers without regard to race or color.

James A. Washington, jr., argued the Government could not use a criminal statute to enforce racial discrimination without violating due process of law.

Two Dairies to Raise Milk Price ½ Cent

Chestnut Farms And Thompson's Set Boost for July 31

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Two large dairies announced yesterday they would raise the price of delivered milk in Washington one-half cent per quart beginning July 31.

The increase affects a majority of the city's milk drinkers. The announcement was made by the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy and Thompsons' Dairy at a hearing before the Virginia Milk Commission in Alexandria.

The boost will hike the delivered price of grade-A or plain homogenized milk from 20½ to 21 cents a quart, and vitamin-D homogenized milk from 21½ to 22 cents.

Incidental Mention

It was incidental to his plea for a half-cent hike in milk his company delivers in nearby Virginia. Unlike that State, Washington has no regulatory body which passes on milk prices.

Robert Rawlins, who represented Thompson't Dairy at the Virginia hearing, later told reporters his company also would apply the half-cent increase in Washington July 31.

A third large milk distributor present at the hearing, Lucerne Milk Co., a division of Safeway Stores, said it had not yet reached a decision on a Washington increase.

Chestnut Farms and Thompson's joined the Alexandria Dairy Products Co. to petition the two-member Virginia commission for a price increase in Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax County.

Higher Labor Costs Cited

Their reason: higher labor costs resulting from a new union contract signed June 7.

The commission took the petition under advisement, with promise of a decision later in the week.

Davison said the new labor contract would cost Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase $25,000 more each month, and add about 75 more union workers to the payroll.

He set the average hourly increase under the contract at about 16 2/3 cents an hour.

Rawlins estimated the new contract would cost Thompson's $151,500 more annually, and that the half-cent increase would bring in $153,000 more per year.

M. H. Burchell, secretary-treasurer of Alexandria Dairy, said the contract would force his firm to employ 18 additional persons and cost "in excess of $1500 per week" more.

However, one consumer group appeared to ask that individual families buying more than 180 quarts of milk per month be permitted to purchase at wholesale prices.

The petitioners were all women with large families. They were led by Mrs. Carl Coan, 400 W. Broad st., Falls Church, eight children. The others were: Mrs. Charles R. Ellis of Vienna, 13 children; Mrs. Wilbert R. May, 105 Cedar st., Alexandria, eight children; Mrs. C. J. McBrearty, 502 Grove ave., Falls Church, seven; and Mrs. James J. Kearns of Vienna, six children.

Profit Urge Suggested in Milk Fight

A charge that the current row over the District's milk supply is sparked by distributors eager to bring in cheap milk to sell at the same price as the locally inspected supply was voiced yesterday before a House District subcommittee.

The suggestion was made by Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation, under questioning by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

In response to Smith's questions, Holman said there was "a good deal of that in this particular fight."

Hearing on Three Weeks

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), has been hearing testimony for three weeks on a bill introduced by Representative A. L. Miller (R., Neb.), which would permit sale of milk uninspected by the District Health Department as long as it met United States Public Health Service standards.

Representatives of the so-called "independent" distributors who do not purchase milk through the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association will testify today. Among these independents are the Embassy and Wakefield dairies.

Hearings will close today.

U. S. Code Attacked

Holman maintained yesterday that substitution of the U. S. Public Health Service milk code for the present District standards would be:

An opening wedge toward breakdown of high milk standards in cities throughout the Nation.

The District Commissioners will resume public hearings today on proposed new milk regulations that already have been discussed in two all-day sessions. Most controversial of the proposed changes is one to permit sterilization of farm equipment by chemicals instead of steam. The hearing will open at 10 a. m. in the District Building board room.

Defense Will Add 236,978 Employes

Chairman George Mahon (D., Tex.) of the House Military Appropriations Subcommittee disclosed yesterday that the Defense Department plans to add 236,978 civilian employes to meet the Korean crisis.

About 10 percent are expected to be in the Washington area.

The Civil Service Commission has announced that persons living in the District of Columbia and nearby areas of Maryland and Virginia who have passed the Nation-wide clerk examination will have the first chance at these emergency, indefinite appointments in the Defense departments.

Mahon's announcement means that the military agencies will take on approximately two new civilian employes for every five men in uniform added to the expanded armed services, President Truman seeks a 600,000-man expansion of the fighting forces.

The new jobs will be divided: Army, 109,378; Navy, 79,400; Air Force, 48,200.

Preference on Civil Service appointments will be given those who have passed the clerk examination with high grades and are on the register of eligibles.

The Civil Service Commission has liberalized hiring procedures by authorizing the direct recruitment by the Defense department of stenographers, grade GS-4, and typists, grades GS-1 through 3, for jobs in the Washington area.

D. C. Official Belonged to Bottle Clubs

"I have the responsibility, among other things, of inspecting applicants for private clubs. It's more or less customary for them to give an honorary membership."

Mattingly said he once frequented the clubs, but added that he has not done so since taking full charge of his son last March.

Mattingly said he held honorary memberships in the Touchdown, Stagecrafters, Gold Key, Turf and Grid, Lyre, and Atlas Clubs.

His wife, Ethyl, 40, who left her husband last March, is suing him for custody of their son, Richard.

Mayor Herbert W. Reichelt said the excellence of the fire department had brought the Mount Rainier fire insurance rate down from 33 cent to 15 cents per $100.

Other speakers included State Senator L. Harold Sothoron, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, former president of the State Firemen's Association, and Phil Ryan, another past president of the organization and a Mount Rainier fireman.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

RESTORATION—An eighteenth century pre-Revolution print shop, complete with an English common press, was opened with colorful ceremonies yesterday at Williamsburg, Va., on the 220th anniversary of the permanent establishing of printing in Virginia. The occasion also marked the anniversary of the proclamation of the Declaration of Independence in Williamsburg. Lawrence Hugo, in costume reads the preamble of the Declaration at the opening

Williamsburg, Va., July 25 (AP).—They dedicated a little printing shop here today—one with the kind of equipment in use when Williamsburg was the colonial capital of Virginia.

It was as out of date as Eli Whitney's cotton gin and the Wright Brothers' airplane, but it was hailed by top leaders of publishing and labor interests in the United States as a symbol of the free press which has bolstered the liberties of free men.

"In a time of threatened world strife the reestablishment of the colonial printing office is a source of strength and symbol of the invincibility of democratic processes," said Edwin S. Friendly, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, who came from New York for the occasion.

"Freedom of speech has no more ardent an exponent than can be found in organized labor," said John B. Haggerty, president of the board of governors, International Allied Printing Trades Council, who left a convention in San Francisco to attend.

They were the principal speakers at a ceremony attended by newspaper executives from Virginia, the District of Columbia and several other sections of the country who gathered with townspeople of Williamsburg in front of the tiny shop on Duke of Gloucester st.

The occasion was the anniversary of the proclamation of the Declaration of Independence in Williamsburg—21 days after it was proclaimed in Philadelphia.

Kenneth Chorley, president of Colonial Williamsburg, traced the history of printing in the colonies and said the printing press today—as it was 174 years ago—"still stands as a symbol of freedom, as evidence of man's determination that they shall know the truth."

He quoted from the report of Gov. Sir William Berkley in 1671 to the Lord Commissioners of Foreign Plantations: ". . . I thank God, there are no free schools, nor printing, and I hope we shall not have these hundred years; for learning has brought disobedience, and heresy and sects into the world, and printing has divulged them, and libels against the best government. God keep us from both."

"With a free press there might be disagreement; but without it there could be only servitude and indignity," said Chorley. "I think this was the great contribution which the press of colonial times made to us of the twentieth century."

2-Way Radio 'School' Asked For Shut-Ins

Instruction via two-way radio to handicapped children who cannot attend school was proposed last night to the Arlington School Board.

Arthur M. Corral, an Arlington dancing instructor, went before the board with an offer to institute such an experimental plan in all the county's elementary schools.

He said he represented a group of engineering, radio and medical men in the Washington area who were interested in trying out the scheme at no initial cost to the school board.

The remote-control teaching, he explained, would supplement the board's visiting teacher program. A similar dual-radio teaching plan already is in operation in 12 States, he said.

The board took the proposal under advisement.

School Superintendent William A. Early also announced receipt of bids for purchase of three elementary schools and grounds in areas recently zoned commercial.

John Wileys Back From Europe

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

JOHN WILEY, until recently our Ambassador to Iran, has arrived in town for State Department conferences. With Mrs. Wiley, he is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor at their home on S st. at 22d —the house that the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter will take over come fall.

MRS. WILEY

While Mr. Wiley works at the State Department, Mrs. Wiley is readying her collection of sculpture for a Paris exhibit in the fall. A gifted sculptress, Irene Wiley has already shown her work in New York and San Francisco and is toying with an idea of a Washington show on a small scale. Of Polish ancestry with a sophisticated kind of beauty, Mrs. Wiley has won equal fame as a hostess. She mixes the right amount of "right people" with a pleasing blend of intellectuals. She serves superlative food, and wines often featuring Polish specialities, then lets the party take care of itself. She has managed embassies and legations in Latvia, Austria, Portugal, Colombia and Iran during the course of her husband's more than 20 foreign posts.

Mr. Wiley's favorite spot for lunch these days is The Colony. He was there yesterday with a colleague, and I heard him tell the headwaiter that there would be four in his luncheon party today.

Beverly Shall Have Music

"SHE SHALL have music wherever she goes" it says in the nursery rhyme.

Beverly Farrington, daughter of the Delegate from Hawaii and Mrs. Joseph Farrington, who'll be married to Maj. Hugh Richardson on August 12, has a lifetime supply of music, the result of a classical record shower given last night by Mrs. Rufus Lusk, jr.

And what do husbands and beaux do when their best girls go to a hen party? Well, last night Mr. Lusk took several of them down to the University Club for a game of pool.

That background music at Poanie Lusk's shower for Beverly Farrington came from some of the albums presented to the bride-to-be. Among her favorites were Ravel's "Bolero"; Rachmanioff's Second Piano Concerto; Carmen Suite, Strauss Waltzes and the Scheherezade Suite.

At the party were Mary McLaughlin, Nancy Thomas, Elinor Burton, Mrs. Jack Kelly, Julia Foraker, Betty Easton, Mrs. James Bellis, Louise and May Gore, Mrs. John Gill, Carol Cunningham, Claire Foster, Mrs. F. M. Rogers, Mrs. Alfred Brandt, Nancy Bickelhaupt, Elaine Trimble and Frances Dear.

NEWPORT NOTES:

The Egyptian Ambassador and Mme. Abdul Radim, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bruguiere at Wakehurst, have left for Bar Harbor, Me.

The Snowden Fahnestocks, who are at Ker Arvor for the season, have with them for a visit Mr. Fahnestock's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Leggett of New York.

The French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet, has invited a descendant of Maj. Pierre L'Enfant, architect of the Nation's Capitol, to be his guest at the performance of Berlioz's magnificent "Requiem" by the National Symphony Orchestra at the Watergate August 2 and 3. She is Miss Denise L'Enfant of Baltimore, great-great-granddaughter of the distinguished French patriot.

As a salute by the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, the "Requiem" is being played in memoriam to Major L'Enfant.

On August 4, Paul Green's "Faith of Our Fathers," a symphonic drama, will open the new Sesquicentennial Amphitheater in Rock Creek Park, with a glittering audience expected to attend.

Luis Machado, new Ambassador of Cuba, is fully accredited now, since presenting his credentials yesterday to President Truman at the White House. Following the ceremonial, the Ambassador and staff members gathered at the embassy at 12:30 p. m. to toast the occasion in champagne.

While the embassy is getting a face-lifting preparatory to the arrival of Senora de Machado in the early fall, the Ambassador is making his headquarters at the Shoreham.

Most of you know that the plaid cotton cap is the fad of the year for men—even for those who have sworn they'd never wear a cap. Now it's being appropriated by the ladies, too—not just the fashion, but the actual men's caps.

College girls started it, of course, as they do so many of our cute young fashions. They are wearing the caps like berets with the visors pulled down over one ear—with a rakish little boy look. Because the caps are cotton, they are not too hot to wear on the beach with sun clothes, too.

Our Idle Home

By James J. Metcalfe

We have a cozy little home . . . That we are proud to own . . . Where we may share our happiness . . . And live our life alone . . . We got it for our children and . . . We struggled to begin it . . . But when the summer days are here . . . We never find them in it . . . They leave it in the early dawn . . . And they are out of sight . . . Until the sun is slipping down . . . And it is nearly night . . . Of course we know that in their hearts . . . It is a priceless treasure . . . And in the winter it becomes . . . Their special place for pleasure . . . And so we do not really mind . . . Their absence in the sun . . . Because we know the summer is . . . The time for outdoor fun.

BPW President Gets a Sendoff

Members of the Washington Business and Professional Women's Clubs gave their national president a bon voyage sendoff last night at National Airport when Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas, Tex. left for New York enroute to London.

Judge Hughes, elected to the presidency earlier this month in San Francisco, will attend the International Convention in London July 29 to August 5. She will spend a day and a half at National Headquarters in New York before she leaves for England.

Judge Hughes, a county judge in Dallas, was first vice president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. before her election to the top position. She stopped off in Washington on her way to New York to consult with Miss Marguerite Rawalt of Washington, who is second vice president of the national organization.

Other American delegates to the International Convention include Dr. Frances Scott of Smith College, former national president of the group.

Approximately 50 other American visitors to the convention are expected.

New Invention in Lip Make-up

Q.—Dear Brittany: I use a powder base. Now I hear there is a base for lipstick. What does it do and where can I get it?

A.—As you know, powder clings to a powder base making it stay on longer. You can do the same for your lipstick by using LIP LIFE the marvelous new color base for lipstick. It's made especially for lipstick to cling to. It keeps your lip make-up on hours longer without "repaints". It and your lips are always colorful even though your lipstick wears off. It sells for only $1.00 plus tax. Just ask for LIP LIFE at your favorite cosmetic counter. Not a drying liquid.

For more information about LIP LIFE and generous trial size, send name and address, enclosing 10 cents for postage and handling. State whether you use clear red or blue tone lipstick. Mail to BRITTANY CLARKE, Beauty Consultant, 1307-F West 6th St., Los Angeles 17, Calif.

Represents Bombed Village

French 'Sparkplug' Here for Pilot Parley

By Nicha Soure

A 19-YEAR-OLD sparkplug, who is "too young to be tired," is the animate representative of the American-bombed village of Vimoutiers.

She represents a village which was bombed by American planes in 1944 through mistaken information. The Pilot Club is helping to resore the village as its international project.

Nichole arrived in New York in April and, by visiting the various Pilot organizations all over the country, she has seen more of the United States than most Americans. With the aid of a red dictionary she carries and two tiny dictionaries tucked in her purse, she can converse in English, although with a pronounced French accent. Three months ago she couldn't speak a word of English and yesterday she faced a barrage of questions from reporters at a press conference without the aid of an interpreter.

NICHOLE has some very definite ideas about Americans after her tour of the States. For example, she believes that American boys are too free with their kisses.

"When a boy kisses me I want to think that he is kissing me and not the whole neighborhood. Understand?" she said. When queried if she had ever kissed a boy, she blushed and hedged with "But what a question!"

When the reporter persisted she say coyly, "It is no fair. It is personal." Then, in half English and half French she laughingly told some members of the Pilot International present that if people from her village saw the newspapers she would not be able to return. Nichole did admit to having dates here in the United States, but added that it was so different here. "Too much familiarity."

NICHOLE will leave for France in eight days, and although she has had a wonderful time here and the friendliness of the people has amazed her, she will be glad to get back home. She is very conscious of the present war scare and wants to be with her family as soon as possible.

Besides, although the American way of life is more practical, convenient and comfortable, in France there is "more poetry and the sweetness of life." American men, Nichole has found, are charming and thoughtful, but the Frenchman cannot be topped for his "inner courtesy."

Back in her home town she teaches rhythmic dancing at the local school. Her students number 200, from the ages of 5 to 16.

PILOT INTERNATIONAL has been more than a benefactor in the restoration of Vimoutiers, Nichole said. Last Christmas members sent over 800 packages and clubs all over the country are sending needed articles—a desk, an oxygen tent—in addition to the money from the International.

It was through Denis Barois, Nichole's brother-in-law, that Pilot International became interested in the village of Vimoutiers.

Denis was a French pilot training in the United States when he was invited to the home of the late Margaret Mitchell. The author of "Gone With the Wind" was touched by the story of the French village bombed to rubble by the United States Air Force through mistaken information that it was a German munitions dump. She, in turn, interested her good friend, Mrs. Mamie K. Taylor, a pilot member and the present president-elect of the group.

Pilot International has an international outlook and it wasn't long before they adopted the French village as their baby. It's a five-year project with the first year's $2000 already sent to the mayor of the village "with no strings attached" for the restoration of Vimoutiers.

Calisthenics Keep You Feeling Younger Than You Are

By Ida Jean Kain

IT'S typically feminine to feel that you do not look anywhere near as old as other women your same age . . . and it's a wonderful feeling. So today's calisthenics are designed to keep you feeling years younger than you are. They help restore live tone to the girdle muscles and to the lateral muscles that bound the silhouette at the sides. They are not vigorous, but they are beautifully effective.

IDA JEAN KAIN

A safety position for exercising is the knee-chest posture . . .

Position: Kneel on knees, then bend forward and let weight rest on forearms and on knees.

Movement: Raise the right leg and stretch it high up and back . . . stretch and hold. Return knee to position, stretch upward again. Repeat several times, holding, then repeat with the opposite leg.

Carry on from that same position but this time as you stretch the right leg back, stretch the right arm straight out in front of the body and p-u-l-l. from tip to toe. Return knee and arm, and stretch with left arm and left leg. Repeat several times, slowly.

Now stretch and bend . . .

Position: Stand on knees, then sit back on heels—pull up forcibly with the lower abdominal muscles and hold this up-pull. Arms are out at sides at shoulder level.

Stretching and bending increases flexibility . . . and flexibility makes for a young figure.

EVEN IN THE good old summertime, Indiana folks have ambition! Our hats are off to reader H. W., of Valparaiso—and lots of readers closer to home, too—who still have pep enough to refinish furniture when the temperature is 90 plus!

DEAR ANNE:

I have recently purchased an unfinished vanity table of hard pine to which I wish to give a maple finish, reddish brown in color. I have seen them beautifully done in that finish.

Will you tell me how to proceed so that mine also will be beautiful? Would you advise rubbing the edges down a bit with sandpaper or not? The vanity stool, bought at the same time, has been waxed. Is there any way I can remove the wax in order to finish it to match the table?

H. W., Valparaiso, Ind.

New woods almost always need sanding, if you want a lovely, satiny finish. Sanding will also help cut the old wax from the vanity stool. First, though, get as much wax off it as possible with benzine. (Outdoors, please! Benzine is highly inflammable.)

You'll want to stain the wood next. Consult a good paint dealer about the stain to buy, describing the shade you want to achieve and the sort of wood you plan to put it on. Before you start staining the outside of the vanity, try the stain on the under side or in some other inconspicuous place to be sure you're getting the right shade.

Hard pine, though close-grained, is improved by the use of a filler. Select a liquid one in a shade close to that of your stain. Apply with a stiff brush, working in the direction of the grain. Let stand on wood just long enough for gloss to disappear, then wipe off excess filler with a coarse, lint-free cloth, something like burlap. Wipe across the grain, removing all excess filler from wood. Let dry 24 hours, then sand smooth with the grain of the wood. Wipe off all dust.

Next, apply a wash coat of shellac—2 parts shellac cut with 4 parts denatured alcohol. When dry, sand lightly. For a final finish, use wax. Rub surface with a little paste wax on clean cloth. Let set for a few minutes, then polish with soft cloth, first across the grain, then with it. Repeat wax treatment every now and then in the future to work up a fine sheen.

DEAR ANNE:

I have some drawings which would make attractive embroidery patterns if I could transfer them to cloth. Is there any way by which I can make—or is there any professional organization that makes—stamp-on or iron-on transfer patterns for this purpose? Can you suggest any method or device?

Z. Schiffman, 1843 Mintwood pl. nw.

Do you want to transfer the drawings so that you can embroider them yourself? Or are you interested in stamping the designs on cloths and selling them? If its just for your own use, I think you'll find the transfer paper sold in art shops satisfactory. You place your design on top of this paper and trace it off on the cloth. This might prove rather tedious if you go into large scale production!

The paper comes in various colors. You buy a light shade for use on dark cloth and vice versa. The markings will wash out later. One shop that stocks this transfer paper can be reached by telephoning Sterling 6323.

DEAR ANNE:

It would be deeply appreciated if you would answer in your column how many calories there are in a frankfurter roll.

Mrs. Herman Cooper,
1430 Saratoga ave. ne.

The roll—minus the frank—gives you 100 calories. If you care to include the hot dog, you'll be stepping up the total to 250 calories.

How to Get a Husband

Family Heirlooms Lure the Snob

By Cora Carlyle

Fourth of seventeen articles.

LET us take The Snob who should be catered to only when the compensatory factors overshadow the odium of his "climber" instincts. Snobbery is really one of Nature's devices to make life more acceptable to her snivelly sons and daughters. The more secure we are, the less need we have to use the props of snobbery to support us. So, we needn't feel too snooty and look down our noses at him who has his in the air because the snob lurks in everyone of us depending how deeply the snobbery is embedded.

These amusing devils are apt to have impeccable taste. And why not? The devotion of one's life to the superficial niceties of manners, speech or clothes produces results. He knows what is considered the "best" in food, in art, in the social world and particularly what is "best" for him. It doesn't matter if he is born to the purple or striving for a higher strata in life, his demands upon you will be the same. All his life, he's been trying to live up to something and you've got to be a help to get him there or he won't be interested. If you live on the wrong side of the tracks, you're safe. He won't have anything to do with you. People whom he wants to know just don't live in the wrong part of the town.

Mr. Nose-In-The-Air has a preconceived notion of what a lady should look like and how she should act. Decorum and gentility are his gods. He will be more impressed with the expensiveness of your clothes than the girl inside. He can tolerate a shabby suit from an exclusive establishment better than a new one from a less smart shop. Your charm and wit may be natural and scintillating, but he'll freeze up if any remark penetrates his icy hauteur. Your kindliness may prompt you to exchange a pleasantry with the waiter but such an act will cause you to lose caste with this toney fellow.

This aper of gentility loves antiques, old silverware and jewelry—in fact, anything that bespeaks roots. He can only stand erect on his two feet if he feels he's being supported by the past. He'll boast of an old family tree and leave it to you to prove that his ancestors weren't sick on the Mayflower. His craven soul loves socialites and celebrities, and he will speak of them by first name even after the most casual of contacts. "You know I bumped into so and so last night at the Colony."

Now that we've exposed this fellow to the best of our ability, if you want him, he can be had. A plastic operation won't help—so drag out the family heirlooms and leave the skeletons in the closet. Love may help re-educate this fellow to better values. Once he's accepted you as the lady with the versatile pink, you may be able to harness his drives into more satisfactory channels.

The Widower

THE courage needed for that first dive into the depths of a pool is never required again in the same degree even if you attempt it later from a higher board. So we welcome the Widower because he's gone through the ropes with the first plunge. You will find the men who have once enjoyed connubial bliss more anxious to re-establish their happy homes. A man misses being taken care of and living amidst comfortable surroundings. His attitude toward his former marriage should give you the key to a successful technique.

With the Widower who feels that his former marriage was a success and is hoping to establish a second haven, your domestic virtues are really an attraction for him. These virtues won't be evident unless you talk about them. If he raves about the home-made goulash he used to enjoy, offer to prepare it for him your way. His concern with the petty details which annoy a bachelor's life must be taken seriously. If it's spring and he's worried about the feast which the moths are having in his woolens, give him the latest booklet on how to exterminate the pest. Show a personal interest by checking with your own little hands the items required for a thorough spring cleaning.

Next you should pay attention to what he praises and what he denounces about the happy years he spent in his marital state. His tales of pleasant vacations when all irksome details were lifted from his shoulders by his wife can lead you into a recital of your efficiency in dealing with porters and transportation. It's always tactful to agree enthusiastically whenever he praises his dead wife.

Even though he may be reticent at first, as your friendship grows, he will disclose little characteristics about his former wife. Let these confidences be voluntary. If you are interested in this man, try to emulate the admired traits. When he hints that his former wife was blessed with a good disposition, you may as well face the fact that he won't tolerate a tempermental female. If he ridicules the exorbitant prices that some women pay for self-adornment, rest assured that this feeling is based on having lived with a conservative woman. While she mayn't have been a penny pincher, she didn't go haywire on shopping sprees. You won't make the grade with him by wearing an original dress or hat. He's more interested in a medium-priced number which is becoming, but obviously worth every penny you paid for it. As soon as he realizes the similarities between you and what he lost, the road will be easy.

You must accept without bitterness and jealousy that he had a happy relationship before. He contributed his all for that happiness, and he is eager to do it again. You can be the recipient of his energies if you understand that for you two—happiness lies ahead—while the past gradually fades.

With The Widower who has had an unfortunate and unhappy experience in marriage, we think there are two psychological factors involved. First, despite the unhappy memories, the habit of a place to hang a hat and a female to answer his doorbell is so deeply ingrained that he is willing to take a second chance. Next is his desire for self-justification. Even though the release came through an act of God, he feels he has to prove to himself and to his friends through another marriage that he has the capacity to make a woman happy. To demonstrate that he's got what it takes to get along with a woman, he will be most eager to smooth the way for a pleasant relationship. With understanding and sympathy from you, he hopes to prove that the first fiasco was no fault of his.

You will soon know his first wife's deficiencies and you can avoid those errors. Perhaps, he complains, "Gosh, I couldn't get a word in edgewise. She talked morning, noon and night. And if I finally got a chance to say something, she'd interrupt me every second."

Maybe, he'll say, "It was impossible to save a dollar. Although she had a closetful of clothes, it was never enough. Whenever she saw a new dress on anyone of her friends, bright and early the next morning, she'd rush to the stores."

Of course, we don't expect you to be faultless, but you can avoid repeating or showing evidences of similar defections.

This Widower has the experience of having been through the ropes before and of having failed. Therefore, he fully realizes the necessity of compromise and you can bet your bottom dollar that this time, he will be a more pliable person.

The question of the Widower with the children is what we want to discuss now. Only the woman who really loves children and wants to give them affection and a home should consider undertaking this serious obligation. Only with your eyes open, should you attempt to master these conditions full of problems and compensations.

It will be far from a bed of roses at first. Naturally Johnny or little Susie won't jump for joy at the sight of you. After spending hours trying to find the right toy for Johnny and wearing yourself out, he may untie the package and simply say, "I don't like this." Or you may search for amusing handkerchiefs for Susie and she may express her thanks by saying, "I thought you brought me a present."

As time rolls on; you will receive real gratitude and love from the children and their father plus a complete acceptance of you and your future children.

Wolf Always on Hand

WOLF IS the name for a type of man who has always existed. Without great imagination, you can visualize him running, with club in hand, from cave to cave or flitting, flower in buttonhole, from hotel to hotel in search of a female. For that is his purpose in life. Being president of a corporation or an ambassador means little to him compared to the glory of conquering the newest bag of bones and hank of hair that floats into view.

The Wolf considers it colossal selfishness for the world to expect him to bestow all his gifts of love on one woman. He does not subscribe to a 'Share the Wealth' program, but he's more than willing to be philanthropic with his gifts of love. He's willing to give—but not in one place.

You may or may not be the girl in a thousand who can chain this animal. Even if you get him on the leash, he'll always be straining. As the chances of finding happiness with him are not too great, we say from the bottom of our hearts, avoid him!

More specifically, we've known him as Don Juan or Casanova—the lover who is a "devil with the women." But today we understand more about the whys and wherefores of his personality make-up, and we tend to pity this predatory male who prowls for new conquests and lasting satisfactions that he never can find. He must have the thrill of conquest but, unfortunately, the thrill disappears with the conquest. The novelty inevitably arouses the hunting instinct in him. His nature seems to demand ever fresh fields, and it is always the meadow beyond that seems the more attractive.

This is one of the real heartaches if the Wolf is your heart's desire. You may be the most attractive girl in the restaurant, but nothing will stay his roving eye. Like an epicurean, his eyes water as they rove around the room to select the choicest tidbit. It may be that the Wolf refuses to have one woman because of a basic unwillingness to assume the responsibilities of a grown man. As part of his debonair attitude, he assumes a boyish irresponsibility. Breaking off a relationship before it reaches a serious stage absolves him from any obligations. Knowing this, introduce this prowler to your family and friends. He won't like it, but try to involve him in as many social contacts as possible where you are regarded as a couple. He likes the couple idea—but not in public.

How will you recognize this creature, you ask? There is one characteristic that all wolves have in common. It's not your soul they're after, it's the body beautiful. Do not be fooled by his overwhelming attentions in the beginning. When on the make, he'll succeed in convincing you you're Venus de Milo, Madam Curie and Rita Hayworth, all rolled into one, and that you never lived until you met him. The day you meet him he may send you flowers, telephone you from the office, spend the evening with you and then call you up to thank you again for a lovely evening.

This is the time to beware. His persistence may disarm you just as it is intended to. You'll be one of many but don't berate yourself as the most experienced gals have fallen for him. Wash your face and powder your nose, and if you recognize him the next time you meet him, the lesson will stand you in good stead.

But let us take the case extraordinary. That one girl in a thousand who may catch the Wolf when he is off guard. Frankly, we don't know what might cause this lapse. He may be putting on weight, or he may have found a grey hair at his temple or he may be beginning to wonder whether it's his money or experience that gets him the young girl.

Should you be the one girl in a thousand who meets the Wolf in this rare moment, you must refuse to become identified as just another girl who tumbles easily to his charms. Be the wise little lamb and pull the wool over the Wolf's eyes. If you can do this, he will be increasingly awed by you for making him toe the mark. Mind you! This sophisticated person will be irked by sermons—he will not be charmed by self-righteousness but hold out—it's the only way to get him. You can kill two birds with one stone by resisting him. You can confirm his fear that he has lost his Don Juan union card and he'd better apply for permanent membership in the society of marriage and at the same time, you impress him tha' you are "different." Of course, don't expect a complete reformation. He will demand from you an understanding of his masculine foibles and as long as there's an ounce of manhood in him, he may always turn to look at a pretty ankle or a slim waist. His hair may thin and his legs wobble but he'll never lose the gleam in his eye. Let him gape at the other females of the jungle, but you'll be the Mrs.

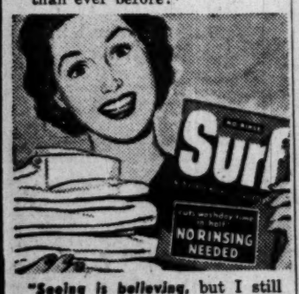
"I kept peeking at the wash on the line—to see what would happen. Well, my blankets dried so fluffy and smelled fresher than if they'd been rinsed. All my clothes were softer and colors came out brighter and clearer than ever before!"



"Seeing is believing, but I still can't get over the way No-Rinse Surf got my husband's shirts so white—without a bit of bleaching or hard rubbing! I washed in half the usual time—and even the ironing seemed to go easier. You bet I'm sold on No-Rinse Surf."

Power Fails For 5 Hours In Clarendon

About 1500 Virginia Electric Power Co. customers in Arlington, including the whole Clarendon business area, were without electricity for five hours when power in two cables failed yesterday.

Trouble started at 9:36 a. m. when one cable failed at the Clarendon substation. The circuit was transferred to the Fort Myer substation within an hour, but a shorted cable at the Fort Myer station cut off all the power again.

Service was finally restored at 2:45 p. m., according to Ray C. Hopkins, Vepco district manager.

Hit hardest were Clarendon merchants whose shops were without air conditioning during the failure, he said.

Arlington County police headquarters was also without power, but a routine procedure improvised for just such an emergency, averted trouble.

A scout car was posted by the police dispatcher's window. As calls came in, the dispatcher called the details through the window to the scout car, which relayed messages by radio to cars on the road.

$32,376 Tax Bills 'Dead,' D. C. Decides

District Commissioners yesterday transferred from active to dead files, as uncollectable, $32,376.83 owed in personal property and income taxes by 3384 taxpayers.

District Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson recommended the action as a means of simplifying his bookkeeping. He said the delinquent taxpayers were either dead, nonresident or had gone out of business or just couldn't be found.

The District will try to collect if any of them show up, Pearson said, but in the meantime their names are adding needless work to the job of compiling office reports. Pearson said he had not recommended such action since the last war, but plans to do so annually in the future.

Taxes due ranged from a few cents to nearly $900. Some have been owed for 10 years. Most were for amounts less than $10.

Judge Upholds Store Victory In Lawsuit

Arlington Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy has denied a motion to set aside a recent jury verdict in favor of the Hecht Co. involving a proposed site for an Arlington branch store.

The jury had dismissed a suit against the Hecht Co. and 10 other persons and corporations contesting ownership of a 6½-acre portion of the proposed store site.

The suit was brought by George W. Beall, and his brother, William H. Beall, both of Arlington. They claim the land in question belongs to them under terms of their grandfather's will.

The litigation has centered over Circuit Court decisions of 1909 and 1928 which permitted the plaintiff's father to sell the land.

Beall's attorneys contended the earlier rulings were void since the Arlington court did not have jurisdiction. This, Judge McCarthy has now denied. He said the jury was correct in throwing out the suit against the Hecht Co.

Probation Seen As Crime Curb

Petersburg, Va., July 25 (AP).—Attorney General McGrath said today the Federal probation system has fully proved itself a preventor of crime.

"Imprisonment as a punishment for a juvenile delinquent has been an unequivocal failure," he declared.

The Attorney General urged the need for greater emphasis on rehabilitation rather than punishment. He spoke before the first national conference of the Chief Probation Officers of the U. S. Courts at nearby Fort Lee.

Reiterating his view that the national crime problem is "essentially a youth problem," McGrath said that "the typical apprehended criminal is between 14 and 20 years of age. About 31 percent of all persons committed to Federal prisons last year were from 18 to 24 years of age."

He emphasized that the attitude of helpfulness toward the youthful criminal, and particularly the first offender, should not be confused with any "coddling process." But it is recognized, he said, that there are some enemies of society exhibiting "incurable aggressive human behaviors" who should be permanently imprisoned for the protection of society in general.

Montgomery Refuses To Lift Roomer Ban

The Montgomery County Council refused to relax its ban against roomers in residential "A" neighborhoods at a meeting yesterday.

Frederic P. Lee, council president, told the members that "while the laws are on the books, I have not other duty than to carry them out. It's up to the commission (Maryland National Parks and Planning Commission) to change the laws."

A. Morton Thomas, director of the county Department of Inspection and Licenses, had blamed previous non-prosecution of 606 zoning violations on Blair Lee 3d, vice chairman of the commission. Thomas said Lee told him that "it would be persecution to prosecute at this date, since the revised master zoning map of the city would legalize many of them."

Councilman J. Douglas Bradshaw, a Republican, said he "understood" that the master zoning plan had been completed.

"It is difficult to understand why this plan has not been made public," he said. "It is possible that the delay has come because of the political election in November. It is a poor commentary on the type of executive ability in the Park and Planning Commission to make political capital out of the Takoma Park zoning situation.

A storm of protest arose last week when Thomas first revealed his intention of enforcing the law against roomers in residential "A" (one family, detached houses) among other zoning ordinances.

The Park and Planning Commission adopted a resolution Thursday saying it was "unfortunate" that inforcement is being carried out now when a new ordinance which will permit a reasonable number of roomers is almost ready for adoption.

The commission had also instructed its vice chairman, Lee, to request the council to hold off action or repeal of the provision. Council President Lee said the council had yet to receive these instructions officially.

A free rabies vaccination clinic will be held August 12 from 9 to 11 a. m. at the Silver Spring National Guard Armory, Thomas announced at the council meeting held in the courthouse at Rockville.

The council adopted ordinances: regulating weeds and garbage in the suburban area; setting up health standards for hospitals, nursing homes, educational institutions and recreation camps; and changing requirements in zoning for nursing homes and educational institutions.

It also authorized lease of a 20-acre dump near Rockville from Blake D. Merson for $1 a year, and set August 22 at 7:30 p. m. for a hearing on two ordinances: one, regulating the auctioning of gold, silver, jewelry and clocks; the other, prohibiting the discharge of fire arms and regulating the sale of fire arms in sububan districts.

Council will meet at 4 p. m. next Tuesday instead of 2 p. m.

Candidates File for County Posts

The slate of candidates indorsed by the Democratic State Central Committee of Prince Georges County, released yesterday, would return all but six incombents to office.

Meanwhile, 19 Republicans indorsed by the GOP State Central Committee Monday night, filed candidacies with the Board of Supervisors of Elections.

Two of the six Democratic incumbents not selected to continue in office would merely swap jobs.

These are County Treasurer James B. Bland and Commissioner Norman H. Collins.

New Faces on Ticket

New faces on the Democratic ticket are Nicholas Orem, jr., of Hyattsville, and Ernest N. Cory, jr., of Laurel, backed for the House of Delegates; Alfred H. Smith, of Marlboro, for county commissioner, and Ben Dyer, of Cheverly, for county engineer.

County support was given to the State ticket headed by Governor William Preston Lane, jr.

The central committee also gave backing to United States Senator Millard E. Tydings and Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer.

Incumbents indorsed for reelection are State Senator L. Harold Sothoron, Delegates Perry O. Wilkinson, Leroy Pumphrey, T. Raymond Burch and George McLeish; County Commissioners Harry W. McNamee, D. Leonard Dyer and John H. Beall; State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, Sheriff T. Ward Martin, Orphan's Court Judges Vincent A. Osterman, Lansdale G. Clagett and William T. McPherson; Clerk of the Circuit Court W. Waverly Webb and Register of Wills Griffith S. Oursler.

Filing candidacies following yesterday's indorsement announcement were Sothoron, Cory, Leonard Dyer, Martin, Oursler, Clagett and McPherson. Osterman had filed previously.

Two other candidates, Robert W. McCullough, of Beaver Heights, and Frederick M. Coxen, of Hyattsville, also had filed before for State's attorney and county commissioner, respectively.

Republicans File

Republicans who filed for office yesterday were John R. Fletcher, of Cheverly, for the State Senate; William R. Hughes, of Brookside Manor; John F. Lillard, jr., of Hyattsville; Harry Taylor, jr., of Brandywine Heights; Wendell Sigler, jr., of Brentwood; Mrs. Dorothy E. Sousa, of Hyattsville, and Albert R. Hassall, of District Heights, for the House of Delegates. Thomas E. Latimer, of Glenn Dale; H. Wilson Spicknall, of Hyattsville; James B. Carrico, of Riverdale; Daniel A. Abbott, of Camp Springs, and W. Everett Marton, of Laurel, for county commissioners.

Also, Carlyle J. Lancaster, of Bladensburg, state's attorney; Carlton G. Beall, of Seat Pleasant, sheriff; Julian B. McKay, of Forest Heights, treasurer; W. Curtis Hopkins, of Hall, register of wills, and Mrs. Laura Lee Courtney, of Capitol Heights; Paul D. Johnson, of Mount Rainier, and Clifton L. Clevenger, of Laurel, for judges of the Orphan's Court.

One other Republican, Edward J. Waters, of Berwyn, had previously filed for county commissioner.

Board Proposed to Handle Prince Georges Personnel

Establishment of a personnel board for the Prince Georges County government was proposed at yesterday's meeting of the County Commissioners in Marlboro.

The resolution to set up the board, introduced by Commissioner D. Leonard Dyer, probably will be acted on at next Tuesday's meeting, officials said.

As proposed by Dyer, the personnel board would consist of the president of the county commissioners, the clerk to the commissioners and the county attorney. When the board would consider personnel problems of any governmental department, the head of that department or a designated representative would also sit on the board.

The functions of the board generally would be to establish and maintain files of personnel and retirement records, establish rules governing working hours and leave schedules for employes, classify types of employment and interview and examine applicants for employment.

In addition, the board would be charged with reviewing the record of each employe annually and present an evaluation of the employe's services to the commissioners.

In another action, the commissioners postponed for two weeks decision on a zoning application heard last Wednesday at Hyattsville.

The application was filed by Stanley B. Frosh for commercial zoning of 15 acres on Marlboro pike near the old Maryland Club Gardens to permit construction of a drive-in theater.

The commissioners also appointed 22 persons to the County Youth Commission on the recommendation of Walter F. Mulligan, commission chairman.

Independent Democrats File Montgomery County Ticket

A 14-member independent Democratic ticket was filed in Montgomery County yesterday to oppose the regular Democratic victory committee slate already announced.

Robert W. Beall, Bethesda attorney, who will run for State Senator, heads the list. He said his ticket supports the candidacy of George P. Mahoney, Baltimore builder, who is opposing Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., for the governorship nomination.

The 13 others are John M. McInerney, Bethesda attorney, State's attorney; Charles D. Sanger, Silver Spring, and Donald A. DeLashmutt, Rockville attorneys, House of Delegates; George Moriarty, James H. Benner, Bethesda, and Walter G. M. Fields, Takoma Park, attorneys, judges of the orphans court.

Also Leslie E. Sanders, Bethesda newsman, sheriff; John E. Oxley, Rockville, E. Austin Carlin, Bethesda, attorneys, and Dr. Leo I. Donovan, Bethesda, State central committee; Jeremiah C. Broderick, retired policeman, Silver Spring, Mrs. Amy Joyce Mader, Bethesda, and Alfred M. Rinaudot, Chevy Chase architect, delegates to the State Democratic Convention.

Among others who filed yesterday were Mrs. Kathryn J. Lawler, Chevy Chase, for the Republican nomination, member at large, county council; L. S. (Ted) Ray, Silver Spring, Republican state central committee; H. Brooks Perring, Takoma Park, delegate to the Republican State Convention; John R. Foley, Kensington, Democratic State Central Committee.

Truman, Cabinet Plan 2 Meetings a Week

Because of the Korean crisis and troubled world conditions, President Truman has put cabinet meetings on a twice-a-week basis.

Cabinet meetings have been held once a week, on Friday morning. Now there will be Tuesday afternoon and Friday morning sessions.

Sitting in regularly on cabinet meetings now are W. Stuart Symington, who handles general mobilization planning as chairman of the National Security Resources Board, and W. Averell Harriman, Mr. Truman's special assistant on foreign affairs.

$4-Million Deal Signed For German Scrap Iron

Frankfurt, Germany, July 25 (U.P.). United States steel interests have concluded a four-million-dollar deal for the purchase of 100,000 tons of scrap iron, urgently needed for President Truman's rearmament program, reliable sources said today.

Negotiations are under way to buy another 50,000 tons of scrap.

The scrap was bought by the Scrap Iron & Steel Corp., New York, from individual German dealers. The eventual consumer in the United States, it was said, will be Carnegie of Illinois.

'How to Stop Killing Yourself'

Don't Eat Your Way to Death

Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series of six articles by Dr. Steincrohn in which he concludes that many people are unconsciously killing themselves in their own fashion. The series is a condensation of the book, "How to Stop Killing Yourself," just published by Wilfred Funk, Inc. Dr. Steincrohn is a specialist in internal medicine with 25 years of practice.

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M. D.

CHAPTER FOUR

Obesity is a disease. It is unnatural for the body to have more fat than it requires for its necessary functions.

I know of no other ailment that is so lightly considered. Slow suicide by obesity is the commonest form of death. But fortunately, when you are overweight, you can make the diagnosis without the doctor's help.

An examination in a full-length mirror, a close inspection of the notches in your belt, the fit of your clothes, the remarks of your friends—any, or all, of these show you whether or not you are the slim youngster you used to be.

The man or woman who overeats blames his extra layers of fat on some peculiar, mysterious, disorder of his glandular system. This has long been disproved. When you are overweight, 99 times out of 100 it is due to increased food intake.

Recently we have come to the conclusion that the fan man is not necessarily the happy man.

On the contrary, among the common causes of added weight are nervousness and frustration. Patients will say that they began to pick at food, and had an almost insatiable desire to keep eating throughout the day, after they experienced some tragedy.

Divorce, loss of a loved one, emotion, transfer from one job to another less enjoyed, fear of illness—these are a few of the many reasons why people overeat.

Obesity must be considered a disease because it is the beginning of many diseases. We know that high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, gall bladder disease, and many forms of arthritis thrive in the fat man or woman.

Every fat person should have a complete physical examination consisting of blood studies, metabolism, and other indicated investigations before he begins his diet. If the doctor has before him on his chart a picture of both the mental and physical background of his patient, he is better able to treat him.

If the patient's food intake is primarily due to carelessness and maladjustment to trying situations, sometimes treatment by a psychiatrist is indicated. I have known a psychiatrist to reduce an obese patient where other physicians have failed.

The treatment of obesity is simple provided we know our patients thoroughly—and provided the patient has the willingness to dissolve his layers of fat.

Eat All You Want of This; Lose 35 Lbs. in 12 Weeks

Here is a tested diet recommended by Dr. Steincrohn in which you may eat as much as you want of the foods listed.

It was prepared by Dr. H. L. Marriott, of Middlesex Hospital in Great Britain, and was written for the British Medical Journal.

Eat and drink as much as you like of: Lean meat, poultry, game, rabbit, liver, kidney, heart, sweetbread — cooked in any way, but without flour, bread crumbs, or thick sauces. Fish (not canned), boiled or steamed only; no thick sauces. Eggs, boiled or poached. Potatoes, boiled, steamed, or baked in skins, but not fried, roasted, sauteed, or French fried. Other vegetables of all kinds (fresh, canned, or dried) cooked in any way not involving use of fat.

Also permitted: Salad and tomatoes without oil or mayonnaise. Beetroot, radishes, water cress, and parsley. All fresh fruits, including bananas. No canned or dried fruits such as dates, figs, or raisins. Some pickles, but no sweet pickles or chutney. Clear soups. Salt, pepper, mustard, vinegar, and Worcestershire sauce, but no other sauces. Saccharin for sweetening. One half-pint of fresh milk a day. Three small pieces of bread each day. Nothing else whatever. No fats, sweets, sausages, cheese, cocktails, beer, cider, wine, or spirits.

The patient who says she would like to remove 15 pounds in 10 days (because she must wear a dress now too small for her to a certain party) is not in any frame of mind to reduce sensibly. It often takes years to get fat. Patients should be willing to wait at least months to get thin.

About one out of every four persons in this country is overweight. If weight is more than 10 percent above normal, life expectancy is reduced about one fifth. It has been estimated that 10 pounds of extra fat require the development of half a mile of blood vessels. Naturally the heart must work harder.

Remember that exercise will not take off poundage. According to recent tests at the University of Alabama you would have to walk 66 miles at 4 miles per hour to take off one pound. If you wanted to take the pound off more quickly you would have to run 43.2 miles at the rate of 10 miles per hour.

Would you like to take it off and enjoy the process at the same time? Then you would have to dance 20.5 hours.

James Rorty, in Harper's Magazine of May, 1949, wrote an excellent article entitled "The Thin Rats Bury the Fat Rats." This could be accurately paraphrased to read "the thin man buries the fat man."

Here is his recommended nonspecific diet:

BREAKFAST: Coffee with milk, but no sugar or cream. One egg. Citrus and other fresh fruit in quantity to satisfy hunger. Whole grain muffins or bread. One pat of butter.

LUNCH: A large salad composed of lettuce, celery, cabbage, carrots, peppers, peas, lima beans, etc., with a small amount of soybean oil, lemon juice, or vinegar dressing. Fruit. Buttermilk.

DINNER: A hearty soup or meat, usually one of the more nutritious organ meats such as pork liver, kidneys, heart. One or two vegetables. For dessert, fresh, dried, or canned fruit without sugar.

Fortunately, no other enemy of modern man can be so easily vanquished as obesity. This is one struggle out of which you can always emerge the victor. The question is: just how anxious are you to win?

However anxious, never take thyroid or benzedrine without your doctor's advice.

Station Crusades With Pig Grunts

By John Crosby

VICTOR W. KNAUTH and his partner, Daniel W. Kops, former newspapermen who own and operate Station WAVZ in New Haven, feel strongly: (a) that a radio station should do something more than entertain; (b) that a city should have more than one channel of information available to it.

Crosby

Consequently their station is operated more like a newsstation, and it provides New Haven with a generous flow of news. While news is an important commodity of any radio station, the general practice of most of them is simply to purchase it from news service, as the station purchases records from a record shop, or to filch it from the local papers.

WAVZ, on the other had, gets its own news and writes and presents it in its own way. The station covers courts, City Hall, undertakers, the Chamber of Commerce and all sorts of general assignments. It has reporters and editors and, according to Knauth, "everything a newspaper has except a composing room and a pressroom."

In most cities, if the papers or the press associations miss a story, the radio stations, dependent as they are on those sources, will miss it too. With its own staff, WAVZ can and frequently does make a big issue out of stories totally ignored by New Haven's two newspapers. Once the State FEPC hauled a local business into court and convicted it of discrimination. The New Haven papers wouldn't touch the story, says Knauth, while his station spread it all over the air.

WAVZ also tartly told its listeners that, if they depend on the New Haven papers, they wouldn't have heard about the story at all. "We watch the papers carefully," says Knauth, "and we scream when they do something wrong. They can't do anything about it as we're not competitors in business. Their advertisers are not our advertisers. The only way in which we compete is in news."

The Oink Crusade

THE station also starts its own crusades. In one case, the State Housing Authority wanted to buy a tract of land for a low-rent veterans' housing project. The land was occupied by a municipal piggery. The city and the Housing Authority couldn't get together on price and the project was stalled for 11 months.

WAVZ went into action, interviewed the waiting veterans on tape recording, described their living conditions, which were pretty bad, and also got a tape recording of the grunting pigs. They alternated the oinks of the pigs with the voices of the veterans five times a day for three days, ending each broadcast with the question: "What does New Haven want—pigs or people?" The city quickly decided to let the courts fix the price of the land, which they have since done, and the veterans will get their houses.

This quick action Knauth ascribes largely to the pigs. "They made a perfectly horrible noise," he confesses.

To preserve its freedom of action, WAVZ has no sponsored programs. It accepts only spot announcements. This way, the station doesn't have to stick to a time schedule, can run a program overtime if it feels like it, and, most importantly, can interrupt any program for news bulletins. Not all of its schedule, naturally, is devoted to news. It also broadcasts standard types, such as disk jockey, women's, children's quiz and sports programs.

The success of its news policy may be gauged by the fact that when Knauth and Kops bought WAVZ, the station was 2 years old and was rapidly going under. In one year under their operation, the station is in the black and is moving into larger quarters.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

When I first came to Washington in 1946, traffic conditions around Dupont Circle were awful. The underpass is a big improvement. Accidents have been averted, and time has been saved for both motorists and streetcar passengers.

But from the first day plans for the underpass were announced, the people of Washington have done nothing but gripe, and call it a "blunderpass."

Why don't Washingtonians quit complaining and be thankful they've got the underpass? I'll bet they also complained the first time Pennsylvania ave. was paved.

James Johnson,
3531 39 st. nw.

Dear Jim:

No bet. They probably did.

A civic improvement of this type almost always hurts some people (if only temporarily) before its gets a chance to help others.

If I were a merchant in that area and found by business knocked in the head because of a jungle of construction, I'd probably complain, too. But, as a motorist, I cheer.

City officials must weigh these rights of individuals against the needs of the entire community and make what they consider a wise, fair decision. But they can't hope to please everybody—ever.

Bill.

WITH ONE EYE ON THE TV SCREEN?

Mrs. Amelia Perazich of 3207 Oliver st. nw. suspects that she has discovered the reason for television's amazing popularity.

The information was included in Sonia Stein's column in last Sunday's radio section. It dealt with a survey undertaken to find out who watches Hopalong Cassidy on TV. The conclusion was that Hoppy's fans are to be found in all age groups. As Sonia put it:

"Children make up 42 percent of the audience, while the adults make up 58 percent, the ladies and menfolk neck and neck."

THIS IS WASHINGTON

When I was a little boy, one of my playmates would occasionally double up his fist, whack it across my shoulder, and yell: "Out-of-State license."

According to The Code, no retaliation was permitted. He had been the first to see a passing car bearing out-of-State tags, and thus had won the right to punch the boy nearest him.

The origin and purpose of this strange custom was never explained to me, so I cannot explain it to you. But I can assure you that if I had grown up in Washington with such companions, my shoulders would have been permanently black and blue.

This area probably has a higher percentage of out-of-State license tags than any other in the country. Especially during the tourist season, which may be roughly defined as any time of the year when there isn't a blizzard blowing.

Coming across the new Highway Bridge from Virginia the other day, I counted these tags within the space of one-half mile: New York, two Pennsylvanias, South Carolina, Connecticut, Florida, two Ohios, an Indiana and the usual swarms of Marylands and Virginias.

HONEST MAN

Bill Armstrong, swimming coach at the Ambassador, tells me that the hotel has recently received this anonymous letter:

"I stayed at your hotel recently and through some misunderstanding I got some of your towels. Also paper, cards and envelopes. I don't suppose you would miss them, but I cleaned them all up. But, being a religious man, it bothers my conscience, so I am gladly sending you more than they're worth."

Enclosed were two $1 bills.

AW, SHEDDUP!

Madame Pandit Chided Acheson

By Drew Pearson

The only woman Ambassador in the Washington diplomatic corps is Madame Pandit, the sister of the Prime Minister of India. She is a lady of frail figure, great dignity, and a sort of austere beauty.

Madame Pandit

Wearing the traditional white veil and flowing robes of India, Madame Pandit went to the State Department the other day to hand Secretary of State Acheson a note written by her Prime Minister brother, asking the United States and Russia for peace in Korea.

Her call upon the courteous, slightly aloof Acheson at first was quite formal. Then it warmed up in a way only a woman can make diplomacy warm.

"Madame Pandit," Acheson said, after carefully considering the Indian peace appeal, "I sympathize with your views, but we cannot be appeasers."

"Appeasers!" the bird-like Indian Ambassadress almost leaped from her chair. "Appeasers! You call us appeasers! We in India, who know what it is to spend years in jail for a cause in which we believe! You call us appeasers!"

'Appeasement—Never'

"When we lacked the arms to fight," she continued, "we developed our own weapons—nonresistance. Never did we appease. We in India know what it is to fight and to win.

"But you don't understand the Russians," countered the Secretary of State.

"You forget, Mr. Acheson, that I served as Ambassador to Russia," shot back Mrs. Pandit. "I know the Russians well. And I think also you forget your geography. India has a border with Red Russia on one side and Red China on the other. We know them perhaps better than you.

"But I am here pleading with you for your own good, Mr. Secretary. For the United States must not lose India. We can be and are your best friends, your best Ambassadors in the East. You must not lose India, Indo-China, and Indonesia. Unless you show them a way to peace, however, you will."

Secretary Acheson agreed that the United States certainly could not afford to lose this vital part of the world, and promised a sympathetic study of the whole problem.

Stream of Propaganda

What most people in this country don't realize is that the Communist radio pours a daily stream of propaganda into the villages of China, northern Indo-China, and as much of the rest of the Orient as possible, telling how the imperialistic United States has invaded Korea. Naturally, nothing is said about Russia's part in the North Korean invasion, or that the United Nations sanctioned the American resistance.

And, since radio in the village square is the chief means of communicating with a large part of Asia, a lot of Orinetals have come to believe this.

That's why it is so important to send Philippine Gen. Carlos Romulo, president of the U. N. assembly, to Korea to show Asiatics that other Asiatics are emphatically behind the United States. This has been proposed at Lake Success, but fear of treading on General MacArthur's toes as supreme commander has caused hesitation in Washington.

That's also why the action of Senators Byrd, George, et al., who voted to cut American propaganda, is so short-sighted.

'Double Jeopardy'

Friends told ex-OPA Administrator Leon Henderson that he might be drafted to handle price controls and rationing again. "The constitution of the United States," replid Leon, "does not permit double jeopardy." . . . Sen. Margaret Chase of Maine specifically requested that she be put on the Senate subcommittee to investigate sex-unfortunates in government. Her motive was to see that the probe is conducted in a dignified manner. . . . Sen. Clyde Hoey of North Carolina, in charge of this probe, is doing a fair-minded job. . . . White House assistants John Steelman and Matt Connelly, who never liked White House counsel Clark Clifford, have continued to knife him since he set up private law practice. They pulled a few discreet wires to make sure his client, TWA, lost out on the Pan American Airways-American overseas airlines merger.

Sen. Connally Replies

No senator was better qualified to answer Joe McCarthy's harum-scarum attack on the State Department than Tom Connally of Texas. As boss man of the Foreign Relations Committee, Connally knows the department, its policies and personnel, like a book.

However, Texas Tom remained noncommittal until the closed-door Democratic caucus the other day. Then he said a mouthful.

"The evidence clearly shows that the State Department is innocent of the charges made against it," declared Connally. "But it is regrettable to me that this issue should have been raised at a time when the reputation of our State Department can least afford to be sullied.

"This is a time when we should all be pulling together in a united effort to win the conflict in the Far East. We should be exerting all our energies to that job. We cannot afford to let our people be divided and confused by political opportunists who seek to destroy confidence in the government."

Connally, however, did not approve a proposal that a "resolution of censure" be adopted against McCarthy. Neither did Senators Warren Magnuson of Washington, James Murray of Montana and others, who argued that this might make a "martyr" of the wild-talking Wisconsinite.
